Made Bets in Hammel's, Fay Aide Swears

Placed Bets In Hammel's, Aide to Fay Tells Court

A pretty blond stenographer in the office of the United States attorney testified yesterday that she had placed two horce-race bets in March with a waiter in Hammel's Restaurant, 416, 10th st. nw.

She is Mrs. Edith Wildrick, 5515 Connecticut ave. nw., the secretary to the special gambling grand jury, and now a stenographer in the office of United States Attorney George Morris Fay.

She testified that on March 17 she won $18 on a bet she placed with Waiter Walter C. (Danny) Plummer, but that on March 23 she lost the $2 she gave Plummer to bet on another horse.

Plummer and Harry S. Kopel, coowner of Hammel's, are on trial in District Court before a jury of six men and six women on five counts of gaming.

Kopel was charged with setting up a gaming table, setting up a gaming place, unlawfully wagering on a horse race, permitting gambling and possession of numbers slips when he was arrested March 25 in one of eight raids made that day under direction of Fay.

Plummer is charged with setting up a gaming table, setting up a gaming place and accepting a bet.

The Government rested its case after producing only five witnesses.

Mrs. Wildrick testified she was accompanied to Hammel's by Wilfred Barrett, a law student and undercover man for the raids, when the bets were made.

She said that she and Barrett ate at the restaurant on other occasions and "overheard waiters taking bets." Plummer gave her money to a man named Henry Fish and a man identified only as "Doc," she said.

Fish, also a waiter at Hammel's, was arrested with Plummer and Kopel, but charges against him were dropped for lack of evidence.

Barrett was the first Government witness. He described six visits he made to Hammel's in January and March, 1949, and said he had personally made one bet of $3 with Plummer March 24.

Pasquale Sanducci, a U. S. deputy marshal in New York, testified he had accompanied Mrs. Wildrick and Barrett to the restaurant once and seen evidence of horse-race betting.

He said a radio at one end of the Washington cab drivers will get a chance to air their traffic gripes this morning before the man who drafts the regulations.

All 9000 local drivers have been invited to attend such a session starting at 10:30 a. m. today in the National Guard Armory. George A. Keneipp, director of vehicles and traffic for the District, will be on hand to hear the gripes.

For convenience of cabbies who can't stay through the gripe-fest, Keneipp has prepared questionnaires on which they may state their particular vehicular complaints.

Arrangements have been made to handle about 1000 men at the informal hearing.

Costello Now a Political Power, Gangland 'Diplomat,' Slot King

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

This is about three "tygoons."

The "tygoon" is the mid-century's contribution to the social order. He rules an empire partly inherited from the tycoons of the '20s and partly derived from the the goons of that era. But he is unlike the mobsters who reigned over gambling and other vices during prohibition. He operates a little outside the law, a little inside the law and generally alongside the law. He tries not to bother the law and tries to keep the law from bothering him. This is the third in a series of articles about three of the country's most successful tygoons.

Frank Costello puffs a cigarette in downtown New York office building

New York.—Frank Costello came into the dining room straight from the barber shop, which is directly across the foyer. The first impression I got of him, therefore, was one of freshness and neatness. He was smiling; there was no swagger about him, and if there were any gorillas around, they certainly were not visible.

He is a man of medium height, about 5 feet, 8 inches, short-necked and wide-shouldered. His black hair, faintly streaked with gray, is brushed back in pompadour fashion from a narrow forehead.

His eyes are a deep blue, keen and friendly. He has a long nose and also a long jaw, maybe suggestive of strength.

Like many New Yorkers, he gets an "oi" into certain words, so that bird becomes "boid," girl becomes "goil," and verbal becomes "voibal." He has a pretty good vocabulary, however, and a directness that makes him easier to follow than, say, the better-educated Attorney Wolf. Not once in a long interview did he use profanity.

Costello was wearing a custom-made blue suit with a faint pin-stripe, a white shirt and polka-dot tie.

He might have been taken for an importer,

U. S. Vessel Shelled by Nationalists

By Ferdinand Kuhn
Post Reporter

A Chinese Nationalist warship fired early yesterday morning on a 6711-ton American freighter, the Sir John Franklin of the Isbrandtsen Line, at the mouth of the Woosung River near Communist-held Shanghai.

The Franklin was hit 12 times and damaged above the waterline, but nobody aboard was hurt, according to messages reaching the State Department.

The department promptly announced it would protest "energetically" against the shelling, the second such attack on an American ship in recent weeks. A previous protest against the shelling of the freighter Flying Cloud, belonging to the same company, has not been answer or even acknowledged.

No Word on Ward's Return

Meanwhile the department was also awaiting satisfaction from Chinese Communist authorities over the homecoming of Consul General Angus Ward in Mukden and over two American servicemen who disappeared in the Tsingtao area more than a year ago.

There was still no word last night whether the Communists had provided transportation for Ward and his staff, although Ward had been released from jail last week and ordered deported.

Nor was there any response to a new appeal to the Chinese Communists to help locate and release the two Americans, William C. Smith of Long Beach, Calif., a chief construction electrician, and Elmer C. Bender of Cincinnati, a Marine Corps master sergeant.

The two men vanished October 19, 1948, after taking off from the temporary American naval base at Tsingtao on a routine training flight. The State Department's press officer, Michael J. McDermott, told yesterday of reports from non-Communist forces that the men were alive and well, but lately there have been rumors that both were being held in a Communist jail near Tsingtao.

None Hurt in Shelling

The destroyer escort which shelled the Frankiln yesterday was taking part in the Chinese Nationalist blockade of Communist-held ports, the legality of which the United States and other powers have not recognized.

A message from the ship's master, Capt. Warren Harding, of Ardsley-on-Hudson, N. Y., said nobody aboard had been hurt by the shelling. The Franklin is a combined passenger-freight vessel with accommodations for a dozen passengers and a crew of 56 men.

Consul-General Walter P. McConaughy at Shanghai confirmed the first news of the attack and gave additional details in a message made public by the State Department last night.

He reported the Franklin was challenged and ordered to anchor as it was crossing the sandbar leading into the Woosung River on its way into Shanghai. The captain answered that he could not anchor because of shallow water, but would do so as soon as he got into the deep river channel. The shelling came as he moved his ship into deeper water.

Additional details, and a somewhat different version, were made public in New York by Hans J. Isbrantsen, president of the line which owns the Franklin. He said two warships had attacked the ship and, according to a message from the captain, had subjected it to "constant barrage."

"One ship kept after us and fired for one hour, getting up at close range," the captain radioed. "Darkness

'Compulsion' Charged To Thomas by Ex-Aide As Salary Trial Starts

N. J. House Member Reserves Statement On Allegations of Payroll "Kickbacks"

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Representative J. Parnell Thomas yesterday reserved his defense on charges of receiving congressional "kickbacks" after an attorney for his codefendent, Miss Helen Campbell, told a District jury she acted under "compulsion" from Thomas.

The long-delayed trial of the 54-year-old former chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities got off to a fast start yesterday with the selection of a jury of six men and six women in less than an hour.

Thomas and Miss Campbell, his former secretary, are jointly accused of conspiracy to defraud the Government by drawing salaries of two persons listed on Thomas' payroll who were not bona fide congressional employes.

Thomas alone is defendant on three other counts charging that he caused "false, fictitious and fraudulent" claims to be made against the Government for the services of Jacqueline B. Hill as a clerk-typist for the Un-American Activities Committee, when he knew she performed no services for the committee.

About $8000 Involved

United States District Attorney George Morris Fay told reporters the sum involved in the first count of conspiracy was something "in excess of $6000" and the amounts involved in the other three counts totaled approximately $2000.

The conspiracy count carries a maximum possible penalty of two years in prison and/or a $10,000 fine. The three false claims charges carry a maximum penalty of 30 years, a $30 000 fine or both—10 years and $10,000 on each.

John R. Fitzpatrick, attorney for Miss Campbell, made an opening statement to the jury immediately after Fay outlined the Government's case.

Fitzpatrick admitted that Miss Campbell did aid Thomas in putting two persons, Mrs. Rean D. Chilson, formerly Myra Midkiff, Miss Campbell's niece, and Arnette Minor, Miss Campbell's maid, on Thomas' congressional payroll.

No Intent to Defraud, He Says

And he admitted that these two did not retain any part of their salaries for their own use and benefit, but turned them over for the eventual use and benefit of Thomas.

But, said Fitzpatrick, Miss Campbell was not guilty of any conspiracy to defraud the Government. There was no thought in her mind, he insisted, of defrauding the Government. She merely, he declared, acted under the "compulsin" of her employer.

Furthermore, he told the jury,

Red Armies In Outskirts Of Chungking

Chungking, Nov. 28 (AP).—Desperate Chinese Nationalist defenders today checked the Red rush on this chaotic capital less than 20 miles from Chungking's gates, the government asserted.

The reprieve will give the few top officials still in Chungking time to fly Tuesday to Chengtu. That city, 170 miles to the northwest, will be the government's next stopping place.

So far as is known, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek still is here directing the city's defenses. Planes wait at the airport to take him and other leaders away.

High quarters predicted Chiang would resume the presidency in Nationalist China's bleak hour if Acting President Li Tsung-jen refuses to return. Li, who has split with Chiang, is in Hongkong.

Before the government reportedly checked the Communists, reports reaching here said the Nationalist defenses had been smashed.

(An Associated Press dispatch from Formosa said in this connection that the Communists fought into the suburb of South Springs, 12 miles from the city proper, but were driven out.

(The dispatch from Formosa also said the government had moved to

AEC to Build Pile to Make Atomic Fuel

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Having progressed from "theorectical possibility" to "engineering feasibility," the Atomic Energy Commission is about to build a plant that will "breed," or create, atomic fuel.

Announcement of plans to build the breeder reactor—actually, a "converter" to change the non-explosive uranium 238 found in nature to plutonium, the fissionable material—was made yesterday by Atomic Energy Commission Chairman David E. Lilienthal.

At a news conference, Dr. Lawrence Hafstad, director of the AEC's reactor program, characterized the project as "the biggest forward step in peacetime application of atomic energy."

Two years ago, the AEC announced that "breeding" of fissionable material was theoretically possible.

Designs Worked Out

Now, Hafstad said, engineering designs have been worked out to do it. They are 90 percent completed. It remains only to build the reactor, a project that will cost $3,500,000. It will be located near Arco, Idaho.

The great promise of the pile, or reactor, is that it is expected to produce more atomic fuel than it consumes.

The chain reaction will be carried on by uranium-235, a fissionable variant of the more common U-238. In natural uranium, the two are found in the ratio of one part U-235 to 140 parts U-238.

Another Type Reactor Planned

But in the breeder reactor, the fission of U-235 is expected to create neutrons which will react on the more plentiful U-238 to convert it to a different element, plutonium. The plutonium, fissionable and useful as a fuel either

In 1947 Schilling became the first American to make a trans-Atlantic hop in a jet fighter He has since flown three other jets across the Atlantic.

Bread Officials Questioned

Senate Probers Call Dealers To Explain Coffee Price Rise

(Meat Price Drop Eases Living Cost Down- Page 8)

Senator Guy M. Gillette's price-probing Senate subcommittee is going to find out what is making the price of coffee go up so fast.

Yesterday the Iowa Democrat sent word to officials of General Foods, Inc., to bring all the records and knowledge they have about coffee to a hearing later this week. Besides himself and his committee, Gillette says, the public is interested.

Yesterday Gillette, Senator Milton Young (R., N. Dak.) and the committee counsel, Paul Hadlick, gave officials of two bread companies an uneasy time. They demanded an explanation of why bread prices went up when wheat was high, but failed to go down when wheat dropped.

They brought out that the cost of wheat is 17 percent of the cost of bread—flour is about 25 percent. They also brought out that the Bond Baking Co. last year made 15.99 percent on its investment, against 7.91 percent in 1940; although its profits per sale had dropped from 4.9 percent to 4.25 this year.

Most of the questioning of the bakers was to learn why they can sell bread to the Army and Navy at much less than to the general public. Bond Bakers' comptroller, N. J. Farnum, said his company sold bread to the Aberdeen Proving Ground at Aberdeen, Md., for 8.59 cents a loaf, but charged Baltimore grocers 13½ cents.

Ward Baking, according to Alexander Grean, jr., vice president, was able to sell the Scott Air Base near St. Louis its bread for 10.6 cents a loaf while charging St. Louis grocers 12 cents. The reason, he said, was because they didn't have any returns of two-day bread as they have from grocery stores, and also didn't have to pay salesmen's commissions. He added that delivery costs were lower.

The same firm, the testimony disclosed, sold bread to Jersey City grocers at 13½ cents, but delivered it to the Navy at Bayonne, Newark and other Jersey

FAO Prepares To Reject U. S. Offer of Site

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Italy early today was selected as the permanent headquarters of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization.

The final ballot, after many hours of determined debate, was 30 for Italy to 28 for the United States.

President Truman had personally presented this country's invitation that the FAO locate here permanently, and the University of Maryland had energetically sought to obtain the permanent site, offering a group of buildings and other inducements.

The final decision, reached about 12:30 a. m., came after a long night session in which the conference voted to suspend Rule 32, which forbade locating the FAO away from the headquarters of the United Nations. The conference also voted, in order to break a stalemate that continued through earlier balloting that blank ballots should no longer be counted in the total from which a majority figure was to be obtained.

On the last ballot before the night session, Italy had led the United States, 29 to 28, with sev-

Try for New China Partition By Reds Predicted by Jessup

Lake Success, Nov. 28 (AP).—United States Ambassador-at-Large Philip C. Jessup said today there is evidence of another Russian attempt to dismember China. He called on the Soviet Union and all countries everywhere to keep hands off China and let the Chinese settle their own future.

Jessup put before the 59-nation Political Committee a resolution sponsored by the United States, Australia, Mexico, Pakistan and the Philippines.

There is a serious question, Jessup said, whether the Russians had acted in good faith with the Chinese since the Second World War ended and the Moscow leaders signed a treaty of friendship with the Nationalist Government in 1945. Jessup tossed before the committee the resolution calling all countries:

"1. To respect the political independence of China and to be guided by the principles of the U. N. Charter in their relations with China.

"2. To respect the right of the people of China now and in the future to choose freely their political institutions and to maintain a government independent of foreign control.

"3. To respect existing treaties relating to China.

"4. To refrain from seeking to acquire spheres of influence or to create foreign-controlled regimes within the territory of China and seeking to obtain special rights or privileges within the territory of China."

Expert Backs Written Charge To Jury in Complicated Cases

A proposal that juries here be given written instructions during complicated trials was indorsed yesterday by E. Goring Bliss, an authority on juries in the local courts.

Bliss said that he will bring up the proposal at the next meeting of the District Bar Association subcommittee on the qualifications and instruction of jurymen. Bliss heads the subcommittee and is chairman of the Jury Commission here.

He emphasized, however, that he was speaking as a layman interested in jury selection rather than as a court official.

"I want it clear that I am not implying any criticism of the judges here," he said.

The proposal to provide written instructions is designed to reduce confusion in the minds of jury members during lengthly cases. It was made in an editorial yesterday in The Washington Post.

Bliss said that he favored these instructions because of his experience around the courts.

"I probably would be considered of above average intelligence by a rule of thumb," he said. "But if I was given a long charge by the judge, I couldn't remember every item of a charge like that.

2000 Reported Dead in Fire In Soviet Zone Uranium Mine

Berlin, Nov. 28 (AP).—Unconfirmed reports of a disastrous fire and explosion in a Soviet Zone uranium mine which caused up to 2000 deaths were published today in western Berlin.

The British-licensed Telegraf, with Socialist Party underground sources in the Russian zone, said the fire broke out in the Johanngeorgenstadt mine, deep in the Erz Mountains 150 miles south of Berlin.

A similar report was broadcast by the American radio station RIAS which said it came through "reliable" channels. Its sources listed the numbe. of dead in the "hundreds."

United States Army Intelligence sources said they had heard no report of an East Zone mine disaster.

The press office of the East Zone Communist government, set up by the Russians, called the report untrue.

The newspaper said that by Friday night 968 bodies had been recovered.

The fire broke out Thursday, according to the Telegraf, when worn insulation on electric cables caused a short circut.

The newspaper charged the Johanngeorgenstadt fire was caused by "negligence," and added that the bulk of the workers were political prisoners.

President Loses $1 to Margaret in Temperature Bet

Key West, Fla., Nov. 28 (AP).—President Truman lost a dollar as he brought the headquarters of the Nation today to this semi-tropical naval submarine station.

He paid off to his daughter, Margaret, with whom he had wagered their landing at the nearby Boca Chica Air Station would be made in a temperature of at least 80 degrees.

Actually, it was not quite 71 when the President arrived for a three-week vacation.

But the President, Mrs. Truman and Margaret were as well pleased with the warmth of the sunshine as the welcome they received at the airport.

(Police Chief Robert J. Barrett of Washington oday flew down to Key West in a plane with reporters covering the trip of President Truman.

Military Men Start Europe Defense Talk

Paris, Nov. 28 (AP) — The Big Three soldiers of the West today started mapping a 3000-mile defense arc across Europe from the Norwegian Arctic to the Aegean.

The chiefs of staff of the United States, Britain and France met in the first of a series of sessions to complete a unified defense plan for the 12 nations of the North Atlantic Pact.

Simultaneously, it was announced from Frankfurt, Gen. Thomas T. Handy will be chief of the billion-dollare American arms aid program in Europe. He is now commander of United States forces in Europe with headquarters at Heidelberg.

At the same time Defense Secretary Johnson declared on arriving in London that United States forces in Germany are "ready for any emergency that might be thrust upon them."

Gen. Omar N. Bradley, chairman of the United States Joint Chiefs of Staff, presided at the meeting of the chiefs of staff. The act of Congress setting up the military aid program said the money, other than 100 million dollars for immediate aid, would be released only after the Atlantic Pact nations had agreed on a common defense plan.

The chiefs met for three hours. No communique was issued. At 10 a. m. tomorrow they will join the other nine members of the Atlantic Pact.

After the 12 chiefs have agreed on a technical plan in terms of numbers of tanks and tons of shells needed to meet any lunge by the Soviet army, they will go before a meeting of the 12 defense ministers here on Thursday for a political okay.

Pope Urges World-Wide Thanks Day

Vatican City, Nov. 28 (AP).—Pope Pius XII today suggested universal observance of America's traditional Thanksgiving Day.

He told a group of visiting American Congressmen:

"Our heart is touched and comforted by this recurring evidence —and would that it were universal —of one of the very first charges linked to the mission of responsible statesmanship."

He reminded the legislators that to be sincerely grateful for God's gifts "commits a public servant to a program as well as a proclamation."

This program, he added, "must imply a sensitiveness, a delicate and determined adjustment of mind and heart to the Divine, as well as to the merely human rights and interests that press for recognition and protection . . . especially during these critical days of reconstruction in the sector of international economy and finance."

The pope spoke in English at a private audience for Representative John J. Rooney (D., N. Y.) and members of his State Department Subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee; Representative Christopher C. McGrath (D., N. Y.), chairman of a Foreign Aid Subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee, and for Representative Leon H. Gavin (R., Pa.).

Rooney's group included Representatives Daniel J. Flood (D., Pa.), Michael J. Kirwan (D., Ohio), John E. Fogarty (D., R. I.), Lowell Stockman (R., Oreg.) and E. H. Hedrick (D., W. Va.).

12 Face Trial In Sarajevo as Kremlin Spies

By Gaston Coblentz

Belgrade, Nov. 28 (NYHT).—Twelve persons, some of them Russian nationals, will go on trial in Sarajevo on Thursday as spies of the Kremlin in Yugoslavia.

It will be the first time Soviet citizens have ever been tried on espionage charges in another Communist country. It is likely that the trial will link their activities with the Russian Embassy in Belgrade.

One of the defendants is a priest in a Russian orthodox church in Sarajevo and another is director of the Soviet Culture House in Belgrade, according to the government press office. Some of the defendants are Yugoslavs who worked for the Soviet Union.

The names of only five of the alleged spies were released. They are: Ilija Zerepkov, the cultural director; Alexej Krisko, the priest; Vladimir Nekludov, Anatolij Poljkov and Asenij Borimovich. The last three were not identified.

The Russians were described as belonging to 6000 white guardists who settled in Yugoslavia after World War I and were given Soviet citizenship after World War II.

The Belgrade government charges that the Kremlin is trying to exploit this minority as a fifth column in Yugoslavia.

Johnson called on Prime Minister Clement Attlee tonight. It was believed they discussed a suggestion that the United States take on some of the far-flung burdens of Britain's defense commitments in order to reduce Britain's heavy costs.

Search for Catalina Flying Boat Abandoned

Search has been abandoned for a Catalina flying boat of the Air Force that vanished on a flight from Albrook base in the Panama Canal zone to Belize, British Honduras, on October 17.

Officials here said yesterday that Air Force and Navy planes flew 116 search missions before the hunt was abandoned November 4.

The pilot and six crewmen were aboard the plane when it last reported about midway between Panama and the coast of Nicaragua.

Ward Incident Still Serious, Ferguson Says

Hongkong, Nov. 28 (U.P.).—Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) said today that the Chinese Communists' release of Mukden Consul General Angus Ward and one of his aides "does not settle" what he called a very serious international situation.

Ferguson arrived here with other members of the Senate Appropriations Committee touring the Far East.

Truman Sees Greek Rebel Threat Over

President Truman reported yesterday that the Greek government, with American help, has "substantially eliminated" the Communist guerilla threat to Greece.

The President warned in a report for Congress, however, that "persistent vigilance and patience" will be required to prevent the rebels from again threatening to overthrow the Greek government.

The report said most of the revolutionaries have fled into Albania, Bulgaria, and Yugoslavia.

"The ruthless minority which has been seeking forcibly to impose a Communist dictatorship upon the Greek people can recover from this decisive defeat," it added "only if its foreign sponsors are prepared to supply an even greater volume of assistance than previously was provided to sustain the guerilla movement."

The report disclosed that in order to crush the Communist rebellion, the United States supplied a total of $472,461,000 in military and economic aid. Of this total, $345,335,000 went for military supplies.

In telling Congress of the apparent success of the program, Mr. Truman said the main reason for victory is the "courage of the people and fighting men of Greece.

"Without the Greek will to resist," he said, "it is unlikely that foreign aid, or international diplomacy, or fortuitous development could have halted the drive of communism toward the Mediterranean."

He said the Greek government armed forces still must mop up isolated bands and seal the border.

Both Greece and Turkey, the report noted, are due to get additional military help under the new military assistance program that also is to help rearm the Atlantic Pact countries of Western Europe.

The report disclosed that a total of 152 million dollars has been allocated to bolster the Turkish armed forces.

France Trails

Poles Lead In 'Spying' Box Score

Paris, Nov. 28 (NYHT).—The number of Frenchmen arrested in Poland has reached a total of 16 a Foreign Ministry spokesman said today.

France is taking an increasingly serious view of the mounting number of arrests.

It was disclosed today that French Ambassador Jean Baelen had said in a protest to the Polish Foreign Ministry: "May your governments reflect before irreparable acts are committed."

The French Ministry of the Interior said today its police action against Polish citizens in France are completed and that the matter is now in the hands of the Ministry of Justice. Josef Szczerbinski, Polish Vice Consul at Lille, is in prison in Paris, under indictment for "activities directed at the safety of the state."

Twenty-six other Poles have been deported since the present Franco-Polish diplomatic war began November 18 with the arrest by the Poles of Andre Simon Robineau, assistant attache to the French Consulate at Stettin.

Although the French have chalked up a large number of expulsions, the Poles are way ahead in the number of persons held. The figure of 16 given today represents an increase of 11 over the number reported yesterday by the French Embassy at Warsaw.

Davis Is Ousted By N. Y. Council

New York, Nov. 28 (AP).—Benjamin J. Davis, one of the 11 convicted leaders of American Communism, was ousted from the New York City Council today.

The council decided by a 15-0 vote that Davis forfeited his right to a council seat when he was convicted October 14 of conspiering to advocate violent overthrow of the United States Government.

The Negro councilman was defeated for reelection November 8.

British Meat Ration Boosted to 21 Cents

London, Nov. 28 (U.P.).—Food Minister John Strachey told the Commons today that beginning December 4, Britons can draw about 21 cents worth of meat a week instead of 18 cents as in the past.

"The increase will last for several weeks—well over the Christmas and New Year period," Strachey said.

Countess Wins Street-Fight Nod

Associated Press WIREPHOTO
MRS. RELLA FOWLER, 24, who says she's the Countess Orgrabyszewski, of Lithuania, was in court in Hollywood yesterday after a hair-pulling match on famed "Sunset Strip." Her opponent was blonde Ariel Ames, 26, a model. Mrs. Fowler said she lost her head when she saw the model walking down the street to meet Edward Fowler, 43, her estranged husband and scion of a wealthy Massachusetts paper manufacturing family. Edda Admits She Was Child Of Duce's Love

Rome, Nov. 28 (AP).—Countess Edda Ciano announced blandly today she was born many years before her father, Benito Mussolini, and her mother, Rachele Guidi, were married.

"For many years, unaware of being a bastard, I was happy and nobody ever thought to throw it in my face," Edda wrote in the first issue of Insieme (Together), the magazine of which she now is co-director.

"I was born of a long diet of salad and love * * *," she wrote in a sketch about her father. "My parents were poor and much in love. My father was a Socialist agitator and my mother a little peasant girl. They loved each other very much and one day they left together * * * the fact that they had not married before a mayor or priest did not bother them anyhow. Only much later they 'regularized' their position."

The article said Mussolini was married December 16, 1915. She did not give her own birth date. But if she had been born in wedlock, she would have been only 15 when she was married in 1930 to Count Galeazzo Ciano, who became Mussolini's Foreign Minister.

Edda's article was highly laudatory of the memory of Il Duce. He taught her, Countess Ciano wrote, "to despise the masses and to judge men and events apart from my passions or personal advantages."

India Will Get Third Loan, World Bank President Says

The World Bank's growing interest in Asia was pointed up yesterday in comments of its president, Eugene R. Black.

At a press conference, Black indicated that a third loan of the international bank to India would probably be closed within a month. He also said that the bank will shortly send out a new economic mission to study conditions in the Philippines, Thialand (Siam) and India.

Black acknowledged that this implied the "possibility" that some further loans were under consideration for India. India has already received two World Bank loans, in the amounts of 34 million and 10 million dollars earlier this fall. The new loan, for a steam power plant, is to be for 25 million dollars.

As a further indication of possible financial operations in the Orient by the bank, Black indicated that he expected both Indonesia and Pakistan to be made members of the bank. As such, they would then be eligible to seek loans.

In the Western Hemisphere area, Black said bank loans to El Salvador and Uruguay should be completed before the end of the year. He also noted that the bank has an economic mission in Brazil, soon to return, and that he is planning to send a mission to El Salvador, Guatamala, Nicaragua and Costa Rica.

Meantime, the Export-Import Bank announced yesterday a loan of $5,158,000 to Venezuela. It will be used to finance about 50 percent of a purchase of American electrical equipment. The International General Electric Co. will finance the other half.

The bank does not contemplate borrowing new money until at least the middle of next year, Black said. It still has, available for lending, some 313 million dollars, which is expected to meet all needs for several months.

Anti-Red World Labor Group May Invite Catholic Unions

By Jack Tait
NYHT News Service

London, Nov. 28. — The Free World Labor Conference got off to a rocky start today over the issue of inviting all Catholic trade unions in Western Europe to affiliate with the new labor international being constructed here in opposition to the Communist-dominated World Federation of Trade Unions.

The conference, representing nearly all organized labor except that under Communist control, opened its 10-day meeting fearful that the delicate issue of the Catholic unions would cause trouble. The delegates had not long to wait. Shortly after the usual speeches of welcome were out of the way this morning, David Dubinsky of New York, president of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union, took the floor and raised the point.

Green, Reuther Approve

Speaking with the approval of William Green, president of the A. F. of L., and of Walter Reuther, ranking C. I. O. delegate present, Dubinsky asked that a special committee be appointed to look into the matter of the Catholic unions which had not been invited.

A compromise satisfactory to the Americans was effected and the draft standing orders were amended to allow for further invitations.

The issue popped up again this afternoon when Giulio Pastore, head of the Italian Confederation of Free Workers, which has a strong right-wing Catholic bloc, told the conference bluntly that his organization would "be obliged to review its relationship" with the new international unless snubbed unions were invited.

Discussion Closed

Chairman Paul Finet of Belgium, insisted however, that the discussion on this point was closed, and that the matter must be left to the credentials committee.

The American delegation, it is understood, is insisting on the representation of all small Catholic unions in Western Europe to strengthen the anti-Communist nature of the new international.

European Socialist groups, including the British, are not sympathetic with the splinter Catholic groups, which are to be found in Belgium, Holland, Switzerland, Luxembourg and Denmark.

Colombia Liberals Eye Army

Bogota, Colombia, Nov. 28 (AP).—Colombia's Liberals, who boycotted the election of a Conservative president yesterday, indicated their hope rests in the army.

Nearly-complete returns published by the Conservatives today showed their unopposed party boss, 60-year-old Laureano Gomez, had been elected by the largest vote ever cast for one party in Colombia. The returns gave him 956,315 votes, permitting the Conservatives to claim they are now the majority party.

The Liberals, long the majority party, pouled 937,600 votes when they won both houses of Congress in the last legislative elections in June. Before the balloting Sunday, observers believed 600,000 would be a respectable vote for Gomez.

The Liberals withdrew their candidate, Dario Echandia, boycotted the election and called for a general strike when the government declared a state of siege nearly three weeks ago.

The hope for army support was voiced yesterday at the funeral of Vicente Echandia, brother of the Liberal leader. Vicente was the victim of police fire Friday night.

Senator Carlos Lleras Restrepo told the crowd to avoid clashes with the army. "That institution is our hope for salvation of the country," he said.

'Dumb' Rabies Case Found in Kensington Area

Montgomery County health authorities yesterday reported the discovery of a rabid dog Thanksgiving Day in the Kensington area.

The animal was afflicted with "dumb" rabies, Dr. V. L. Ellicott, county health officer, said, which paralyzes the dog so that it cannot transmit the disease to others. Because of this, he said, it is hoped that this case will be the only one in the area.

The location of the case is outside of the quarantine area set up November 15 following the reported biting of nine children by a rabid dog in the Four Corners section of Silver Spring.

Chambers In Doubt On Paper's Source

New York, Nov. 28 (NYHT).—Whittaker Chambers testified today that one of the Government documents which he obtained for a Communist spy ring in 1938 might have come from the late Harry Dexter White, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, and not from Alger Hiss.

This was the first time White had ever been publicly accused of transmitting Government documents to Communist spies, although Elizabeth Bentley, self-styled former Communist spy, told the House Un-American Activities Committee in August, 1948, that White was one of her 30 "sources of information."

Chambers at that time said that White was a member of an "elite" group in the Washington Communist underground. White denied both charges under oath to the committee, and died two days later of a heart attack.

Break in Story

Until his sudden reference to White under cross-examination today, Chambers had stuck to his story that the document in question, along with 64 other pages of typewritten matter, four handwritten memoranda, and a set of Government documents represented on two strips of microfilm, had been given to him by Hiss.

Hiss is on trial in United States District Court on an indictment alleging that he perjured himself when he swore he had never given any of these documents to Chambers.

The unheralded change in Chambers' story was the climax of more than three days of cross-examination by Claude B. Cross, chief defense counsel. Fifteen minutes later Cross returned the witness to Assistant United States Attorney Thomas F. Murphy for re-direct examination. It was then 4:30 p.m., and Judge Henry W. Goddard adjourned the court until 10:30 a. m. Tuesday.

First in Series of 54

A little after 4 p. m. Cross showed Chambers Document No. 1 of a series of 54 numbered "spy papers." Chambers identified on it the Government watermark, which distinguished it from the other papers in the series, all of which were on plain, unwatermarked paper. Then he said:

Q. (Cross) Where did you get that? A. (Chambers) I believe that was given to me by Mr. Hiss.

Q. (Loudly and roughly) Are you sure you got that from Mr. Hiss? A. I am not that sure.

Q. You are not sure whether you got that from Mr. Hiss or not? A. I am not absolutely sure at all.

Then Cross read from sworn testimony given by Chambers on February 17, 1949, in which he said he was sure it was given to him by Hiss. The dialogue went on:

Q. Your memory about it is less certain now than it was on February 17, 1949? A. That is quite correct.

Q. You are not sure whether you got that paper from Mr. Hiss? A. That is right.

Q. When Mr. Murphy introduced these papers in evidence in this trial you said you got them all from Mr. Hiss? A. That is correct. A. You didn't qualify that in any way? A. As I looked at it here just now it occurred to me that that is the kind of work that Harry Dexter White used to do.

Q. Now for the first time you have suggested that Harry Dexter White may have given you this paper? A. That is quite correct.

Q. And Harry White is dead? A. That is also true.

Q. When did you tell Mr. Murphy that? A. The thought just crossed my mind now.

Document Not Read

Document No. 10 was not read to the jury today, although it was read at a late stage of Hiss's first trial, which ended in a hung jury last July 8. The document is a report on development in the Sino-Japanese military situation from September 2, 1937, to January 3, 1938. A document expert at the first trial testified that it appeared to have been typed in a Government office, and was not typed on the same typewriter as the others in the set. White at that time was a monetary specialist in the Treasury Department.

To finish his cross-examination Cross read previous sworn testimony in which Chambers had said that some of the microfilmed documents might have come from Henry Julian Wadleigh instead of Hiss. Wadleigh testified in the first trial that he gave some unidentified documents to Chambers, but not those on the microfilms in evidence. Chambers allowed his prior testimony on this point to stand unchanged.

Earlier Cross had enlivened on otherwise dull and repetitious day by introducing a "Mr. X" and "Mr. Y" into his questions. These were persons named by Chambers in prior testimony and statements to the FBI and Ray Murphy, State Department Security Officer. Their names were withheld at the request of the State Department.

It appeared from Chambers' testimony that he had described these persons as Communist agents in the State Department in 1937 and 1938, and that he had made inconsistent statements about them on different occasions.

Dr. Carl Binger, psychiatrist who listened to Chambers' testimony during the first trial, appeared in the courtroom today and sat behind the press seats. Asked if he would testify at this trial he said: "I can't say—because I don't know."

Fused Quartz Is Used For Lenses, Prisms

New York, Nov. 28 (AP).—Lenses and prisms made of fused quartz instead of crystal quartz were among the exhibits today at the opening of the semi-annual Chemical Industries Exposition here.

Developed by Hanovia Chemical and Manufacturing Co. of Newark, N. J., the fused quartz optical products were said to be of great importance because of the diminishing supply of quartz crystals of optical quality.

'Biased' Jury Charge Leads to Reversal

Church Studying 'Miracle' Cure

HERBERT THERIOT,
of Franklin, La., was operated on in April, 1948, and, when it was discovered gangrene had set in, was told his case was beyond medical care. Theriot said he then turned to prayer and placed a religious relic on the wound. He now reports he is fully recovered and representatives of the Pope are investigating to determine if there has been a miracle

The United States Court of Appeals yesterday reversed a District Court jury's guilty verdict, holding that the judge's instructions amounted to an opinion the defendant was guilty.

Reversal was won by Stephen Patrick Sullivan, 33, who has been convicted of forging and lettering a prescription for morphine here in November, 1948. He was placed on three years probation by Federal Judge Eugene Rice and is now in a Federal hospital in Springfield, Mo.

Judge Rice of Oklahoma presided at the trial of Sullivan as a visiting judge.

One of the sections of Judge Rce's instruction giving the Appeals Court "foremost concern" read:

"He admits that he offered it (the prescription) to the drug store. I will tell you, as a matter of law, that is uttering and publishing . . . There is not any direct proof that he intended to get the morphine, except that you might infer he did when he presented it. He says he did not. Now, does that constitute an intent to defraud the Government? In my judgment it does . . ."

Appeals Court Judge James M. Proctor commented that "as intent was the vital issue the statement was tantamount to expressing the court's judgment that the defendant was guilty.

"The expression of such an opinion goes beyond the privilege of a judge to comment fairly on the facts. Comment upon evidence must be distinguished from expression of an opinion upon an ultimate issue determinative of guilt or innocence. The ill effect cannot be offset by instructing the jurors that the court's opinion is not binding on them and that they are the sole judges of the facts . . . The influence of the trial judge on the jury is of great weight and his lightest word or intimation is received with deference and may prove controlling."

"We cannot escape the conclusion," Justice Proctor wrote, "that there was prejudicial error. Accordingly, the judgment (of Judge Rice's jury) is reversed."

Sullivan contended at the trial he did not intend to obtain the drug, but rather intended to get himself arrested to receive medical treatment for a painful nerve condition (trigeminal neuralgia).

He offered testimony that he had notified a Narcotics Bureau agent of his intent to forge and pass the prescription and that he was arrested, as a result, as he handed the prescription to the drug clerk.

It was not clear last night whether Sullivan will be freed as result of the Appeals Court decision or whether the Government will proceed further in the case.

Louis Jongbloet was attorney for Sullivan in the appeal.

bar was tuned in to a station broadcasting horse-race results.

Harry Galer of the District License Bureau produced records to show that Kopel was listed as co-owner of Hammel's Restaurant.

Found Gaming Evidence

Deputy Marshal Edgar J. McCloy testified that he had arrested Kopel and Plummer on March 25. He said he had seized scratch sheets, racing forms, and the radio as evidence. He said he had found a numbers slip on Kopel when he was arrested.

Assistant United States Attorney Arthur J. McLaughlin is prosecuting the case.

Judge Richmond B. Keech is presiding.

Alvin Newmyer, representing Kopel, said he would produce "seven or eight witnesses" when the trial resumes today.

T. Emmett McKenzie, representing Plummer, said he had several character witnesses. In his opening remarks to the jury, McKenzie said Plummer did not take the bets, merely arranged for the bets to be taken.

Freight Rate Increase Proposed for Britain

London, Nov. 28 (AP).—Increases in freight rates on the government-owned railways and other carriers, ranging up to 16 2-3 percent, were proposed by the Labor Government today.

Britain is facing tremendous losses on its nationalized transport system. Alfred Barnes, Minister of Transport, estimated it will lose more than fifty-six million dollars this year. Unless the rates are raised, he said, the loss will be even greater in 1950.

The increases would raise railway freight rates 16 2-3 percent; dock charges on coastwise vessels and other cargoes, 20 percent; other dock charges, 14 2-7 percent; canal charges, 16 2-3 percent.

Car Dealer Guilty; Faces 140 Years

James W. Sacchino, 49, former used-car dealer at 43 Massachusetts ave. nw., was found guilty last night by a District jury on 15 counts of forging, uttering and embezzling some $12,070 from 13 customers.

Sacchino faces a maximum penalty of a 140-year sentence and a $12,000 fine. His bond of $5000 was continued by District Judge James R. Kirkland pending sentencing.

The 10-woman, two-man jury deliberated about three hours, handing down the verdict at 8:50 p. m.

Assistant United States Attorney William McKinley offered testimony during the six-day trial that Sacchino forged one certificate of title to a car; uttered two forged certificates of title; embezzled money received for cars he sold for owners in eight instances, and in four instances kept cars turned over to him to be sold.

Defense Attorneys Joseph C. Turco and Norman S. Bowles, jr., contended Sacchino had been having financial difficulties, intended to square accounts with the customers and in some cases had done so. They also maintained he was not an agent for the customers, as charged, but a commission merchant, or factor.

One of the cars Sacchino was charged with keeping was a $1450 model belonging to Thomas Basyn, executive director of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development and financial counselor to the Belgian Embassy. Of 27 original counts in the indictment only 15 were presented to the jury.

The dealer's license of Sacchino, who traded as the Plaza Auto Sales, Inc., was ordered revoked by the Commissioners last May.

U. S. Slot Machine Bribes Estimated At $400,000,000

St. Paul, Nov. 28 (U.P.).—American racketeers every year spend 400 million dollars bribing public officers for protection of slot machine rackets, Dayton D. McKean, chairman of the Dartmouth College department of government, said today.

McKean told 250 National Municipal League delegates that a special study in California has shown that slot machine operators pay 10 to 20 percent of their gross profit for protection and graft. He said the gross take in the national slot-machine racket probably is two billion dollars a year.

"It is evident that 400 million dollars is being spent annually by racketeers for bribes and corruption of public officers," McKean said.

courts, written instructions would be helpful to me. It is always possible to reduce legal ideas to simple every-day English. People tend to become confused and terrified of legalisms," he said.

The question of getting juries to understand fully their duty and the issues in cases has long been recognized by jurists. But there is no uniform standard of instruction, judges and courts differing in method. Almost all give only oral instructions.

Currently, the American Bar Association has a program pointing out the necessity of spelling out in simple language the matters left to the deliberations of jurymen.

The problem was brought to a head last week in the "Snags" Lewis gambling case in District Court. After hours of deliberation, the jury submitted six questions to the judge for clarficaton.

One of the jurors asked Judge Matthew F. McGure whether the case was to be "decided by law and law alone." Another asked said that it might cause the jurymen to argue over the instructions whether writing numbers in the District is a violation of the lottery laws.

Both these questions had been explicity covered by Judge McGuire in his oral instructions to them, but he proceeded to spell out the answers again. The jury was finally discharged when it announced it was unable to agree on a verdict.

Declining to be quoted for publication, several of the District Court judges privately have said that they do not believe giving the juries written instructions will be practicable.

One jurist said that such procedure was directly contrary to the common-law practice which is in force here. Another said that it would be time-consuming. A third and neglect the factual issues of the case.

None could cite any law prohibiting the use of written instructions.

The law says generally that jurors must be able to read, write and understand English.

Nevertheless, the Jury Commission attempts to get intelligent persons on juries. To this end, they send out questionnaires and in doubtful cases hold personal interviews with prospective jurors.

How MEAT serves everybody!

WE who sit at Uncle Sam's boarding-house table are pretty lucky. The meat is served often, and there is enough to allow every man, woman and child of us an average of 146 pounds per person per year.

But our country has its eye on an even higher goal—173 pounds of meat per person by 1955.

More meat means more than extra chops on the plate. It means more go for a growing America.

It means more of the important by-products—more leather for more shoes, more vital medical products your doctor needs to help restore health to the ill.

It means more stability for the farm family whose most important source of income comes from the sale of meat animals. It means steady pay checks for the man who processes your meat at the packing plant and for the man in the store around the corner who is in business to make your meat readily available.

Did you know that meat meant so much to so many people?

The People

The vigor and productivity of the American people are based on a diet built around meat. Its nourishment helps the mother to have healthier babies, the child to have sturdy growth, the man to be at his best.

The Soil

The bounty of our farms, the industrial life of our cities and well-spread tables everywhere stem from the fertility of our soil. Animal agriculture, based on a use of range and pasture land, plays an important part in restoring and enriching our soil resources.

The Nation

Meat animals convert grass on vast areas of land into food for people. This land otherwise would be useless. Cottonseed and soybean meals, sugar beet pulp and many other commercial by-products also can be counted upon as food resources when fed to meat animals.

THE MEAT TEAM... From farm... to plant... to store

America's meat needs are served by 5,000,000 farmers and ranchers, 300,000 skilled workmen in 4,000 meat packing companies and 1,000,000 meat-men in retail stores. Through their teamwork, meat moves from farm to table at a lower service cost than almost any other food.

FAO Votes 30-28 For Site in Italy

eral blank ballots. Counting the blank ballots in the total required a vote of 30 for victory. However, after this ruling was thrown out, Italy obtained the 30 ballots previously required.

Its fight directed and spearheaded by Great Britain and France, Italy took the lead for moving FAO headquarters from Washington in the first ballot.

Its proposal to put FAO into the buildings erected in Rome in the days of the League of Nations for the never-successful International Institute of Agriculture, was supported by Pakistan, New Zealand—in fact, most of the British Commonwealth of Nations, including Canada.

In addition to the old IIA buildings, Rome offered quarters in a building built by Mussolini in the days of his and Italy's imperialistic ambitions, for the ministry of African Colonists. It hasn't been needed for that job since 1944.

Great Britain was responsible for forcing a renewal of the voting battle after a short intermission last night—an intermission that came after one of the most hectic fights ever seen in an international gathering in this city.

The Philippines delegate had proposed a recess until this morning. The move immediately was attacked by the British, who saw in the tiring delegates the promise of a victory during the night. The British even tried to amend the motion to adjourn—and succeeded in getting it debated for an hour in spite of the fact that such a motion is not debatable.

Finally, all rules of order thrown out the window, the Conference voted to adjourn, and then, after adjourning, voted to reconvene an hour and a half later.

The developments that led to Italy's triumphant early lead over the United States were accompanied by some hectic debates and arguments as well as strange political bed-fellows. They saw the Ireland delegate, James Dillon, battling alongside the British to defeat the United States. They also saw Italy, offering Rome as a site, overwhelmingly beat Denmark's offer of a headquarters in Copenhagen and Switzerland turned down. The Swiss had offered three locations but at best got only three votes in the balloting.

Votes for U. S. Were Divided

To start with, the opponents of the United States under British leadership, got the vote for locations in this country divided. They succeeded in putting the American locations into two divisions—those in Washington being designated as offers from the United States, and those in New York as being proposed by the United Nations.

The balloting, which provided for dropping the low contestant on each ballot, proceeded as follows:

	Bal. 1	Bal. 2	Bal. 3	Bal. 4
Country.
Denmark	2	..	..	..
Italy	24	28	29	29
Switzerland	3	2	..	..
United States	15	21	25	27
United Nations	13	6	3	..

Three nations, Paraguay, Peru and Poland, were listed as non-voting. On the first three ballots, Czechoslovakia, which apparently Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan that this country was planning to put up seven million dollars to build the headquarters in whichever location was chosen, the British-led group voted to list the two, thus dividing the votes for sites in America.

In spite of explanations by the Conference Chairman Oscar Gans, Cuban ambassador, ruled that 30 votes were necessary for a majority of the votes cast. His ruling was assailed by Dillion, the Irish delegate, joined by several others.

30 Votes Needed for Choice

Because of the two blank ballots didn't want to vote for either the United States or Italy, cast a blank ballot. On the fourth it was joined by Hungary which until that time had voted for the United Nations.

FAO Payroll Factor In Fight Over Site

Probably the leading factor in the fight for the site for the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organigation (FAO) is the payroll for the location chosen.

This year the FAO has employed in Washington about 600 employes, with a payroll estimated at between $2,500,000 and $2,750,000 a year.

The British delegation has argued that by moving this payroll to a "soft currency" country such as Italy, the cost of operation could be reduced about a million dollars a year.

AEC Will Build Atomic Fuel Pile

for peaceful power or wartime bomb, can be extracted from the reactor and separated by chemical methods.

Dr. Hafstad said it was not expected that the first breeder reactor would convert all the uranium to plutonium, and thus multiply by 140 times the amount of useful fissionable materials. This is the theoretical top, not the presently practical goal.

The AEC also announced yesterday it would start work next year on another type of reactor which is expected to yield "significant amounts" of electric power. Officials also said that by 1952 the AEC should be building the first model of an atomic engine designed to propel ships.

. . . retiring chairman

At the press conference, Lilienthal was drawn into a discussion of the controversial television broadcast on November 1 of Senator Edwin C. Johnson (D., Colo.). Johnson said in that program that the AEC is now producing bombs "six times" more powerful than that used at Nagasaki, and is making "considerable progress" on a superbomb "100 times" more powerful.

Johnson has insisted that this was not a disclosure of classified material. He has declared that The Washington Post, which first printed his remarks on the television show in detail, is leagued with Lilienthal in a campaign to transmit to Great Britain the secrets of the superbomb.

Yesterday Lilienthal only grinned when he was asked by a reporter if he was "engaged in such a nefarious plot." He said he was soon to become "disengaged." The reference was to his announced resignation from the AEC, effective December 31.

Says Committee is Informed

Lilienthal declined to give direct answers to questions on whether Johnson disclosed secret information. But in reponse to repeated inquiries on the subject, Lilienthal said this much:

1. The Joint Congressional Committee on Atomic Energy, of which Johnson is a member, is "completely" informed on atomic weapons development, though it has not been told the size of the United States A-bomb stockpile nor the rate of production of fissionable material.

2. All information on atomic weapons is classified as secret. There has been no declassification of such information.

3. No official announcement has yet been made on the comparative degree of power of the new atomic weapons tested last year at Eniwetok. President Truman said only that they were a "substantial improvement" over those used against Japan. This phrase was purposely used to give only a general indication.

4. "The television broadcast by Senator Johnson involves questions the discussion of which, so far as the AEC is concerned, cannot be carried on without serious involvement of national security."

The deductions which can be made from these replies are that Johnson had reason to know what he was talking about and that what he was talking about was classified information.

Lilienthal expressed his "personal view" that more cooperation between United States, British and Canadian scientists would be in our own interest, and that it would be mutually helpful in forwarding atomic research.

But, he pointed out, other factors were involved. He declined to comment further, since negotiations on the subject were presently under way.

Conferences Resumed

He was referring to conferences which were resumed yesterday, after a recess since last summer, between American, British and Canadian representatives on the subject of allocation of uranium ore and sharing information.

The conferences yesterday were reported by officials as "technical" and no detailed informtion on their progress was forthcoming.

On the question of secrecy regulations connected with atomic matters and applicable in the United States, Lilienthal commented that some revisions might be useful.

He said that secrecy concerning truly vital matters—weapons and national security—might be better enforced if the field where secrecy was required was narrowed to just such matters. If secrecy is required over a much broader range of topics, he implied, it is harder to attain security in areas where secrecy is most essential.

He hinted, but did not state, that the AEC might ask Congress next session to revise the security provisions of the present atomic energy law.

Monty and Eisenhower Talk About 'Weather'

New York, Nov. 28 (AP).—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery today visited Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower, president of Columbia University.

"We talked about the weather," Montgomery said after the 45-minute visit. "When the weather is bad you want an umbrella—a military umbrella."

Eisenhower declined to comment.

Bishop Urges Sterilization for British Unfit

Birmingham, England, Nov. 28 (AP).—A Church of England bishop urged Britain today to sterilize the unfit and make birth control a national policy.

Dr. E. W. Barnes, Bishop of Birmingham, estimated "6 to 10 percent" of the British population is "mentally Below par" and should be sterilized. He said unless this is done, Britain will become dangerously overcrowded. He called the British Isles "the paupers of the English-speaking world."

The bishop told the Birmingham Rotary Club the Labor Government's welfare state has made the problem more pressing than ever.

"We must get rid of the slovenly, vicious, idle wasters of the community," Dr. Barness declared. "Unfortunately, the welfare state is only too likely to encourage their increase."

"We must limit immigration," he said. "We must educate our citizens to have smaller families; we must have medically controlled sterilization of the grosser forms of unfitness."

Dr. Barnes said many Britons are coming around to the view that there should be medically controlled euthanasia—mercy death—for defective babies. He added:

"At least 90 percent of feeblemindedness is inherited. A time is quickly coming when sterilization of the unfit will have to be essential in our social organization."

Lonely Hearts Killers Sentenced to Life

Dover, Del., Nov. 28 (AP).—Mrs. Inez Brennan and her 16-year-old son, Robert, convicted of murder in Delaware's lonely hearts killing, today were sentenced to life imprisonment.

The plump brunette widow and her son were convicted of the shotgun slaying of Wade N. Wooldridge, 67, Stone Mountain, Va., carpenter.

Jap Takes 15th Bride And 20,000 Yen, Too

Tokyo, Nov. 28 (AP).—Handsome H. Moriguchi, 31, has been married 15 times in the last 14 months.

Everything went along smoothly until he disappeared with 20,000 yen belonging to his fifteenth bride. That made her father angry and he went to police.

Moriguchi readily admitted his 15 trips to the altar. But he asked police for time in which to list his brides' names. He said there were so many he could not remember them all.

Police promised him lots of time.

Towson Man Uninjured In Forced Landing

Woodbridge, Conn., Nov. 28 (U.P.).—R. L. Daniel, 34, of Towson, Md., escaped injury today when he landed his single-seater type plane on the busy Wilbur Cross parkway.

State police said Daniel's plane developed motor trouble and he was forced down on the highway, near the new West Rock tunnel. Daniel reportedly was on a pleasure flight from New J—ersey to New Haven.

Court Told Bridges Paid Dues To Reds

San Francisco, Nov. 28 (AP).—The witness who, in the Government's words, "packed a Sunday punch," testified at the Harry Bridges perjury trial today.

Here's what John Schomaker, self-described former Communist, said:

He was present when an application for membership into the Communist Party was given Bridges.

He and another man delivered the application to Sam Darcy, a Communist Party leader here.

Bridges paid Communist dues regularly to at least three different secretaries of the party here.

Bridges made a speech at a meeting in 1938 soliciting membership in the Communist Party.

Accused of Lying in '45

The CIO longshore leader is accused of lying when he obtained his citizenship papers in 1945 by denying he was a member or ever had been in the Communist Party.

Also on trial are two other CIO longshore officials, J. R. Robertson and Henry Schmidt. They are accused of conspiracy to aid Bridges.

The day was filled with continuous objections by Vincent Hallinan, defense attorney, to the questioning of Schomaker by chief Government Prosecutor F. Joseph Donohue.

Schomaker told this story:

Bridges met with a man named Bruce B. Jones and Schomaker in a Market st. restaurant late in 1933. Jones put the $64 question to Bridges. He asked, 'When are you going to join the party, Harry?' "

But "Bridges acted kind of coy like he wanted to be coaxed a little bit," and Bridges asked what party name he should use.

Jones suggested using a familiar name, such as Bridges' mother's name, so he wouldn't forget it.

Testimony Stricken

Schomaker then left the restaurant for 15 or 20 minutes. When he came back, Jones was on the way out alone. Jones showed Schomaker "an application to join the Communist Party." Schomaker said he recognized the handwriting on the application as that of Bridges, but the testimony was struck from the record.

(Hallinan objected on the ground an expert was needed to testify on handwriting. He was upheld by Judge Harris).

Fighting Keynote

Murray Bids IUE Keep Alert to Reds

Philadelphia, Nov. 28 (AP).—CIO President Philip Murray today keynoted the founding convention of the new CIO Electricial Workers Union with an hour-long blast at communism.

Red-faced and angry, Murray lashed out at pro-Communist labor unions. He pledged the full weight of the CIO to aid the new organization which officially calls itself a right wing union.

Murray served notice that other left wing unions may be ousted from the CIO, as was the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America (UE).

It was the expulsion of the UE early this month which brought the new union—the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers (IUE) into being.

Murray made it clear to the 400 delegates to the convention that there is no place for communism in American trade unionism and warned the new union its chief enemy in the months ahead would be "unadulterated communism."

He denounced the UE as a "Communist nest." Its leaders, he said, forever boasted of their militancy. But actually, Murray shouted, "They are the greatest band of cowardly knaves that ever existed."

For years, the UE gave shelter to "any Communist renegade" that came along, Murray asserted. For nine years, he said, he heard leaders of the UE attending CIO meetings support Russia's foreign policy and all that Russia stood for. Not once, he said, did he ever hear even "mild criticism" of Russian policy.

But now, he went on, the day has gone when he will have to listen to the sort of thing he heard from UE leaders, because the UE is out of the CIO.

And, he added with emphatic pauses, that day has gone, not only so far as the UE is concerned "but for other unions affiliated with the CIO—but (affiliated) not for too long."

He did not name the unions.

Murray told his listeners to expect continuing opposition from UE leaders. They'll go to the courts to hamper you, he said, adding they'll use the Taft-Hartley Act, if necessary, and they'll employ the one million dollars to $1,300,000 they have in their treasury in any way they figure will aid them.

Murray's attack drew a reply from Albert J. Fitzgerald, UE president.

He called the new IUE a 'company union in the electrical industry' and declared that "for a considerable period now the UE has been carrying on a two-front fight, against union-hating employers on one hand and against the bankrupt policies of the CIO on the other."

Slight Living-Cost Index Dip Laid to Drop in Meat Prices

The cost of living dipped a bit in the September 15-October 15 period, due chiefly to a drop in meat prices, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported yesterday.

Nationally, the BLS consumers' price index declined 0.6 percent in the month, to 168.5, compared with the 1935-39 average of 100. The latest figure is 3 percent below a year ago but 26 percent higher than June, 1946, the end of OPA.

At the same time, the Federal Reserve Board reported the Nation's industrial production has "rebounded" sharply after the steel and coal strikes. That index slid from 174 in September to 166 during the October shutdowns. A year ago in October the index, based on the prewar average, stood at 195. This November figure will be released next month.

Retail food prices were down 1.8 percent nationally and the same amount in Washington. More-than-seasonal drops in fresh fruit and vegetable prices plus the long expected seasonable drop in pork prices were chiefly responsible.

Nationally, pork dropped almost 9 percent in the month with pork chops down 13½ percent. Pork chops in Washington stores dropped 13.9 percent, selling now from 55 to 85 cents a pound.

Coffee prices had not begun to rise when the BLS figures were made up. Local prices were quoted at from 42 to 61 cents a pound. Today most are in the 70 to 90 cent range. This increase will show in the next BLS computation.

GM Wages Will Remain Fixed for Three Months

Detroit, Nov. 28 (AP).—Wages of 355,000 General Motors employes will stay at their present levels for the next three months with no significant change in the cost of living index, GM announced today.

Under the corporation's contract with the CIO Auto Workers, wages and salaries of eligible employes are adjusted quarterly in line with the rise or fall in the official Bureau of Labor Statistics Consumer Price Index.

points at 9.2 cents a pound. It also took a contract for 2000 pounds of bread a month for Fort Hayes, Ohio, at 10.4 cents, while charging Columbus grocers 13½ cents.

Grean said that many times the Government asked the bakers to take their business as an "accomodation." He said his company this year will make less than half a cent a pound on its bread. This will amount to about 15 million dollars, he replied in answer to Gillette.

Against this retailers make from 2 to 3 cents a loaf. Grean said his company's profits are held down by competition, mentioning particularly Atlantic and Pacific Co. The latter, he says, doesn't have the selling costs and, delivery charges commercial bakers have to meet.

Stassen Asks Aid To Education Only In Southern Area

Houston, Tex., Nov. 28 (AP).—Harold E. Stassen tonight said Federal aid to education should be available only to Southern States.

Stassen, president of the University of Pennsylvania and a national Republican leader, urged the Nation's educators to re-examine current programs for requesting Federal funds for every school district in the United States.

He spoke before the opening general session of the 54th annual convention of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

Stassen placed the Nation-wide average educational expenditure per pupil at $140, but dropped the figure to $80 for Southern States.

"This sharp difference reflects not only an educational but also an economic and social situation," he said. "It is one for which the entire Nation bears a portion of responsibility."

When better automobiles are built BUICK will build them

Far from Home but ready for fun!

HOME is far behind you—two hundred, maybe three hundred miles.

You step from your Buick, greet your friends—and it takes nothing more than a quick change and brush-up to make you ready for a full, gay evening.

It hasn't always been so. Too often driving strain has taken a toll that left you too fagged out for fun.

But now Dynaflow is here. Either standard equipment or available at reasonable extra cost on every Buick built.

And Dynaflow's happy users will tell you this means far more than fewer hand and foot movements in driving.

You'll be surprised at how it frees your mind while you're behind the wheel, now that you have no clutch-pedal pushing or gearshifting to think of.

And you'll be delighted at how Dynaflow smooths and softens your entire trip. Cloaks the whole day in a sort of liquid "sweetness," free of direct gear harshness, yet full of quick response to your treadle foot.

You seem to flow over the highway, the miles reeling off smooth as ribbon from a spool. You really feel the difference—in the restedness you know at journey's end.

Naturally, you can't get all this from a single demonstration. But you can get enough to give you an idea. And you can learn how quickly you can put yourself behind a Dynaflow wheel—and how easily from the financial standpoint.

For your own sake, see your Buick dealer right away, will you?

Rent Curb End Bid By Lusk Rebuffed

Rufus S. Lusk, president of the Washington Taxpayers Association, yesterday called on District Rent Administrator Robert G. Cogswell not to press for renewal of rent control here. Cogswell promptly declined to comply with Lusk's request.

Lusk, strong opponent of local rent control in recent years, contended housing figures, rooming house vacancies and classified ads for rentals prove that "today with housing, as with everything else, it's a buyers' market."

In his open letter to Cogswell, Lusk said "it would be a wise and proper thing for you to publicly announce that there is no longer any necessity for the renewal of this act since the emergency has passed or certainly will have been passed seven months from now" when local rant control expires on June 30, 1950.

Cogswell's reply was brief. "I don't agree the shortage has passed at all. And if he wants any proof, let him try to find an apartment in the city at any reasonable rent," he declared.

'Compulsion' by Rep. Thomas Alleged As Ex-Secretary Reveals Her Defense Line

there came a time when Miss Campbell went "voluntarily" to the Department of Justice and told all she knew about the case.

U. S. District Judge Alexander Holtzoff interrupted Fitzpatrick with the comment that argument was reserved for the final summing up before the jury, and not supposed to be made in the opening outline of evidence the defense will present.

Fitzpatrick told the jurors that Miss Campbell, an elderly woman dressed in black, would take the stand in her own defense. She would admit, he said, that she did make the arrangements to place her niece and maid on Thomas' payroll just as the Government charges in its indictments.

But her motive, he exclaimed, was a different matter. It was no conspiracy to defraud, she would tell the jury. She "might have" just wanted to keep her job.

Miss Campbell, her face white, strained and set in hard lines, sat only 3 or 4 feet from her co-fendent whose trial, along with furnished.

She never turned her head, however, to glance toward Thomas. The New Jersey Congressman, who still retains his seat in the House, appeared poised and in fair health, although prolonged illness in the hospital had several times caused postponement of the trial. Thomas appeared 30 pounds thinner, and less ruddy in complexion than when he wielded the gavel over turbulent sessions of his storm-ridden House committee.

Columnist Drew Pearson, first to publish Miss Campbell's "kick-back" charges, was an early morning courtroom spectator.

Mrs. Thomas, an attractive gray-haired brunette, remained at her husband's side except when the trial was actually in progress, when she took a seat in the front row reserved for spectators.

William H. Collins, chief counsel for Thomas, reserving his defense, passed over the opportunity to make an opening statement to the jury. Thus neither the Government nor the attorney for Miss Campbell were given any clew to what lines the New Jersey Congressman's attorney intended to follow in asking the jury to free his client.

Harris & Ewing
MISS HELEN CAMPBELL
. . . former Secretary

In a rapid-fire presentation to the jury Fay said the Government would produce documents and other evidence to prove Thomas guilty of working out a scheme to defraud the Government by getting payroll kickbacks from employes not actually working.

Fay said evidence would be presented to show that from 1940 to 1945 Thomas and Miss Campbell conspired to have Miss Campbell's niece, then Myra Midkiff, and later Arnette Minor, Miss Campbell's maid, put on Thomas' payroll. Miss Midkiff, who is now Mrs. Rean D. Chilson, was most reluctant to consent to this arrangement, he said.

Clerk-Hire Forms Executed

Fay contended that Myra Midkiff execute clerk-hire forms at the Capitol to get on the payroll, then endorsed over her salary checks to Miss Campbell, in turn. Fay told the jury, drew her own personal check for the amount of the salary and sent it to Thomas' Allendale, N. J. bank to be deposited to his account.

During most of this time, Fay said, Miss Midkiff was employed three days a week by a local patent medicine firm and the rest of the time kept house for Miss Campbell and Miss Campbell's father. She did no work at the Capitol, he stressed.

Payroll Photostats Shown

As first prosecution witness, the Government called R. F. Martin, chief clerk of the General Accounting Office. He identified certified photostatic copies of Thomas's payroll between 1940 and 1948 as well as a number of checks and vouchers.

Then the Government presented J. Crawford Shanks, assistant disbursing clerk of the House of Representatives, who brought further documentary evidence dealing with Thomas' payroll.

Choosing the jury took far less time than is frequently consumed in major trials. One Government worker was challenged by the defense when it was disclosed he was employed by the Central Intelligence Agency. Another prospective juror was excused when he said he had breakfast several times a week with one of the defense counsel, and might be prejudiced.

On the jury are: Florence M. Aikman, 230 Rhode Island ave. ne., housewife; Charles F. McAleer, jr., 3018 M st. se., machinist, Naval Gun Factory; Charlie b. Raigns, 2015 15th st. nw., clerk, Navy Department; Harold K. Maffett, 2942 M st. se., clerk, Capital Transit; Florence M. Ford, 1630 16th st. se., secretary, Naval Gun Factory; Florence G. Alternates are George W. Thompson, 1160 Neal st. ne., clerk, General Accounting Office, and Mrs. Lugene E. W. Johnson, 2014 Georgia ave. nw., beautician.

Innocent Plea Filed by Farm Unit on Lobby

The National Farm. Committee, including two State agricultural commissioners, pleaded innocent yesterday to charges of violating the Federal lobbyist registration law.

The pleas were entered by counsel for Tom Linder, Georgia Commissioner of Agriculture; James E. McDonald, Texas Commissioner of Agriculture; Ralph W. Moore of Washington, Robert M. Harris of New York and the National Farm Committee, a Texas corporation.

At the arraignment in Federal District Court, Judge Alexander Holtzoff scheduled the trial for February 13. He gave the defendants until January 9 to file special motions.

The defendants are accused of lobbying in Congress for higher farm prices and of failing to comply with a 1946 law requiring lobbyists to register and file periodic reports of their receipts and expenditures.

The Government charged the individuals maintained personal trading accounts in the commodity markets and sought to profit by keeping farm prices up.

The National Farm Committee was described by the Government as a "front" for the individual defendants with the principal purpose of influencing legislation.

Pennsy Ending Job Furloughs For 21,000

Philadelphia, Nov. 28 (AP).—The Pennsylvania Railroad will recall between 21,000 to 22,000 furloughed employes about the end of the first week in December, a PRR spokesman says.

The full extent of the recall is dependent upon John L. Lewis' action at the expiration of the soft-coal truce December 1, he added.

Disclosure of the recall order was accompanied by another announcement that disclosed a net deficit of $4,527,904 for October, the sixth straight month that the PRR reported a loss.

The loss this year compares with an income of $8,810,200 in October, 1948.

The PRR said its deficit for the first 10 months of this year was $4,543,414. In the comparable period last year it reported a net income of $29,251,356.

The workers to be recalled will be mainly in maintenance, the PRR spokesman said, adding that there has been a sharp pickup in traffic volume since resumption of soft-coal mining and steel production.

The PRR had 123,000 employes a year ago. At the end of last month it reported 88,000 workers on its payroll.

Youth Admits Slashing Girl, Police Reveal

Newport News, Va., Nov. 28 (AP).—Warwick County police chief Leroy Woody said tonight that 20-year-old Jesse Wilmer Worley had admitted the ear-to-ear throat slashing of Millie M. Summs, pretty Warwick High School senior.

Previously, Worley had denied knowing anything about the attack or participating in it, Wood said, although he admitted he visited the girl last Friday evening shortly before she stumbled to a neighbor's house, unable to speak with her throat brutally cut.

Worley gave jealousy as his motive for cutting the girl's throat, the police chief said. He declined to give any further details of Worley's statement.

Samuel Gorman Heads Jewish Veterans' Post

Samuel Gorman, former commander of the Alexander B. Goode Post 541, was elected commander of the combined posts of 386 and 541 of the Jewish War Veterans last night.

Also elected were Ben Binder, senior vice commander; William Vogel, junior vice commander; Abe Gluckenhaus, quartermaster; Bernie Lebow, recording adjutant, and Phil Shayne, corresponding secretary.

Alexander B. Goode was one of the four chaplains who went down on a torpedoed transport during World War II.

Bidding for Body Of Gargantua Off: No Corpus Delicti

Baltimore, Nov. 28 (AP).—A controversy over who gets Gargantua's body was snuffed out today. No corpus delicti—at least none worth having.

Medical scientists at Johns Hopkins are working over the hulk of the 550-pound circus gorilla trying to find out what caused his death on Friday in Florida. They said in a preliminary report today it was undoubtedly double pneumonia.

The medical men said it is impossible for them to do their dissecting and preserve the skin. It will be no good for stuffing and mounting as a museum exhibit.

This will be a disappointment for Yale University's Peabody Museum and the State of Florida. Yale had been promised the body. Gov. Fuller Warren had suggested Gargantua ought to be in the State's Museum of the American Circus at Sarasota, circus winter headquarters.

Talmadge Shelves Plan For Senate

By Robert S. Allen

Gov. Herman Talmadge has decided to shelve his senatorial ambitions.

The Georgian will not attempt to unseat 71-year-old Senator Walter George next year, when he comes up for his sixth term.

Talmadge

Instead, "Hummon" will again run for Governor.

The decision was made at a secret meeting of Talmadge leaders last week. It was based on a political survey that indicated the son of the late "Ole Gene" could not defeat George. So rather than risk losing their hold on the State, it was determined young Talmadge should run for Governor again.

Even for that office, he won't have a push-over.

His administration has not been a resounding success. He lacks the color and dynamics of his turbulent father. And it is practically certain Herman will have powerful opposition.

Ellis Arnall, whose liberal gubernatorial regime is one of the brightest pages in Georgia's political history, has indicated he plans to tackle Herman.

If the race is confined to them, Georgia politicos are inclined to give Arnall the edge. In a two-man race, Talmadge will have to pull rabbits out of the hat to win.

Note: The elder Talmadge, although elected three times as Governor, was never able to achieve his ambition to go to the Senate. George defeated him in 1944.

An important blessed event is expected at Beltsville any minute.

It is the birth of a calf that Dr. O. E. Reed, chief of the Bureau of Dairy Industry and his coworkers say may change the dairying picture for the South.

Dr. Reed yesterday arranged for hourly reports from the labor and receiving rooms at the BDI barns to be phoned him at the Dairy Industries Society, International, at the Shoreham. He was prepared to rush to Beltsville to welcome the new arrival.

The expected calf is the first two-way cross in a breeding program to develop a dairy cattle strain that will be resistant to the hot weather in Southern States and still produce milk in amounts comparable to northern cattle.

Red Sindhi Father

Its mother is a cross between a Red Sindhi bull and a Jersey heifer. Its father is Red Sindhi. The Red Sindhi is the dairy strain of the Brahma cattle—the cattle of tropical India.

If the baby is a girl it will be subjected in about a month to the newly developed "udder palpitation test" to determine what kind of a milk producer it will ultimately become. This test indicates whether the mother will start right out to produce above 4000 pounds of milk a year—above-average production for a first-time mother.

The average milk production in India is about 900 pounds annually. The herd from which the Red Sindhi at Beltsville came averages above 4000 annually. They are being bred to cattle here whose records are from 12,000 to 15,000 pounds annually.

The experiments with the Red Sindhi have made Government dairyists optimistic. They started in 1946, when Admiral Nimitz joined with the Beltsville research station to push the matter ahead. Nimitz has four head of Sindhi—two young bulls and two heifers—flown out of India to Guam. Nimitz then loaded them on a Navy transport and shipped them, along with a lot of homecoming GIs to the United States. After several months in quarantine in New Jersey the animals were released to the experimenters.

Others "Expecting"

There are now 20 of the first-cross at Beltsville, several of the females "expecting." They are all Sindhi crossed with Jerseys.

Other tests are going on at three Louisiana experiment stations at Baton Rouge where the Sindhi is being crossed with Holsteins, at Homer, La., where they are being crossed with Brown Swiss, and at the Government station at Jeanerette, La., where more Jerseys are being used.

Three cross-breed bulls are at work producing progeny at Tipton and Lake Okeechobee, Fla. By using artificial insemination, several thousand heifers are being bred in

The baby expected at Beltsville is the first of the second American generation. That is why the country-wide interest of dairy breeders, particularly in the South, is centered on Beltsville this week.

Yesterday afternoon Reed took the delegates to the DISI to Beltsville to see the expectant mother and to view other dairy operations there. Before they left, they were told by Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan that the dairy industry has the greatest prospects for increased business of nearly any agricultural endeavors.

Brannan pointed out that the average milk production per cow in the United States has increased from 4200 pounds 20 years ago to about 5000 pounds now.

"In the same time," Brannan said, "corn yields have been increased 65 percent an acre, wheat 40 percent, cotton nearly 100, potatoes 95 percent, soybeans 50 percent and eggs 35 percent.

"So you can see the dairy interests have a goal to shoot at."

The American public, Brannan said, could consume 35 percent more dairy products, if the price is right. "It is with great reluctance that the housewife gives up buying milk when her budget won't stand it."

Brannan also argued for milk and livestock as "basic" products. They are just as basic, he said, as those termed basic in the farm price support law, such as wheat, corn, tobacco, cotton and peanuts.

Clerk Pleads Guilty In Assault On Women

A department store stock clerk pleaded guilty in Municipal Court yesterday to charges of assaulting two women and carying a gun.

He is William Morehouse, 3335 Brothers pl. se., who was ordered to report for sentencing December 19. Judge George D. Neilson set bond at five hundred dollars.

State-Righters View Byrnes As '52 Hope, Gov. Scott Says

Raleigh, N. C., Nov. 28 (AP).—North Carolina's Governor said today that States Rights Democrats were looking to former Secretary of State James F. Byrnes as a presidential aspirant in 1952.

In a news conference, Gov. Kerr Scott said speculation at the recent Southern Governors' Conference at Biloxi, Miss., was to this effect:

Byrnes, now a Spartanburg, S. C., lawyer, would run for Governor of South Carolina next year. In 1952 State's Rights Democrats would propose him to the Democratic party as its candidate for the presidency. If the party rejected Byrnes, than the States' Rights group would attempt to persuade him to run as a States' Rights candidate.

Scott was asked if there was indication that the States' Rights Democrats had attempted to make the Biloxi meeting a rally for their cause. He replied "yes."

Scott, who supported the national Democratic ticket last year, added "I wasn't in any high standing down there."

General Green was presented a desk pen set. District Judges David A. Pine, Henry A. Schweinhaut, Alexander Holtzoff and James R. Kirkland attended. Green paid tribute to the service rendered in the Judge Advocate's division by reserve officers.

Little Rock Life Has Hazards for Even the Purest

North Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 28 (AP).—When a jealous North Little Rock husband found a man's billfold in his car, he immediately drove to the address shown on an identification card in the wallet.

He rang the bell and when a man answered, the angry husband gave him a thrashing and a stern warning.

Today the husband was fined and given a suspended 30-day jail sentence—the owner of the billfold had moved from the address on his identification card.

Subversive Teacher Law Ruled Invalid

Albany, N. Y., Nov. 28 (AP).—A State Supreme Court justice today declared New York's anti-Communist teacher law unconstitutional because "it is a dragnet which may enmesh anyone who agitates for a change of government."

Justice Harry E. Schirick, upholding a Community Party complaint "upon all grounds," said, however, that he was "not oblivious to the practices of international communism, which have met with such universal and well-merited contempt among free men."

"It is not because they disapproved the evil thinkers and evil doers of their day less, but because they cherished their democracy more, that the great makers and interpreters of our Constitution have so jealously guarded the basic concepts of freedom," he said.

Hits "Witch-Hunting"

"The court finds it hard to believe that it is necessary to resort to witch-hunting in our schools to displace misfits."

The law, passed by the 1949 Legislature and signed by Governor Thomas E. Dewey, made membership in an organization deemed subversive by the State school board grounds for dismissal of any public school official, teacher or employe.

Attorney General Nathaniel L. Goldstein, who fought the Communist Party action, said Schirick's decision would be appealed as soon as possible.

Goldstein said he would carry the appeal directly to the Court of Appeals, the highest court in the State.

New York now is the third State where anti-subversive legislation has been declared invalid. Unconstitutional decisions have been handed down in Maryland and New Jersey. In Massachusetts, the Communist Party is fighting a newly-enacted law that bars Communists from being employed in any public capacity.

Schirick's opinion did not deny that the State has the "undoubted power" to set up qualifications for school personnel. He added, however, that "the power to fix and determine the qualification of its employes must . . . be exercised in a manner which does not transgress the limitation which the Constitution has placed upon all powers of government.

He said the Feinberg law, so named for the Republican Senate leader who wrote it, is "a legislative finding of guilt of advocating the overthrow of Government by unlawful means without a judicial trial, and without any of the forms and guards provided for the security of the individual by our traditional judicial forms."

In addition, he said, the law creates "a presumption of guilt in direct contradiction to our time-honored doctrine that each man is deemed to be innocent until the contrary is proved."

Boykin Finally Gets Warrant For Icebox Bear

Mobile, Ala., Nov. 28 (U.P.).—Representative Frank Boykin (D., Ala.) was collared today for having an out-of-season bear in his icebox. The Congressman was served with a warrant charging possession of illegally killed game. He signed his own hundred-dollar warrant. His case comes up in court December 9.

It was a foraging bear, feeding on an apiarist's honey on Boykin's big preserve near Mobile, that got the Congressman into trouble. Beekeeper A. L. Webb, jr., felled the animal and gave the carcass to Boykin, who planned to serve it at one of his famous Washington feeds.

But the State confiscated the bear and charity patients at City Hospital here ate it. Webb faces trial December 2 for shooting bear out of season.

Service of the warrant on Boykin was delayed because he has been in Mexico hunting mountain lions. He didn't find any.

Suction of Train Doing 90 Pulls 3 to Death at Station

Gary, Ind., Nov. 28 (U.P.).—City officials today ordered a "full" investigation of a freak accident in which three persons were swept off a station platform by suction of the speeding Twilight Limited and hurled to their deaths against the train.

Two other persons were injured critically when the Michigan Central Railroad train roared through Gary's tiny Broadway Station at a reported 90 miles-an-hour last night. The city has a 40-mile speed limit for trains.

Others among persons waiting to board a Detroit-bound train on the other side of the platform narrowly escaped death or injury in the violent, eddying suction created by the Limited. It was westbound for Chicago and 45 minutes late when it reached Gary.

The engineer, M. L. Redding, and other crew members faced questioning at an inquest Thursday. Redding said he did not realize his train hit anyone and kept going to Chicago. He declined to discuss the accident further.

Mrs. Rose Nagy, 54, and Mrs. Ruby Winters, 35, both of Gary, were killed instantly when they were hurled against the train. Mrs. Julia Rosenstein, 42, Detroit, died in a hospital of a skull fracture.

Mrs. Nagy's husband, Joseph, 45, suffered shock and back injuries, and Otis Hurley, 32, Gary, suffered a mangled hand.

The Detroit-bound train had pulled in before the Limited arrived and witnesses said the fireman, Charles Glick, leaned from his cab when he saw the approaching train and shouted: "Look out, it's coming fast."

A moment later the Limited roared through, its blast of air sucking the victims against its sides.

The child, whose home was on Riggs rd., near Berwyn, died a few hours after being struck by a car Beek was driving.

Witnesses testified the child ran from behind parked highway construction equipment into the path of Beek's car.

Munitions Chairman

In nominating Mr. Hubert E. Howard to be chairman of the Munitions Board, President Truman has demonstrated that there is no indispensable man. Mr. Howard was not the first choice for this post which has been vacant since June 30. The most publicized of the previous candidates was Carl Ilgenfritz of the United States Steel Corp., who was turned down by the Senate because he was unwilling to relinquish his private salary. Mr. Howard, a Chicago coal company executive, is reputed to be independently wealthy and willing to sacrifice his business interests to the public service.

The country is of course fortunate to obtain the services of a man in this situation—though the fundamental question remains to be met of how to provide continuity in a job that calls for a man of specialized background without leaning on persons of independent means. Mr. Howard comes to the Munitions Board from the chairmanship of the Personnel Policy Board, which he has held since September. He has not been in public life long enough to allow of an accurate appraisal of his talents, though he has the reputation of being an able and amiable business executive who is willing to learn. His new job will require those qualities as well as a determination not merely to be led by the whims of the services.

Now that this important post dealing with military procurement and industrial mobilization has been filled, the next and obviously related question is when the President is going to name a chairman of the National Security Resources Board. This position is in some ways more significant than the chairmanship of the Munitions Board, for the NSRB operates at a higher policy level. Yet the NSRB has been leaderless for nearly a year, and the fact that the President has gone off to Key West presumably means more delay. Each day that the NSRB is left without a rudder means a further impediment to defense planning. If the President can find a chairman for the Munitions Board, with a little determination he also can find one for the Security Resources Board.

William H. King

Former Senator William H. King, who is dead in Salt Lake City at the age of 86, is well remembered here as one of the "Mayors of Washington" who found keen interest in advancing the city's welfare. For six years, beginning in 1934, he was chairman of the Senate District Committee. Throughout that period he could be counted on to investigate the condition of local institutions, to take a personal interest in civic affairs, and to hear the appeals of local groups regardless of how busy he might be with national and international affairs. Long a resident of the Capital, he became especially familiar with its problems and was one of the best friends the District had in Congress.

The length of Mr. King's career in national politics is indicated by the fact that he was one of Utah's first Representatives in Congress after Statehood was granted in 1896. Prior to that time he had been a member of the territorial legislature, becoming president of the upper house in 1891, and then a member of the territorial Supreme Court. Coming to the United States Senate in time to vote for the declaration of war against Germany in 1917, he remained to denounce the Nazi regime and all of its works more than two decades later. During and after World War I he was an enthusiastic supporter of Woodrow Wilson and the League of Nations. In 1923 he and Senator Ladd made an 8000-mile tour through Russia and came back bitter foes of communism. Their report on what they saw probably had an important bearing upon the United States' non-recognition policy which lasted until 1933.

An ardent Jeffersonian Democrat all his life, Senator King nevertheless took an independent stand in considering legislation. Often he voted against the leaders of his party in order to follow his own convictions. Partly for that reason his four terms in the Senate did not give him a position of outstanding leadership in the councils of his party. When President Roosevelt swept into Washington with his New Deal, Senator King supported such measures as the Agricultural Adjustment Administration and the Social Security Act. But he vehemently assailed the NRA, and when the court-packing bill came before the Senate Judiciary Committee in 1937, he was chairman of the subcommittee that gave it a coup de grace in one of the most scathing reports in recent congressional history. His voice often rang through the Senate in opposition to centralization of power in the Federal Government. As a critic, he was a formidable influence, and if his course sometimes seemed to be erratic, it nevertheless reflected a sincerity of convictions—the basis on which all representative government must rest.

Mad Hatter's Party

The release of Consul Stokes in Mukden takes some of the wind out of the agitation for an American blockade of the China coast. But the proposition is still seething, and is bound to come to the fore again. Thus it deserves examination and, following the precept for the wise prince, let us "look to the end." A blockade could produce "satisfaction," as the diplomats put it, only if it hurt hard and immediately. Suppose our Mukden consuls cannot get out, "satisfaction" would be either our consuls alive with apologies or the consuls dead with apologies and indemnities.

Now the plain fact is that, at present a blockade would hurt the Communists little, if at all. Trade in and out of China by sea is at present a trickle. There are unfortunately no data, because of the strife in China. But normal overseas trade is quite minor, and, since the civil war broke out, insignificant. The biggest item in recent years has been represented by American giveaways to Nationalist China. Moreover, there is already a blockade in existence—a blockade affecting the ports of Shanghai, Canton and the Fukien coast, applied by Nationalist China with the abject and disingenuous acquiescence of the foreign powers. Through the affected ports more than three quarters of the overseas commerce of China passes.

Has Communist China been hurt by this blockade? Not that anybody, watching its progress in China, can have noticed. Would the investment of the remaining ports hurt Communist China? In the light of experience with the Nationalist blockade, no. Nor would a blockade of course affect the only normal foreign trade left to Communist China, viz, that with Soviet Russia. What there is of it comes overland. What Communist China needs in her present revolutionary stage, in other words, can be supplied by the Russians—and by smuggling, in the practice of which we are prepared to pit the Chinese against the best blockaders in the world.

Moreover, 90 percent or more of the carrying trade in China is foreign: British, American, Danish and a dozen other flags. Would these countries agree to a subjection of their shipping to blockade? Only if the United States declared war on Communist China, for no blockade has any standing in international law without the justification of war.

Thus what the agitators are in fact demanding is a state of war and an expeditionary force. And then? Your guess is as good as ours, but the end of the road, we venture to say, would be an endless adventure—sucking up American dollars and American soldiers, completely distorting American strategy, and leaving the European flank exposed to Russian aggression. For, make no mistake about it: Russia wants the live and industrialized Germany, not a chronically overpopulated and chronically chaotic China and its chronically deficit economy. China, as Russia sees it, and as is demonstrated by repeated indignities to Americans, is regarded as a trap for an America with "its mad up."

Now the agitators would agree with all this except the last thought. They do "look to the end." They are China-firsters. For it so happens that, far from getting interested in China only when the lives of Americans are in peril, they are precisely the same folk who are devoted to intervention in China on the side of the discredited Chiang Kai-shek. Their zeal for Chiang is so fanatical that it has not only outrun the zeal of the Chinese people; it has outrun that of his quondam lieutenants, even of the Nationalist President, Li Tsung-yen.

It is not stretching a point, then, to see the intention back of what at first glance is a simple proposition. The point is to join an American blockade to the Nationalist blockade, to join American forces to Chiang's, to declare war against Communist China with a Chiang-American coalition. It is in China, under this banner with its strange device, that the agitators want to start the holy crusade against communism.

Unfair To The Old

The Massachusetts State Federation of Labor is sponsoring a remarkable kind of fair labor practice legislation making it an offense punishable by heavy fines or imprisonment for an employer to discharge or refuse to hire workers between 45 and 65 years of age in order to avoid the cost of providing them with pensions. The Federation deserves credit for acknowledging that the spread of private pension systems jeopardizes the jobs of older workers because of the added cost to the employer of making provision for persons approaching retirement age. But, like most fair practice laws, this effort to prevent discrimination by legislative coercion of the employer is a very feeble instrument. For an employer can find any number of legitimate excuses for dismissing an aged worker. And it would certainly be hard to convict him of discriminating against the aged merely because he refused to hire a man over 45 years of age, although legislation of this kind might deter an employer from resorting to wholesale firings.

Massachusetts already has a law declaring it to be against public policy to dismiss from employment or refuse employment to persons between the ages of 45 and 65. If the Commissioner of Labor finds an employer to be guilty of such discrimination, he is held up to public scorn by citation in the newspapers. As might have been expected, this law is practically a dead letter and there is no reason to believe that a new law with teeth in it would be much more effective. The chief value of the Federation's proposal, in our opinion, is that it emphasizes the deficiencies and defects of private pension systems, especially when they are imposed on reluctant employers by labor unions. The only kind of pension system that protects aged employes against discrimination is the Federal old age insurance system which shifts responsibility for building up reserve funds and providing for accrued liabilities from individual employers to the Government.

Armed Germans

Secretary Johnson has repeated in Germany the President's denial that there is any intention of arming western Germany. But this will not satisfy the public mind of Europe, as is shown by the subsequent interview that General Bradley had with the French press. Mr. Johnson said there was no "hedging and no dodging" in the President's position, but this is just what General Bradley introduced in his own answer to the same question about the American attitude on German rearmament. He denied any rearmament intention "at present," and this qualification is bound to arouse fresh fears, even though the General added that future policy would be a problem for all the Atlantic Allies. The French will take little comfort from the implied assurance that their representatives would be given a hearing prior to any rearmament in Germany. They know how decisive the United States is. In the case of ftfhe setting up of the Bonn government on June 7, 1948, the pace was made by the United States, and the French had to agree. They know they would have to go along with any rearmament policy that the United States decided upon for the reason that the United States has become the Protecting Power of Europe.

Moreover, the military mind is probably in full agreement in every country on the new need to rearm Germany. It is not a war mind. It is a preparedness mind. A great diplomatist once said that "If the military got charge of policy, they would fortify the moon." In the defense of Europe the military, by the very nature of their cloth, must look longingly at the manpower of Spain as well as Germany. Since the Russians started putting the east Germans in uniform, there is an eagerness in this military preoccupation. However, the French and other worried Europeans should bear in mind that the top agency of the Atlantic Pact is civilian: the group of foreign ministers known as the North Atlantic Council. It is this Council that is the authoritative organ for policy-making in the North Atlantic Alliance.

To be sure, both the President and Secretary Acheson have been a trifle less than decisive about the rearmament of Germany. It has not escaped notice in Europe that they were less decisive, for instance, than Mr. Truman was about the price of gold. Mr. Truman said that in this respect there would be no change as long as he remained President. Granted that in the fast-moving scene in Germany, there could be no equivalent mortgage of the future, yet the psychological disturbance reported in the countries bordering on Germany warrants less uncertainty in the American attitude. Would it not be wise to say that the United States, in looking forward to the integration of Europe, would welcome as a demonstration of that integration the creation of a European legion, including Germans?

Taking It Easier

The high rate of physical breakdown and death among business executives and political leaders in their fifties and sixties—the time when their experience and mature powers offer the most to society—has caused widespread efforts to regain the lost art of taking it easy. Medical authorities, writers, clergymen, lecturers, masseurs, operators of "retreats," travel agents and others are offering harried middle-aged Americans techniques for emulating the tortoise rather than the hare.

Columbia University is offering a course to teach adults how to relax, a technique said to be little known to modern man. Prof. Josephine L. Rathbone, teacher of the course, says most adults drive themselves to get more and more done each day because they're dissatisfied with their achievements. Then suddenly they may come down with a digestive disturbance, a hypertensive heart disease, or some other physical revolt of the body against high pressure living. However, this overwork, she points out, cannot always be blamed on the job; "immersion in a social whirligig" may be a contributing factor.

A recent study of 2000 "tired business men" made by the Benjamin Franklin clinic of Pennsylvania State Hospital shows that lack of moderation both in work and in play causes so-called "key" men to fold up early. Such men tend to do everything too strenuously whether it be work, play, eating or gymnastics. Americans apparently have trouble finding the golden mean in the tempo of living.

CONCERTO

The first notes fell with such bright innocence
That no one was forewarned.
There was a sound like raindrops on a pool,
Liquid and pure.
Spirits were all off guard;
The music flung them down and trampled over them.
Tears brimmed and no one dared to meet his neighbor's eyes.
There should have been a signal, an "Alert,"
To let them put their hurried armor on.

Loan to Spain

I wish to correct any misapprehension that might arise from the story appearing in your issue of November 25 with respect to the interest of Spain in loans from the Export-Import Bank.

Two approaches were made to this bank, in May and November of this year. Both were on an informal basis, and on each occasion the bank stated that for any application to have serious consideration it must relate to some specific project, or projects which show prospects of yielding additional dollar revenue to service any requested loan.

"Cleric With A Mission"

Your November 20 editorial, "Cleric With a Mission," is important. Not only does it pay tribute to a man, the Rev. Bryan Green, who is devoted to closing the breach which is tritely and commonly called that between "faith and works," but it points out for us the only weapon which can be effectively used against communism.

That weapon cannot be more clearly stated than in the words of the editorial itself. "Those who think you can fight communism as you fight an aggressor—that is to say, by repression—testify subconsciously to their disbelief in God and the good works that remain to be done in His name. Physical preparedness is very much in order in coping with physical aggression, but spiritual preparedness is the way to deal with communism. It is the secret weapon, the real competitor." (Italics mine.)

This is not a new thought but it is one which all of us are so easily led into forgetting or putting aside under the pressure to take the more simple and instinctive point of view. If we would only make the effort to think further we would readily see that not only would ideological enemies, if one must term them that, be overcome by our "spiritual preparedness," but that "physical preparedness" would become obsolete, because physical aggression springs from a mental purpose or a spiritual intent.

I disagree that this challenge of another ideology has especially to be met by those whose affiliations are strongly religious. Because of the history of our own country, and the fact that we are the leading "Christian" Nation, each one of us, regardless of whether or not our works meet the principles of our national faith through a constructive support of agencies dedicated to bringing about understanding and cooperation with all who do not work for the freedom of man's mind and body, and through personal effort to sacrifice for that end.

"Case of the A. & P."

As a working man who experienced the loss of about $700 per year as a result of A. & P. using its strong position as a wrecking outfit, rather than for a fair service for a reasonable profit, I am almost ashamed to read Ysabel and Robert Rennie's November 22 article, "Case of the A. & P."

They say: "A. & P. has competed so fiercely that it has beaten down profit margins and it has passed the savings on to the consumer. In the process a number of competitors may have gone out of business."

I was the consumer: I know from experience. Out West in the 20's, in a small town we had three good merchants who had fair prices, delivered the groceries and everything was lovely, until A. & P. came in. It did cut prices enough to put the three other merchants out of business. At the same time, in a town 80 miles away the A. & P. prices were 25 percent higher than they were to those people before the A. & P. put their merchants out of business. As soon as our independents were gone the A. & P. prices went up, too.

Cardozo Crowding

As a pupil attending Cardozo High School, I am writing to complain about the unusual length of my schoolday. Twice a week I get up at 5:45 a.m. so I can get to school at 7:15. Other mornings I have to be there at 8:20. I reach home at 4:30 p. m. On arriving at school the two mornings I drill, I must go on the street for almost an hour.

With the transfer of the entire Cardozo student body to Central, this unnecessarily long school day could be changed.

"Fairfax Folk"

It was with the greatest pleasure and interest that I read the column in your November 20 issue, "Fairfax Folk," by Ellen Buell Parry.

The column seemed to my family and me to cover such diverse interests, to be so friendly and yet informative, that we shall look forward to it from now on.

Thank you for a good paper for enlarging your orbit for the better enlightenment of Fairfax County citizens.

Living Theater

It is a strange anomaly that the supposedly wonderful Washington dance audience, which bought out the Sadler's Wells Ballet performances long in advance and necessitated scheduling an additional performance, has shown nothing but apathy toward the coming performance by one of America's outstanding dancers, Jose Limon, and his group, scheduled for Wednesday, November 30 at Lisner Auditorium. This is especially strange since it was known that the inadequacies of Constitution Hall would preclude a first-rate performance, whereas Lisner Auditorium is ideal for dance concerts. The Institute of Contemporary Arts, which is sponsoring the concert, is performing a public service in doing so, and deserves not to be discouraged from bringing other great artists before the Washington public.

"Chairman At 86"

Will you permit me to comment briefly on your November 9 editorial, "Chairman at 86," referring to Congressman Doughton, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Many of your readers feel that your criticism of Mr. Doughton is unjustified. It is well known that in spite of his years he is a hard-working, conscientious public servant of unusual ability, with an enviable record of high achievement. Apparently there is less "doubt-on" that score than on the proper pronunciation of his name.

A careful reading of your editorial would indicate that your low appraisal of Mr. Doughton is based on the erroneous assumption that no man 86 years old can render meritorious service in a responsible position. The fallacy of this birthday criterion for retirement is well demonstrated by your columnist Malvina Lindsay in her article entitled "Regimented Retirement" which appeared the next day; I recommend it to all who desire to be reliably informed on this important and timely subject. Fortunately, there is no birthday rule at the top levels in Government service.

The practice of requiring employes in industry, teaching and other fields to retire at 65, or some other arbitrary age, regardless of the ability, health or desire of the individual worker, and the needs of the employer as well, results in a costly waste of manpower which industry and the country can ill afford. It places an onerous and unnecessary economic burden on the community for social security pensions and the direct support of millions of retirees who could and should be earning their own living and who crave the opportunity to do so; it impairs the health and causes the premature death of many of them; it constitutes discrimination against a large minority group which is rapidly increasing in number and importance, and it violates the basic American concept of the value, dignity and liberty of the individual in a free, capitalistic society. Pensions are highly desirable, but, unless the birthday rule is abandoned, the cost will be prohibitive, no matter who pays, or how.

It is greatly to the credit of Bethlehem Steel that it has the case-handled system for retirement rather than the birthday rule. The union has wisely insisted that the Bethlehem precedent be followed by other steel companies and it is to be hoped that, sooner or later, this system will be adopted in industry in general and will spread to other fields, such as teaching and non-profit enterprises.

Your assumption that Owen D. Young has lived in "quiet retirement" since he ceased to be active in industry is misleading. Mr. Young, himself, feels that in recent years he has worked harder than ever, and, in view of his high character and his conscientious attitude toward responsibilities assumed, his sketch in Who's Who tends to confirm his conclusion. Incidentally, as he gladly indorsed the birthday rule for his own business, his original retirement from industry was, in effect, entirely voluntary.

The careers of both of these distinguished gentlemen clearly evidence the fallacy of the popular concept that merely because a man has passed his sixty-fifth or some other birthday he is no longer capable of rendering valuable service to his employer and to the community.

On the merits of the seniority rule in Congress, which was apparently the text for your sermon, I express no opinion.

A. BARR COMSTOCK.
Washington.

Editor's note: Mr. Comstock appears to have missed the point of the editorial in question, which did not advocate retirement at any arbitrary age, but condemned the seniority rule in Congress that keeps Mr. Doughton in the chairmanship of the Ways and Means Committee at 86.

Congressmen In Europe

By Marquis Childs

Work Or Play?

LONDON.—One of the spectacles of this curious era in Europe is the visiting Congressman. He combines some of the qualities of an emperor passing through his realm, a spoiled debutante and an escapee from a strict correctional institution reveling in every moment of his stolen freedom.

This does not apply, of course, to serious men who are sincerely interested in trying to find out what is happening to the dollars Congress has appropriated for Europe. They are probably in the majority. But the frivolous, the prejudiced and the arrogant make so much noise that too often they obscure the serious majority.

Even though the cold, dreary days of winter are drawing down, the invasion continues. If it goes on like this through 1950, there will have to be some regularization by Congress itself of this junketeering.

For the fact is that it seriously impedes the efforts of officials who work long hours under trying conditions. Each delegation asks the same questions; each demands the same privileges and attention. The result is a major additional burden on already overburdened Americans.

A memorandum to one ambassador announcing a particularly important senatorial visitation specified the exact details of the care which the ambassador was to take of the party. Among other things, he was to see to it that their laundry was properly done.

In Paris a member of the embassy staff has been devoting full time to the care and feeding of members of Congress. One thing most delegations demand is a visit to the Folies Bergere, Paris' most naked girl show, and this official after his twelfth visit finds the excitements and surprises of this entertainment wearing a little thin. Night spots in each capital come high on the priority list.

TOO OFTEN the attitude is that of a visting maharajah, taking entertainment as a royal right. A beautiful sample of this attitude has been displayed by Senator Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma. Before he sounded off in print about the Swedes and their ingratitude, he had several times in private hinted darkly that Sweden hadn't done anything for his committee—no parties, nothing—and that when the time came to appropriate for ECA, this would certainly be remembered.

Senator Pat McCarran of Nevada has demanded that embassy cars motor him from country to country, even though it is against State Department regulations and perhaps even against the law to have an embassy car assigned to one country driven into another country. But in view of McCarran's demonstrated capacity to take personal reprisal, his request becomes a kind of law in itself.

But there was one instance when this failed. McCarran went so far as to ask for French counterpart funds (the money set aside by the French government to match American dollars contributed by ECA as required in the ECA Act) sufficient to pay the cost of sending him to Madrid, Spain. This was plainly against the law, since counterpart funds can be used only in the country in which they are set aside.

McCarran has made himself into a kind of private lobby for Generalissimo Franco. On every occasion, publicly and privately, McCarran has urged inclusion of Spain in the Marshall Plan.

FORMER REPRESENTATIVE Charles Dewey has also devoted considerable energy to this same end. While Dewey is stationed in France officially as the watchdog of the Appropriations Committee, he is in actual fact McCarran's personal patronage and personal employe. It was over inclusion of funds to pay and maintain Dewey and a staff in Europe that the House split with the Senate, and because of that split the ECA appropriation was for a long time held up.

The delegation headed by Senator Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana has shown an earnest and hard-working interest in the condition of Europe. But unfortunately Ellender, apparently not realizing that every word he uttered could be heard in every European chancellory as well as back home, made a remarkably indiscreet statement. He announced that they were looking at military bases, and a day or two later he declared that they intended to visit Yugoslavia.

This was, naturally, a bonanza for the Russian propaganda radio. They promptly picked it up, adding that obviously it meant Marshal Tito had become a complete vassal of the United States, since Senators were now going there to inspect military bases.

That is the kind of unthinking irresponsibility which can do so much harm. American generosity through the Marshall Plan has been extraordinary and unprecedented, and most thinking Europeans appreciate that fact. But this is all the more reason why Americans with official position traveling in Europe must behave with restraint instead of demanding a show of gratitude and immediate compliance with American wishes.

Political Economy

Ailing Railroads

WARNING Congress that it may have to consider Federal subsidies to the railroads, J Haden Alldredge of the Interstate Commerce Commission says that American railroads are just about at the limit of passenger transportation charges.

Most passengers would agree. Eastern railroads have just received their third postwar increase, bringing the cost of tickets 50 percent above the prewar level, and some 25 percent above rates in the West and South. At the same time, three postwar hikes in freight rates have raised these to 43 percent above prewar levels.

As the rates go up, business goes down. Railroads are losing coach passengers to the cheaper buses; they are losing business travel to the faster airlines, and shippers are turning to trucks, which are less expensive and provide convenient door-to-door service.

Railroads admit that higher rates lose them business. This present fare increase, they think, will cost them somewhere between 2 and 5 percent of their passengers. The truth is, however, that they do not care: passenger traffic has not been a source of profit to most roads. In fact, 10 percent of operating revenues comes from this source.

Freight is not only the main source of revenue, but certain types, such as coal and ores, are enormously profitable because they are so cheap to handle. Nearly half the traffic of the railroads is in fuels. Because in so many areas no one else is equipped to handle this kind of haul, the railroads feel secure in their higher freight rates.

ICC is in a dilemma. If it refuses higher rates, it may push weaker roads to the wall. If it grants them, the charges are felt throughout our economy in pyramided costs, which are a drag on business expansion.

PART of the railroads' troubles has been a top-heavy debt structure. This was scaled down by two billion dollars during the war, and as a result they are in better financial shape than they have been for a generation. But as this problem is being met, new ones have arisen to plague them.

Railroads are peculiarly vulnerable to business downturns. This is because their overhead is relatively fixed. Whether trains go out empty or full, railroads must keep up their tracks, operate terminals and pay labor. When business volume is high, unit costs are low. And the converse is unfortunately true: as business volume drops, unit costs go up.

Finally, labor costs, which account for two thirds of operating expenses, are a major headache. Not only are wages high, but operating procedures are wasteful and costly, and there has been strong union opposition to new procedures that might lower costs.

It would be easier to sympathize with the railroads were it not for several significant facts.

Faced with competition from motor and air transport, what course did they take? They fought trucking lines by encouraging restrictive legislation against trucks. They fought air express by working to keep air express rates high. And they fought pipelines by refusing to let them cross rights of way.

In the end they had no more effect than King Canute with the tides. While their own equipment ran down, and they signed regional agreements to curtail new services, their business was taken away by buses, trucks and airlines.

The more business they lose, the more they go back to ICC for higher rates. This, of course, is no answer.

Even on the lucrative fuel hauls they are heading for long-term trouble. By helping to raise the price of coal, they are hastening the trend to natural gas and petroleum. As it becomes more expensive to haul coal from mines to power plants, it pays instead to run power lines from plants erected at the mines.

In short, even where they could compete the best, the railroads are driving themselves out of business.

RAILROADS, unlike the carriage industry, cannot be left to die. They are essential to national defense, and they have a legitimate function in our transportation system.

But subsidies are certainly not the answer. Their only effect at the present time would be to freeze the status quo and perpetuate obsolescence.

One of the worst plagues of railroading is indirect routing and duplicate schedules. Consolidation is the answer, as Congress recognized in the Transportation Acts of 1920 and 1940. But voluntary consolidation has not worked. It has been blocked by executives who feared a loss of position, and by labor, which feared a loss of jobs.

It is unrealistic to assume that the roads will cure themselves. They have a stake in much of what makes them uncompetitive.

Take capital structures. If the railroads continue to value themselves at 27 billion dollars, how can they earn the profits and interest to attract new capital? And without new capital investment, how can they modernize?

Freight patterns are another problem affecting whole regions of the country. They have been both arbitrary and discriminatory, and have worked to lower production and raise prices.

Railroads are a national responsibility, and Congress will have to take the initiative. The point is that they are no longer our whole transportation system, but only part of it. Unless they are put to work where they are most efficient—which means coordination with buses, trucks, airlines and watercarriers—there will be a lopsided distribution of productive resources.

The trouble is that our regulation of railroads has been sporadic and ineffectual because we could not make up our minds where railroads fitted into the economy. They are not, and never have been, competitive. What they have been for the last 60 years is a singularly ill-regulated natural monopoly.

Bankrupt Rail Lines Feared In U. S. Claim

By the United Press

President Fred G. Gurley of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad said yesterday that many railroads will be bankrupted if they are forced to pay the Government's claim for two billion dollars in alleged overcharges on wartime freight.

Gurley and Charles H. Bufort, president of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific Railroad, were the first industry witnesses at Interstate Commerce Commission hearings on the Government's rebate claim against 900 carriers. The Government presented its case last June.

Bufort claimed the railroads had spent at least two billion dollars to repair the "wear and tear" of heavy wartime traffic. He denied they had charged the Government exorbitant rates.

Gurley said payment of the sum demanded would "seriously impair" service on all railroads that were not actually forced to the wall.

Denouncing the Government's claim as "entirely unjustified," he argued that wartime freight rates were "unduly low rather than the reverse." He estimated that his own railroad would have to pay about 100 million dollars if the claim is sustained.

Bufort said the railroads charged the Government "reasonable" rates for handling its wartime freight. He said they earned only 4.6 per cent on their net investment in the 1941-46 period.

He pointed out that the railroads handled an unprecedented volume of traffic during the war. It wore out equipment faster than normally, he added, but, materials and manpower shortages prevented repairs and replacements on a normal basis at the time.

As a result, Bufort said, the railroads faced tremendous repair and replacement tasks at the end of the war, and prices are higher.

He estimated that at present prices the replacement of locomotives and cars will cost from 400 million dollars to 500 million dollars more now than if it had been possible at the time old equipment wore out.

He figured that the wartime wear and tear "probably took additional life out of equipment which at present costs will come to about one billion dolars."

UMW Heads Delay Talks Until Today

New York, Nov. 28 (U.P.).—Top officials of United Mine Workers, in the reported absence of John L. Lewis, today suddenly put off until Tuesday their meeting to decide whether to call another soft coal strike Thursday.

A spokesman for Lewis announced the meeting of the union's 200-member policy committee scheduled for 3 p. m. today had been postponed until 4 p. m. Tuesday.

Informed sources said Lewis had failed to arrive from Washington where he may have been holding conferences on the contract dispute. They said, however, that the UMW chief would be here Tuesday

The policy committee must decide whether to call 400,000 soft coal miners fro mthe pits at 12:01 a. m. December 1 to enforce new contract demands, or to extend the strike deadline again.

Most observers believe Lewis will ask the committee to postpone the strike for about 30 days to avert idleness over Christmas.

Early this month the policy committee called off a 52-day coal strike until December 1 and must now decide whether to renew the walkout on that date.

Cyrus S. Ching, director of the Federal Mediation Service, said in Detroit today the Government does not intend to step into the coal dispute before the Thursday strike deadline.

Ching said he had heard Lewis and the operators were planning a meeting but said he didn't know "when or where."

Lewis and the operators broke off talks five weeks ago after operators insisted they would grant no improvements

Taft Favors Invoking T-H Law If Truce Ends

Athens, Ohio, Nov. 28 (A.P.).—Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), said today he believes President Truman should invoke the Taft-Hartley Act Thursday in the coal mine dispute unless an agreement is reached by then, or the truce is extended.

which indeed he was in his rum-running days in the 1920's, when he could lose a two-million-dollar cargo of the real stuff and still keep going.

Costello's color was good and not altogether because he was fresh from the barber's chair. He had just returned from his favorite resort, Hot Springs, Ark., where he took the baths and played golf with his old friend, Owney Madden.

He chuckled delightedly as he talked about the metamorphosis of Madden, once known as "Owney the Killer," an Irishman who went to Sing Sing for murder, later became the most powerful of New York mobsters, and then went into retirement after marrying Agnes Demby, daughter of the Hot Springs postmaster.

Costello told how Mrs. Madden had tamed the former beer-runner and racketeer, and how she had taken over the family exchequer.

"Why, she won't let him bet more than 25 cents a hole," Costello said, referring to Owney and golf.

He laughed and looked expectantly at the interviewer, as if waiting for a gasp of astonishment. The interviewer didn't come through, being a 25-cents-a-hole man himself—on paydays.

The talk kept getting back to Costello's reputation as the No. 1 figure in the American underworld. How did he acquire it if, as he insisted, it was undeserved?

Began in 1942

The whole thing began, he said, with the Aurelio case in 1942, and then snowballed—the momentum and growth being provided by newspapers and the political opposition.

Costello thought that one thing alone ought to dispose of the talk about his being a "superman" of crime. He pointed out that almost from the time his parents brought him from Italy, when he was 2 or 3 years old, he had lived within a radius of about 2 miles of where he now lives in New York.

In his boyhood, he lived in lower Harlem. Now he and Mrs. Costello have a seven-room apartment at 115 Central Park West, for which they pay $3600 a year. They also have a country place for weekends, a $30,000 home in fashionable Sands Point, Long Island.

The point Costello was trying to make was that he had never been "on the lam," like John Dillinger, for example.

He talked about his boyhood in what he called a ghetto. Yes, he had done some wrong things. If he had gone to Yale or Princeton, things might have been different. But he quit school early, he said, and times were tough.

"Tough times make monkeys eat red pepper," he said.

I didn't catch this at first and he repeated it. He seemed to think that it explained a lot.

Likes Being Nice

He lighted up a fresh Parliament cigarette and went on to tell how his circle of friends widened steadily. He said he discovered that he got "a kick" out of being nice to people. And he said he discovered, also, that people were beginning to "respect" him.

"All I know I stole," he said, and quickly explained that he meant ideas and mannerisms. "If I saw you hold a cigarette in a certain way, and I liked it, I would steal it from you."

He didn't go into it, but the days he was talking about—the days when he was getting a kick out of being nice to people and winning respect—were the days of prohibition in the 1920's. He was a bootlegger, a big one he is now willing to admit, bringing his own liquor in from Canada and Europe by the shipload.

Despite the magnitude of his operations—it came out in court that he used a seaplane to hunt for his lost rum boats—Costello managed to stay out of the publicity glare that was then beating down on Big Bill Dwyer, Owney Madden, Waxey Gordon, Legs Diamond and the others.

In 1927 Costello and his brother Eddie, along with about 30 others, were indicted for a conspiracy to run liquor into the country. The trial that followed showed up prohibition at its worst, marked as it was by stories of widespread corruption among Coast Guardsmen. The jury got hung on Costello's case and he beat the rap.

About this time gangland killings were rising to a crescendo. The carnage was terrible, with Chicago gunmen knocking off New York mobsters, and vice versa.

In 1929 Costello gave a demonstration of his prestige in the underworld. He called a convention of big shots in Atlantic City, among them Scarface Al Capone of Chicago. Efforts were made to work out what the diplomats call a modus vivendi, with recognized spheres of influence for the New York and Chicago operators, and for this, according to the Treasury Department, Costello won the sobriquet of "Prime Minister of the Underworld." Apparently, however, it never caught on.

All this time Costello was piling up wealth. He also was beginning to make legitimate investments, putting his money into real estate; specifically, walk-up apartments.

He was beginning to make contributions to politicians, too, and his power in Tammany was getting to be formidable.

Into Big Time

In 1932 Costello moved into the political big time, traveling to Chicago for the Democratic National Convention which was to nominate Franklin D. Roosevelt for the presidency. He shared quarters in the Drake Hotel with James J. Hines, powerful leader of Tammany Hall, the same Jimmy Hines who later was to be sent to prison by Racketbuster Thomas E. Dewey.

Prohibition was on the way out and the country was beginning to experience a new and frightful outbreak of crime—the killings, kidnapings and bank hold-ups of such outlaws as John Dillinger, "Pretty Boy" Floyd and "Machine-gun" Kelly.

When the Lindbergh baby was kidnaped in 1932, Al Capone, then in jail in Chicago for failing to pay income taxes, issued a statement. He said that if he were released from jail he would recover the child. He was turned down.

Frank Costello's part in the tragedy is something that has never been published, so far as this reporter knows. The story he has told associates is that he was called in through the House of Morgan, which made up the package of ransom money. He had luncheon with Colonel Lindbergh at Hopewell, and for the first time in his life, apparently, ate from a tray on his lap. At this time the negotiations for turning over the ransom money to the kidnaper were well advanced.

'Grab the Guy'

Costello, according to this account, told Lindbergh that the best thing to do was to "grab the guy"—meaning the kidnaper.

Col. Henry Breckenridge, Lindbergh's attorney and close friend, overruled this advice. Thereafter, the elderly and eccentric school teacher, Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon met the kidnaper at an appointed place in the Bronx on a Saturday night and handed over $50,000. Bruno Richard Hauptmann, the kidnaper, was not caught until two years later.

Costello, in 1932, not only had plenty of money from his Rum Row operations, he was about to make more in a new enterprise—slot machines. He was a pioneer in this field, acquiring the machines from the Mills Novelty Co. of Chicago. By the time of repeal, he had hundreds of them operating in saloons, stores and restaurants in New York. His profit from the torrent of nickels, dimes and quarters that poured into the machines was somewhere between 15 and 20 percent.

Fiorello LaGuardia, who became reform Mayor of New York in this period, declared war on Costello's slot machines. He called Costello a "bum," and in 1934 personally led police in ripping them out and dumping the machines in the sea.

Ally Appears

An unexpected ally appeared the following year.

"I was invited to come to New Orleans in the early part of 1935 by a man named Senator Huey P. Long," Costello was to testify later.

"He asked me to put some slot machines in Louisiana. He was going to pass some kind of ordinance for the poor, the blind . . . a certain kind of relief, and we would have to pay so much a machine. I got Phil Kastel, who is my associate, to go down there and work the thing out."

In 1939, Costello and Kastel, together with Dudley and Harold Giegerman, brothers of Mrs. Costello, were indicted by a Federal grand jury in New Orleans for conspiracy to defraud the Government of more than $500,000 in income taxes in connection with revenue from the slot machines.

Judge Wayne G. Borah, who presided at the trial, ruled that the Government had not presented convincing evidence, and directed the jury to return a not-guilty verdict. Incidentally, Morris Ernst, New York lawyer and publicist, was one of Costello's counsel.

Revision of Taxes Could Help Small Business, Schram Says

NYNT News Service

Emil Schram, president of the New York Stock Exchange, suggested yesterday that Congress could reverse the trend toward monopoly by reducing taxes.

Schram

Schram told a House Judiciary subcommittee that Congress had unintentionally given big business a competitive advantage by maintaining high corporate and capital gains taxes.

"I urge that you consider the effects of the Federal tax structure which, I am sure, unwittingly has strengthened the position of large, well-entrenched enterprises," he testified.

"The present tax structure has a tendency to make big fellows bigger and small fellows smaller."

Declaring that high taxes had killed incentives for small businessmen and cut off their sources of capital, he urged the following tax revisions to encourage the expansion of small enterprises:

1. Reduction of the capital gains tax rate from 25 to 10 percent and the required holding period from six to three months.

2. Easing of the burden of double taxation on dividend income by granting a 10 percent tax credit on corporate dividends. This would actually mean a 25 percent reduction in dividend taxes.

3. Revision of the corporate tax structure to exempt initial earnings, perhaps up to $10,000, and cut the present 53 percent rate on corporate income in the $25,000 a year bracket. Mr. Schram and committee members agreed that they knew of no reason for the corporate tax rate in this range to be more than for business income in higher and lower brackets.

A Justice Department recommendation that Congress repeal the antitrust exemptions granted to railroads under the Reed-Bulwinkle Act was also presented to the subcommittee yesterday.

One on the Aisle—

Howard U. Players Report on Europe

By Richard L. Coe

BACK FROM A three-month tour in which her Howard University Players did 54 performances in four European countries, Dr. Anne Cooke talks stimulatingly of theater.

"Our's wasn't a political trip, you know, though inevitably, I suppose, people cannot avoid such implications. But what we learned about theater has been immensely interesting.

"In Norway, Denmark, Sweden and Germany, the term 'theater' means an organization, while here in the States it means a building. That is the fundamental difference in how 'theater' is viewed.

"Each country by its organization of theater is able to make this cultural aspect of living available to all, at cheap prices. It's a thoroughly business-like idea. Actors and technicians are employed on a year-round basis with a month's holiday. They work together as a unit under the repertory system. Some plays don't catch the public as well as others, but inevitably there are several gate packers in the course of a season and the money made on these is used to mount plays by new playwrights.

"The very traditions we lack over here have, of course, their dangers. Several critics wrote that our productions of "The Wild Duck' and 'Mamba's Daughters' were especially valuable because of the fluidity of our playing, a relaxation from set ways of acting which the critics feel may stifle their performers.

"You would be astonished at how much the critics know about our American theater. They are fully conversant with the problems of our commercial theater, its unions and expenses. They are alive to the rise of regional and university theater, and what they don't know about our playwrights!

"They can fully analyze the style of Tennessee Williams. At the moment, 'A Streetcar Named Desire' is playing in Oslo and Copenhagen and productions are under way in all three Scandinavian countries of 'Death of a Salesman.'

"The Europeans' interest in our cultural life is tremendous, for all recognize the position of America as the great free world power, better, I dare say, than many of us do. For that reason, they look to our cultural achievements and arts as an antidote to the more lurid expressions of America.

"The trip did our students so very much good. All of them hope to use their theater knowledge in their careers and, with the professional, community and college theaters, I think there's a place for all of them. These three months have given both actors and technicians invaluable experience, working in all kinds of theaters.

"The war didn't affect the stages of Scandinavia; we played on all sorts there, but it wasn't till we got down to Germany that we played in strange places. In Berlin we acted in a concert hall, and in Frankfort in an arena. I'm proud to say we never played to anything but a sold-out house.

Eyes Norwegian Play

"We couldn't have been more pleased about the reactions to our plays. The press universally ignored our race and people everywhere took us for what we were—American students working in a great classic medium. The reviews were marked by a scholarly approach, and the reasoning behind our characterizations was always remarked upon.

"The future? Well, we'd first like to catch up on sleep—hardly any at all since last Wednesday after our final performance in Germany. It became quite a long flight back and, getting home at 3:30 in the morning, with its attendant excitement, has been wearing.

"But for our first production in January, we'd very much like to do one of two new plays by Norwegian and Danish writers. They're good plays and would be of interest here as well as a mark of thanks for the many courtesies we received.

Welcomes Award News

"We're delighted with news of our award from the American Public Relations Association, and while we'd like very much to give a special performance here, I don't know where we could do it. The suggestion that perhaps Constitution Hall might be made available is impressive, but surely that is no place for a play. I heard in Europe, by the way, about the Sadler's Wells appearance there, to our shame. What a pity it all is."

Poet-Playwright Owen Dodson and James W. Butcher, jr., were the two other faculty members on the tour, the latter and his wife remaining in Europe, where both are professors this year under the Fulbright bill.

The following, some of them graduates of the school, others students, were in the company: John E. Randy, Marilyn Gaynell Thornton, William T. Bondhill, Robert E. Brown, William T. Brown, Zaida Coles, Jeanette M. Conliffe, Herbert H. Fitzgerald, Geraldine K. Haywood, Ernest J. Jackson, Hilmar L. Jensen, Mary Nelson, Shaunielle Perry, Roxie Roker, Stewart Street, Yvonne D. Terrell, Ronnie Wieder, Elise Tillar, Charles L. White, Edmere G. Winfield and Edwin C. Ellick.

3 Boys Admit 5 Georgetown Burglaries

Police early yesterday arrested three Georgetown youths who they said have admitted five housebreakings in that area in the past six weekends.

Officers said the boys, all juveniles, obtained about $50 in cash, several bottles of whisky and three guns.

One was a 17-year-old student in a military academy who came home weekends; one was a 16-year-old working with his father to learn the painting trade, and the third was a 15-year-old junior high school student.

After the first reports of the weekend breakins, Capt. Beverly Beach of the Seventh Precinct posted detectives in unlabeled autos around 47th st. and Reservoir rd. nw. to no avail. But Sunday night, two uniformed officers in a scout car spotted the boys walking in the neighborhood.

Questioning elicited no information except that they were returning to their homes from a movie. However, the officers took the youths' names and addresses. At midnight, they informed Precinct Detective Arthur Davis and Pvt. Benson Taylor, who was working in plain clothes.

These two discovered that the 17-year-old boy had a previous record for housebreaking and was released from the Industrial Home School to attend the military academy.

Davis and Taylor went to the boys' homes, picked them up for questioning, and, they said, obtained the admissions. They said they recovered the three guns in the home of the 17-year-old boy.

Victims of the robberies were Miss Frances Powell Hill, a realtor, whose home at 1920 47th st. nw. was broken into twice; Air Force Col. Rowland A. Elliott, 4660 Reservoir rd. nw.; Ellis W. Welch, 4604 Rservoir rd nw., and David Fernsler, 4749 Reservoir rd. nw.

County Housebreakings Confessions Claimed

Acting on a tip that a youth had a gun, Prince Georges County detectives yesterday rounded up five juveniles, 12 to 16 years old, who they said admitted six housebreakings in the past six months.

Detectives Earl J. Huber and Richard Pearson also arrested Edwin Merton Thompson, 21, of Springfield, Md., on a charge of receiving stolen property. They said he had purchased a stolen gun from one of the youths.

The two officers said the housebreakings occurred in the Springfield-Glenndale area. They said they recovered two rifles, two pistols, and about $200 worth of other loot the boys had taken, but did not get back an undetermined amount of cash that was stolen.

Thompson was released in $200 bond for hearing Thursday in Hyattsville Police Court on the stolen property charge. The five boys will be arraigned on December 15 in Juvenile Court at Hyattsville.

New Venture In Music Is Exciting

By Paul Hume

An exciting new venture in Washington music began last night.

The Music Division of the Public Library initiated a series of composers' forums, holding its first meeting in the Southwest library branch.

Richard Bales, director of music at the National Gallery of Art, was moderator. Music by Eric Bovet, Mary Howe, and Russell Smith was heard and discussed by an enthusiastic audience.

The composers joined in round-table conversation and answered questions about their music, about the art of creating music, about life, and many other large esthetic questions.

It was a stimulating occasion. It is no small matter to hear a composer explain why he wrote a piece a certain way, particularly when he goes on to say that he realizes from the performance those things he will try to improve the next time.

It is fascinating to hear a fine craftsman-composer describe the how and why of a set of pieces.

One woman in the audience snorted during the explanation of a song, "What a subject." But before the evening was over that woman, had she had the grace to remain, would have learned something very important.

She would have learned that any subject is appropriate as musical inspiration. And that the greater the subject, whether of good or evil, the greater must be the hand to deal with it adequately, whatever the chosen medium.

The informality of the occasion led to the enlightenment, mild embarrassment, and instruction of the composers. But these things came to the listeners in far greater measure. The eager experimental nature of the occasion made it thoroughly enjoyable.

The program included songs and music for string quartet by Bovet, and three pieces for flute and piano by Mary Howe. Smith was represented with a duo for flute and bassoon, a piece for violin and piano, and six songs for baritone and piano.

A second forum will be given in February. The Public Library is fulfilling a great function with its new forum. And real thanks are due the local chapter, American Federation of Musicians, for its generous financial help.

Wagstaff Gets 2d Conviction In Attack Case

Joseph A. Wagstaff, 24-year-old Chevy Chase (Md.) "bad boy," was again convicted yesterday of assaulting his family's maid with a paring knife.

Wagstaff

He was found guilty by a nine-man, three-woman jury which deliberated only five minutes in Montgomery County Circuit Court at Rockville. Judge Charles W. Woodward deferred sentencing.

On January 10 Wagstaff, of 5506 Grove st., Chevy Chase, was sentenced by Judge Warren Browning of Bethesda Police Court to two years in the Maryland House of Corrections for the assault. He appealed the case and was automatically given a jury trial.

The maid, Mrs. Frances Tolson, testified the youth grabbed her, tore her dress, then lunged at her with a paring knife with such force that when she sidestepped the knife blade bent double against the kitchen sink. She said the assault occurred after Wagstaff had argued with his grandmother about letting him have some money.

Wagstaff denied the knife attack, but admitted there had been a scuffle. He said he was angry because, he claimed, the maid had taken some of his money.

Young Wagstaff's crime-checkered career includes serving a year for pumping six slugs into the body of a companion in Las Vegas, Nev.; 30 days for malicious destruction of property, and $25 fine for assaulting a police officer.

He was shot and wounded in 1947 when he broke into a Chevy Chase home, threatening to kill the occupants, while, he said, he was under the misapprehension he was in his own home. Last March he was held for the grand jury here on charges of violating the Marijuana Tax Act.

The girl, Daisy Mae Wiggins, 18, also of the 7th st. address, told police she found the photograph on Conners' dresser.

It was the picture she had taken back from Conners when they parted company, she explained, and was stolen, along with $115, last week from a trunk in her room. Judge Neilson ordered Conners held for grand jury action

'Coed' Activity Urged to Aid Older People

Church activities should "offer an opportunity for widowed men and women to find new life partners," a speaker declared yesterday at a conference on the church and older people.

The Rev. Paul B. Maves, co-author of "Older People and the Church," and professor of religious education at Drew University, called for "coeducational" activities for persons over 65, and said that, in cities with organized activity centers for older people, there are often a number of marriages.

"There is no reason why it should be funny when older people fall in love," he said, adding that "men need women and women need men, even after 65."

He pointed out, however, that not all widowed persons want to remarry.

The conference, sponsored by Department of Social Welfare of the Washington Federation of Churches, was held under the auspices of the Washington Ministerial Union and attended by Protestant clergymen and Washington social workers.

Ewen Clague, commissioner of labor statistics of the U. S. Department of Labor, told the gathering that while the proportion of people over 65 in 1900 was about 4 percent of the total population, it has been estimated that by the year 2000 it will have risen to 13 percent.

"We are merely on the threshold of an emerging problem which will get steadily more critical," he declared. Major problems of those in the upper age group, he said, are the need for economic security and a satisfactory way to use leisure time.

After they retire from active work, many older people are left without the means of receiving the recognition, appreciation and mental security they had when they were younger, Mr. Maves pointed out.

Older people, he said, are interested in the same things as younger ones, but allowances must be made for the physical inroads of old age. He warned, however, against the tendency to overprotect people over 65.

"They need to be put on their own, to be allowed to express themselves and to take risks and to glory in it," Mr. Maves said.

He suggested neighborhood programs, organized along interdenominational lines where churches are not large enough to form groups of their own. These programs, he said, should be "tailor made" to meet the needs of the community and should give oldsters an opportunity for worship, study and recreation.

Ex-AF Pilot Jailed on Bad Check Charge

A 25-year-old former Air Force pilot convicted of passing a series of bad checks in a cross-country trip was sentenced yesterday in District Court to serve from six to 18 months in prison.

He is Leland Lamar Jones, jr., of Tulsa, Okla. He pleaded guilty to an information charging him with causing more than $600 in bad checks to be passed in interstate commerce and driving an illegally-obtained automobile across State lines.

Jones was arrested at the Willard Hotel here after the checks began bouncing in various cities of the country.

In another case, John I. Stely, 24, of 3701 13th st. nw., was sentenced to serve from 20 months to five years in prison for taking indecent liberties with a 10-year-old girl here.

Maryland Will Meet Missouri in Gator Bowl Game

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

OF ALL THE YEAR-END BOWL GAMES, most of them are meaningless and hoked-up promotions with dubious claim to fan interest, there are two contests with a special kind of merit. These are the East-West game at San Francisco, and the North vs. South battle at Montgomery, Ala.

The teams that play in those games aren't fattening any already-swollen athletic treasuries of the big-time colleges which are invited to play in the major bowl games. Their purpose is more noble. The East-West All-Stars will be playing for the Shriners' Crippled Children's hospitals, a direct boon to humanity. The Montgomery game is also of lofty purpose.

POVICH

North and South are still troubled by the sectionalism that is a relic of the War Between the States, and although happily the strife is dwindling, the football game in the Cradle of the Confederacy is aimed at better understanding. The funds from the game will build a shrine as a lasting memorial to the wearers of both the Blue and the Gray, and the admission fees are hailed as "an investment in unity and friendship."

It isn't a New Year's Day game at Montgomery. Picked teams of the North and South will meet on Saturday, December 31, representing the products of famed coaches of both sections.

GEORGE MUNGER of Penn will team with Ray Eliott of Illinois and Rip Engle of Brown in selecting the Northern team. The Dixie lads will be in the experienced hands of Blair Cherry, Texas' Sugar Bowl coach, and Bear Wolf, Florida's head coach. From above and below the Mason-Dixon line, they have culled the finest college talent.

The Northern coaches this week made one selection worthy of the highest kind of showmanship. As one of their halfbacks, they chose Tony Cervino. He is the star of the Gettysburg (Pa.) College team and fittingly enough belongs in any North-South clash. But it wasn't mere window-dressing by the North coaches. Cervino, despite his affiliation with a small school, was one of the finest backs in the East this season and was high on the list of pro teams' talent scouts.

Originally, Carl Snavely of North Carolina U. was to head up the South's coaching staff but he abdicated in favor of Cherry when Carolina was invited to the Cotton Bowl. The Montgomery game thus lost the presence of Carolina's Charley Justice as well, but there was a compensation. Tulan's great back, Eddie Price, was added to the Dixie team.

THE NORTH-SOUTH game is one of the mere six bowl games that were indorsed by the National Collegiate Athletic Association at its most recent meeting as deserving of certification. And it is one of the even fewer games to be the topic of a coast-to-coast broadcast. The Gillette Co. is featuring the game on its Cavalcade of Sports, and beaming it also overseas.

In any year, now, the governing college bodies are apt to crack down on the bowl games that have spread to what they view as serious proportions. Last New Year's Day there were 21 of the so-called bowl contests, and rarely could they boast a natural rivalry. For the most part, they decided nothing, and helped nobody except the promoters, and they served chiefly to draw out the college football season to ludicrous lengths.

If the educators are taking a serious view of the bowl games, anyway, it is understandable. They make of football an almost full-term sport. Most squads report before school opens in the fall, and if they are in bowl games they continue in training until New Year's. After that, six weeks of spring practice. When do they hit the books hard?

NOTRE DAME AND THE IVY LEAGUE maintain a special respectability by refusing to be party to any postseason games. The Big Ten held the same view for years until the lure of the $100,000 guarantees of the Rose Bowl became too great. The Irish are making the exception of showing a willingness to meet Army in a post-season game, but that would be only for a charitable cause.

In most cases, the bowl games serve chiefly to make the rich schools richer and the less fortunate colleges at a disadvantage. The same teams can usually be found in the bowls year after year, and thus build up their athletic treasuries to finance the kind of talent-hunting and scholarship-maintaining operations that will return them to the bowls.

Down in Alabama, the football team several years back netted hundreds of thousands of dollars from its various bowl trips. North Carolina has been in a bowl game during three of these last four seasons. So has Oklahoma. The teams that don't get into the bowls must curtail in many directions. For them it's a form of American austerity.

Colts Are Broke Again, Ask Fans to Save Them

Baltimore, Nov. 28 (AP).—The Baltimore Colts sent out a plea for money today shortly after the commissioner of the All-America Conference predicted the league will be increased to eight members next year.

There was no connection between the Colts' announced financial plight and Commissioner O. O. Kessing's presence here. Kessing was here yesterday for the Colts' game with Buffalo.

"We're making plans to come back next season with an eight-team league," Kessing said. He declined to name the new member but Houston is believed to be the city. All-America operated with seven teams this season after New York and Brooklyn merged.

As for merger of the conference and the National Football League, Kessing declared "we want two leagues."

Owners of the Colts announced today they haven't enough money to guarantee operation next year. Baltimore is the second professional football team forced to replenish the till this year. Green Bay of the National League recently announced it was seeking financial assistance from its fans.

Charles P. McCormick, chairman of the Colts board of directors, said the organization lost betwen $70,000 and $100,000 this season. This left insufficient capital to start next year.

McCormick said they need $250,000 which they hope to raise by selling 50,000 tickets at $5 apiece to an exhibition game to be played next August. The conference requires each member to have that much in the bank at the start of the season.

It's the second time that financial weakness has threatened the franchise, which was transferred to Baltimore three years ago from Miami.

Rumors Start Anew

Robert Rodenberg, initial sponsor here, was forced to quit after one season. A group of about 15 businessmen headed by McCormick, owner of a wholesale grocery company, stepped in to assume ownership.

The Colt announcement of financial weakness is expected to fan anew the talk of merger between the All-America and National loops. Retention of Baltimore was reported to be a stumbling block in such a discusssion held last year in Philadelhpia.

Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro, who had been instrumental in convincing the businessmen to take over two years ago, called this the "most severe crisis."

The Colts drew 140,428 to six home games despite a dismal record of only one victory in 12 contests.

It's Marshall's Fault Driskill Says

Baltimore, Nov. 28 (U.P.).—President Walter Driskill of the Baltimore Colts today blamed the club's financial plight on "the stupidity of the pro football war which one man, George Marshall of the Washington Redskins, is prolonging."

"Marshall alone is holding up peace between the All-American Conference and the National Football League," said Driskill.

Tatum Faces 'T' Teacher In Faurot On Jan. 2

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

It's Missouri, whose coach concocted the dazzling Split-T offense, against Maryland, whose coach helped him install it, in the 1950 Gator Bowl.

Announcement that Coach Don Faurot's Tigers would play Coach Jim Tatum's Terrapins in Jacksonville, Fla., January 2 was made yesterday by J. Barrington Darby, chairman of the bowl's selection committee.

It's the second Gator Bowl trip for Maryland in the three years Tatum has coached the College Parkers and his third trip to Jacksonville.

His Oklahoma Sooners routed North Carolina State there in 1947 and his Terrapins tied Georgia the following New Year's Day.

Missouri, which has played and lost four bowl games, was nosed out by unbeaten Clemson, 24-23, in last January's Gator Bowl contest. Previously, Missouri had been beaten by Georgia Tech in the 1940 Orange Bowl, 21-7; by Fordham in the 1942 Sugar Bowl, 2-0, and by Texas in the 1946 Cotton Bowl, 40-27.

Maryland, which closes out its regular season schedule in Miami Friday evening, has won 7 of its 8 games, losing only to strong Michigan State, 14-7.

Missouri won 7 of its 10 games this season, two of the losses being administered by unbeaten Oklahome's Sugar Bowl team and by Ohio State's Rose Bowl bound Buckeyes. The Ohioans trimmed the Tigers, 35-34, while Oklahoma, another Split-T offense team won by 27-7.

Missouri's third defeat was at the hands of Doak Walker's SMU gang and that was one-pointer also, 28-27.

From a meager beginning in 1945 when Wake Forest and South Carolina played before only 20,000 in the inaugural, the Gator Bowl has grown in stature steadily. Today, with a new stadium seating more than 40,000, visiting teams receive a guarantee of approximately $45,000 plus a share of the gate receipts.

Faurot and Tatum, his split-T pupil, served together in the Navy for three years during which time Faurot, coaching at Iowa Preflight and later at Jacksonville Naval Air Station, concocted the spectacular, wide-open offense.

Tatum succeeded Faurot as head coach at Jacksonville NAS in 1945 and employed the split-T offense. His sailor team was voted the best service team in the Nation that year, winning eight of its nine games.

The Teacher Has Taken The Beatings

If Missouri Coach Don Faurot is sorry he taught Maryland's Jim Tatum and Oklahoma's Wilkinson the split-T offense he can't be blamed. His pupils' teams have beaten him four times.

Tatum did it first at Oklahoma in 1946. Wilkinson, who succeeded Tatum at Oklahoma when Jim came to Maryland in 1947, led his Sooners to victories over Missouri in 1947, 1948 and 1949.

Texas Western Plays Hoyas In Sun Bowl

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 28 (AP).—Texas Western College turned down a bid to the Raisin Bowl at Fresno, Calif., today to play Georgetown University of Washington, D. C., in the Sun Bowl game here January 2.

The Miners, who lost a 21-12 decision to West Virginia as the Sun Bowl host at the start of 1949, go into the 1950 renewal with a record of seven won, two lost and one tied.

The El Paso outfit slightly avenged their Bowl loss with a 13-13 tie with West Virginia, and scored their triumphs over Brigham Young, 47-6; John Carroll, 33-7; Hawaii, 14-7; West Texas State, 34-7; Arizona, 28-0; New Mexico, 7-0, and New Mexico A. and M., 69-7.

Its only loses were to Texas Tech by 13-0 and Hardin-Simmons by 33-21.

Georgetown, meanwhile, will be a slight favorite despite its unimpressive record of five victories and four defeats. A comparison between the clubs may be made through the Hoyas' game with the University of Maryland. Georgetown lost that one, 33-7, while West Virginia, which tied the Miners, was handed a 47-7 shellacking by Maryland.

Xavier Decides On Salad Bowl

Cincinnati, Nov. 28 (AP).—Xavier University's football team reversed itself tonight and voted to accept an invitation to meet Arizona State in the Salad Bowl game at Phoenix, Ariz. Earlier in the day the squad had failed to muster the necessary two-thirds majority in favor of the game. Xavier won nine of ten games during the season just ended.

Capot Horse of Year

Chicago, Nov. 28 (AP).—Capot scored another victory over Coaltown today—beating him by a nose as the Daily Racing Form's horse of the year. The Greentree galloper won the Preakness, Belmont, Chesapeake, Synsonby Mile and Jerome Handicap to give its stable its first horse-of-the-year honor.

Charged as Disorderly

Whelchel Jailed After Row

Ex-Redskin Coach Was Celebrating Rebels' Victory

Richmond, Va., Nov. 28 (AP).—Rear Admiral John E. Whelchel, former Washington Redskins coach, was arrested here last night on a charge of being drunk and disorderly as an aftermath of a party celebrating yesterday's Richmond Rebels' football victory.

WHELCHEL

Police said Whelchel was released on $250 cash bond this afternoon for his apearance in the Henrico County Trial Justice Court tomorrow morning.

Keith Molesworth, Rebels coach, said Whelchel, a close friend of his, came to Richmond yesterday from his Virginia Beach home to se the Rebels play.

Following the game, Whelchel was Molesworth's house guest, but when the time came to leave "he insisted upon driving despite the protests of his wife, others in the party and myself," Molesworth said.

Molesworth added that "we felt certain that it would be best to have him arrested and held until he sobered up." He said he did not "intend to press charges," although it was reported that Molesworth suffered injuries during the argument.

Police said they were called to Molesworth's home and found Whelchel being held on the ground by several persons. They said they experienced some difficulty in geting him to jail.

At his Virginia Beach home tonght, Whelchel said he had no knowledge of any charges against him and that he was not out on bail as far as he knew. He said he did remember attending the football game and celebrating the victory at Molesworth's home.

Osmanski Hasn't Decided to Quit At Holy Cross

Worcester, Mass., Nov. 28 (AP).—Dr. William T. Osmanski, head football coach at Holy Cross College, informed the Very Rev. John A. O'Brien, S. J., president of the college, today that it would take a little time to make up his mind whether or not to resign.

The Holy Cross team finished a disastrous season on Saturday with a 76 to 0 beating by Boston College. The team won only one of its 10 games this season. It was the worst season in 54 years of football at Holy Cross.

After the brief session this morning with President O'Brien and his assistant coach, Carl Brumbaugh, Osmanski left for Boston to attend the weekly football coaches' luncheon.

Marines Turn Back Geneva by 49-42

The Quantico Marines, after an opening loss to American University, won their first game of the basketball season last night on the home floor as they staged a late rush to beat Geneva College of Beaver Falls, Pa., 49-42.

Al Diastic of the losers won scoring honors with 14 points.

Redskins May Hold Key to Western Title

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

A SINGLE CHANCE to make their presence felt in the National Football League remains to the Washington Redskins as they play their next-to-last game of the season against the Green Bay Packers Sunday at Griffith Stadium . . . in the event of a Chicago Cardinal victory over the Los Angeles Rams, and a Chicago Bear victory over the Pittsburgh Steelers the same afternoon, the Redskins' final '49 outing will decide the Western Division title . . . Washington meets the Rams in Los Angeles next week and can throw the crown to their opponents by knuckling under or give the Bears the title by winning.

Hugh (Bones) Taylor, Oklahoma City University alumnus, is having a great year even though the Redskins aren't . . . With his eighth reception of a touchdown pass while the Tribe was dropping a 23-7 decision to the New York Giants, Taylor broke a club record held jointly since 1943 by Wilbur Moore and Joe Aguirre . . . Altogther he caught seven passes for 96 yards, giving him a season total of 690 yards and cracking the mark of 623 yards held since 1945 by Steve Bagarus . . . Bones had to concede the day's catching championship to Bill Swiacki, Columbia's great end, who snagged nine of Chuck Conerly's tosses for 117 yards.

Sunday is the day for the Redskins' annual Christmas show at halftime, and more interest may center around Santa Claus' method of arrival than on whether the Packers or Redskins win . . . So far, Saint Nick has been ushered in almost every way except by submarine . . . In more ways, you might say, than the Packers and Redskins have lost 14 out of their 20 games this year.

Most overworked and grittiest member of the Redskins is without a doubt 160-pound Eddie Saenz, who spent half the Giant game with his nose in the snow and under a thick layer of 240-pound tacklers . . . For devastating tackles, look no further than those imposed on New York's Conerly by John (Tree) Adams, Herb Shoener and Ed Berrang

Gordon Asks Tribe for Release To Play on Coast

Eugene, Oreg., Nov. 28 (AP).—Joe Gordon, Cleveland Indians' second baseman, said today he had asked Cleveland for his outright release. He wants to play in the Coast league next season, preferably at Portland.

He told an interviewer here that there was no ill will between him and the Cleveland management. He insisted he wanted to make the move to be closer to his home.

"I naturally expect to lose money in the event I am able to stay on the Coast, but that doesn't enter into the situation," Gordon said.

Boudreau Pilots Cleveland Again

Cleveland, Nov. 28 (AP). The Cleveland Indians' new president, Ellis W. Ryan, announced today that Lou Boudreau would continue as manager of the Tribe through next season.

Boudreau already was under a two-year contract signed last spring. Under terms of that agreement, Boudreau, as player-manager, received a salary reported to be about sixty-five thousand dollars a year.

Ryan, Boudreau and General Manager Hank Greenberg conferred here today after Lou arrived from his home in Harvey, Ill. More talks were scheduled for tomorrow.

"We see eye to eye on our problems and prospects," Ryan said of Boudreau. "I'm very happy to have Lou as a manager."

LeBrun Upset By Dynamite

Little Dynamite scored a smashing upset decision over Leo Le Brun in the featured eight-rounder last night at Turner's Arena.

Dynamite thus decisioned the only man to twice beat Jimmy Cooper, local featherweight who decisioned the bantamweight king Manuel Ortiz.

Dynamite weighed 126 to the Canadian Le Brun's 120½. It was Dynamite's fifteenth straight win since turning pro.

None of the supporting bouts went the distance. In the semi-final, Herbie, Jones, Southeast southpaw, weighing 137½, scored a TKO over Lou Ortiz, 138½, New York, in 2:32 of the sixth. Ortiz was down for the fourth time in the round when the fight was stopped.

In the first eight-rounder on the card Al Winn, 165, New York, disposed of Roland Randall, 163, Washington, in 2:45 of the third round. Winn landed a left to the midsection and followed with a right to the jaw for the knockout punch.

In four-round preliminaries Kid Wolfe, 178, Washington, knocked out Battling Moore, 191, Washington, after 2:03 of the third, and Jimmy O'Brien, 151½, Baltimore, stopped Joe Green, 153, Alexandria, in 1:35 of the second.

A crowd of 505 paid $930.35 to see the fights and give Mrs. Florence Turner, promoter, a net of $690.35.

His time was a slow 20:25.7 as course conditions kept him from nearing the record time of 19:52.3 he set last year.

Don Gehrmann of Wisconsin was second, 30 yards back. Bill Mack of Michigan State was third, Bill Lucas of Manhattan was fourth and Dick Church of Syracuse was fifth. Michigan State won the team championship for the second straight year with a score of 59 points.

Gambling War Looms as Jersey Bookies Take New Yorkers for $500,000 in Baseball Coup

New York, Nov. 28 (AP).—A bookmakers' war appeared in the making today after the disclosure of a betting coup engineered in New Jersey at the expense of their gambling brothers in New York.

Some New York bookies, among those who lost bets estimated at a half million dollars in the recent most valuable player polls in baseball, are crying "double cross" and refusing to pay off.

They claim that advance notice of the American League's choice of Ted Williams had leaked out and the betting boys from across the river pulled a fast one on them. On the other hand, the Jersey odds-jugglers insist they are entitled to the money they claim rightfully belongs to them. All of which adds up to a prospective battle of bookies.

That considerable money was being wagered on the outcome of the most valuable player competition became known November 12 shortly before Jackie Robinson was announced as National League winner. The National League choice was made public November 18 and the American League winner a week later.

Some persons knew that Williams had won in the American League at least 10 days before the official announcement. The Associated Press sports department was besieged by phone callers wanting verification of the Boston slugger's victory.

One Manhattan bookie is said to have bets that could cost him $40,000. Another is reported down $20,000. A small Brooklyn bookie stands to drop $6000.

A fight manager who handles bets on the side hired a man-about-town to find out the exact date when the votes were counted. The manager did not disclose how much money he lost but he was willing to pay his agent off with a "brand-new Cadillac if you can get me out of this mess."

A Jersey bookmaker, who claimed no advance knowledge, disclosed he made a $28,000 wager in New York but admitted he had not yet collected.

Ken Smith, secretary of the Baseball Writers Association of America which conducts the poll, said the votes were tabulated November 11 and the results were handed to the printer the same day. The actual voting takes place before the end of the season.

"A lot of people knew about it," Smith said. "I made no deep secret of it. I told any newspapermen who asked me, confidentially. I had no idea that people were silly enough to bet on such a thing."

games; Tulane, Tennessee and Villanova were considered as opponents for Maryland along with Missouri, but Missouri was given the nod late yesterday in view of the Tatum-Faurot Navy coaching tieups.

Terps Glad to Go

Maryland's squad enthusiastically accepted the invitation at a squad meeting yesterday morning and the Tiger footballers followed yesterday afternoon.

If the Terrapins get by Miami in the Orange Bowl Friday they will have compiled the best football record at Maryland since 1931, when a Curly Byrd-coached Terp team also won eight of its nine games.

In three years at Maryland, Tatum's teams have won 20, lost 7 and tied 2, including the 20-20 deadlock with Georgia in the 1948 Gator Bowl.

Twelve players on the present Terp squad played in the 1948 game. Maryland's Gator Bowl "veterans" include Tackle Ray Krouse, an all-time Gator Bowl selection; End and Capt. Fred Davis, End Elmer Wingate, Tackle Chester Gierula, Guard Tom McHugh, Centers Jake Rowden and Jim Brasher, and Backs Joe Tucker, Stan Levine, Earl Roth, Vern Seibert, Jimmy LaRue and Jack Tagarona.

Following the Miami game, the team will practice three times a week until December 23, when it knocks off for Christmas holidays. The squad will fly to Jacksonville December 26 and resume workouts there, probably at Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla.

Langdon Guard Fractures Leg

Bob "Bud" Becker, veteran guard and center of the Eastern Division champion Langdon Lions, yesterday discovered that he had played part of Sunday's Metropolitan Football League game with Brookland Merchants with a fractured leg.

Becker injured his leg in the first quarter after eight plays, but returned to action in the second and third quarters. X-ray pictures yesterday disclosed that "Bud" had suffered fracture. The Lions lost, 22-0.

7 Area Court Teams Play This Week

Before football is completely removed from the sports scene, basketball is crowding into the spotlight. Seven area teams have already seen action or will start this week.

Virginia Tech plays its third game in Brooklyn tonight, meeting Long Island U. Tomorrow finds Wilson Teachers College meeting Gallaudet in the opener for both and the University of Virginia entertaining the Richmond Royals at Charlottsville.

W. T. C. goes again Friday, at Shepherd College, Shepherdstown, W. Va. Also on Friday, the Quantico Marines play host to the New Jersey Amazons.

Saturday, Maryland University opens its season, at Virginia Tech at Blacksburg, Va. The University of Virginia meets Randolph-Macon at Ashland; Brooklyn Poly invades for a game with American U. and Washington & Lee plays at Wake Forest.

George Washington opens against the Quantico Marines, December 5, and Georgetown opens at Catholic University the same evening, in what is also the curtain raiser for C. U.

Bowie Cuts Race Purses

Bowie, Md., Nov. 28 (AP).—Management and horse owners here have agred to gamble on the betting for the remainder of the meeting, which closes with next Saturday's program.

The management cut its horse racing purses but promised to give them back if business picks up.

The track will reduce its purses by about twenty thousand dollars for the last six days of the meeting. The management agreed to restore the cuts after the meeting ends Saturday if the daily betting average for the 13 days reaches seven hundred and fifty thousand dollars.

Average for the first seven days was $743,199. Last year the daily average at Bowie was $891,410.

Bowie is the third major track in Maryland to cut purses in the face of decreased business. Laurel reduced values before start of its fall meeting and cut them twice during the session. Pimlico lowered purses for the meeting which preceded Bowie.

Clark Praises Schoolboy Play, Benefit Games

Associate Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark yesterday paid tributes to local schoolboy championship football games being sponsored as benefits for the athletic funds of District public high and parochial schools as he addressed the weekly luncheon of the Touchdown Club.

Justice Clark said that he could think of no more worthwhile game than the Interhigh championship contest between Woodrow Wilson and McKinley Tech, played at Griffith Stadium last Friday night under the sponsorship of the Board of Education and The Washington Post.

He paid similar praise to the Wilson-Gonzaga game, scheduled for Saturday afternoon.

"I consider the Touchdown Club one of the outstanding organizations of its kind in leading the fight against juvenile delinquency, and I think its role in encouraging such competitions is truly splendid," he said.

Five Ranking Teams Hold Their Places

By Paul B. Williamson

The nation's top five teams retained their respective positions last week in the Williamson System of collegiate football ratings as Notre Dame, Oklahoma, Army and Rice hung up decisive victories and California enjoyed a week off.

In the Washington area, the University of Virginia, 14-7 victim of North Carolina, dropped one place to seventeenth, and Maryland also dropped a notch to thirty-second, despite an easy win over West Virginia. Navy was ranked thirty-first, Georgetown sixtieth and George Washington 104th.

Fleet Vixen Placed 4th, Rider Banned

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Bowie, Md., Nov. 28.—A disqualification that took the winner out of the payoff followed a photo finish in the first running of the Edgar G. Horn Memorial Purse, featuring the last Monday program here. Mrs. E D. Jacobs' Fleet Vixen was first to the wire, but the stewards contended the filly fouled several horses.

Fleet Vixen was placed fourth and the revised lineup was Al-Jo Stable's Rustle Broom first, E. B. Townsend's Harold Harter second, and Mrs. W. W. Vaughan's Briar White, third.

Among other things Fleet Vixen was accused of blocking Briar White and carrying Rustle Broom out through the stretch.

Rustle Broom, an invader from New York tracks, was credited with his second victory in 30 tries this year. His scattered backers, who who yelled themselves hoarse during the long inquiry, collected at the rate of $39.40 for the usual $2 investment.

Jockey Set Down

Jockey Consolato Errico, who rode Fleet Vixen, was suspended for the remainder of the meeting, and 10 additional days for what the stewards termed "rough riding."

The race, named for the late editor and publisher of the Turf and Sport Digest, a founder and first president of the Maryland Racing Writers, was clocked in 1:46 4-5 for the mile and a sixteenth.

Jockey Robert J. Martin rode Rustle Broom and made the foul claim, which was seconded by Jack Robertson, on Briar White.

Errico had Fleet Vixen behind the pace in the early stages while High Ground Stable's Alexis went out to open up a commanding lead.

Choice Pinched Back

The choice, Briar White, probably would have been in the money except for the fact that he was pinched back when Fleet Vixen and Rustle Broom closed a gap in front of him nearing the eighth pole.

The program opened with a foul claim. Mrs. J. V. Stewart's Acondale was the winner and Jockey Nick Shuk, who rode Mrs. J. B. Hatfield's Paint and Powder into second position, made the objection at the insistence of Trainer Hatfield. Just where the foul occurred appeared to be something of a mystery.

The stewards not only disallowed the foul claim but fined Trainer Hatfield $25 for ordering the jockey to make a "frivolous objection."

Dear Folks:

Joe Tucci, Washington plumbing contractor and sportsman, is adding to his stable. He has purchased Pictoric and Jungle Gypsy from W. L. Brann and will ship them to Florida in charge of Claude Feltner. George Cook, former Washingtonian and a race official, underwent an appendectomy yesterday and is resting comfortably in the Montgomery County Hospital. Jockey Johnny Tammaro has recovered from a recent illness and will resume riding here before going to Charles Town. Horsemen have found a new use for "falsies." They are wrapped against the ankles of rundown horses and fit better than anything yet developed, trainers say. Let's see what Arthur Godfrey can do with that one.—BILL.

HAIR GETTING THIN? then GROOM IT WITH KREML
TO AVOID "SCALP SCUM" AND MAKE HAIR LOOK NEAT
There's nothing better than Kreml to neatly groom thinning hair or sparse locks. Kreml doesn't look the least bit greasy, sticky or gooey. No scummy, dirt-catching film shows through on the scalp. Kreml always keeps hair and scalp looking and feeling so clean. AND SO VERY IMPORTANT—Kreml removes dandruff flakes (more noticeable with sparse hair); it lubricates a dry scalp, giving it a delightful tingle. Change to Kreml today.

Fairfax Religious Program Projected

A religious education program for Fairfax County school children—to afford training formerly given in schools—is planned by more than half the county's Protestant churches.

The Fairfax County Association of Churches has been formed, it was announced yesterday, to conduct the program. Of the county's approximately 60 Protestant churches, 35 were represented at the association's organization meeting.

The Rev. William A. Wright, pastor of Merrifield and Chesterbrook Methodist Churches and president of the association, said yesterday the projected program is the result of cessation of religious education last year in the county school system.

The county schools substituted courses in character education in 1948 for religious training after the Supreme Court ruled against supervised religious training in public schools.

Mr. Wright admitted the association's big problem at this point is to find a means of making the religious training available. "The question has most of us stumped," he said.

Under study are at least two possibilities: holding classes in churches near schools, and using a mobile school—a bus equipped as a classroom, according to Mr. Wright.

The association will have as its first teacher Miss Irene Cox, who was one of four religious instructors employed by the Fairfax County school board last year.

Fairfax Religious Program Projected

A religious education program for Fairfax County school children—to afford training formerly given in schools—is planned by more than half the county's Protestant churches.

The Fairfax County Association of Churches has been formed, it was announced yesterday, to conduct the program. Of the county's approximately 60 Protestant churches, 35 were represented at the association's organization meeting.

The Rev. William A. Wright, pastor of Merrifield and Chesterbrook Methodist Churches and president of the association, said yesterday the projected program is the result of cessation of religious education last year in the county school system.

The county schools substituted courses in character education in 1948 for religious training after the Supreme Court ruled against supervised religious training in public schools.

Mr. Wright admitted the association's big problem at this point is to find a means of making the religious training available. "The question has most of us stumped," he said.

Two Gangs Hunted Here; Bus Driver Slugged

Pair of Holdups Nets $248 Total; 3 Bandits Invade Tourist Home

Two bandit gangs, one armed with a machinegun, were being sought last night after two robberies that netted $248 early yesterday.

In one of the robberies, a bus driver was slugged on the head severely enough to require eight stitches at Emergency Hospital.

At 1:20 a. m., Charles E. Boswell, 22, of 1812 U pl. se., a Capital Transit driver, was sitting in his bus during a layover in the 4500 block of 3d st. se. Two men boarded the bus, he said, and one thrust a gun at him. They demanded first his currency, then his coin changer, his supply of tokens, and books of bus and streetcar passes.

Police said the loot totaled $130. After obtaining it, Boswell said, the man with the gun hit him over the head, and the two fled.

In the other holdup, three men invaded a tourist home. One took the owner upstairs at point of a machine gun and took $218 from him while the other two stood guard with pistols over the owner's wife.

At about 1:30 a. m. officers received a call from Theodore Brooking, operator of a tourist home at 130 D st. se. He and Mrs. Brooking told police she answered the doorbell and three men, at that time showing no weapons, demanded to see Mr. Brooking. She said they asserted it was "very important."

She called him from the second floor, she said, and then one man produced the machine gun, and the others pistols. The robbery followed.

Robbery squad detectives said they believe the two groups are separate gangs, operating independently.

Mauve Decade Recalled as Ancient Cars, Nags Creep Along in Trade Board Parade

The Washington Post

AWARDS OF VALOR—Gold medals were presented by John A. Reilly to, from left, Pvt. George A. Clark, Pvt. Robert T. Eicholtz, and Pvt. Paul V. Minnick

By Sy Fishbein
Post Reporter

Washington backtracked 60 years last night to remind itself of the days when the Board of Trade was just a blueprint in the mind of Beriah Wilkins, then co-publisher of The Washington Post.

It was the eve of the mauve decade once again as torches flared and horses pulled coaches and buggies past the White House on Pennsylvania ave. in celebration of the board's sixtieth anniversary.

Of slightly more recent vintage, tired old jalopies including a Stanley Steamer, Model T Ford, a Hupmobile, Maxwell and old streetcars sputtered wearily behind.

Horses Start Easily

Between the dependable oat burners and the old horseless carriages, it was strictly no contest. The horses needed no more than a "Giddyap," but the old cars coughed painfully and needed much cranking to get under way. One ancient Oldsmobile crawled as far as the Roger Smith Hotel and quit cold.

There was some amazement that more didn't meet the same fate. As he debarked from a jaloppy at Lisner Auditorium, Fire Chief Joseph C. Mayhew remarked, "I didn't think I'd make it down here, that old thing was rattling so."

Including marching and riding members of the Board of Trade, a spruce marching band from the Navy School of Music, rollicking majorettes from George Washington University, and a police escort, a total of 250 persons took part in the parade. Thousands of spectators lined the streets.

The parade preceded a general membership meeting at Lisner Auditorium. It was the big event in the second day of the celebration which will last until Friday.

More Festivities Due

Festivities continue today with a radio broadcast, "This Is Our Town," at 10:45 p. m. over WMAL and the ABC network. Tomorrow evening Herman Steinkraus, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, will speak at the anniversary dinner in the Mayflower Hotel.

After the parade unhitched and the marchers filed into Lisner Auditorium, President Frederick P. H. Siddons called the meeting to order and had the minutes read.

Guests were introduced and John S. Graham, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, presented a distinguished service award to the board for its support of the Savings Bond program.

Then a play, "He Came a Stranger," by Sol Panitz, was presented. The hour-long show was broadcast over Station WMAL.

The play described how a Government girl with "luminous eyes" and the Washington Board of Trade combined to draw the unwilling stranger, Tony, and his electrical business from Berea, Ohio, to Washington, D. C.

Speaking later on the broadcast, B. M. McKelway, editor of the Evening Star, said the board has never tried to "run" Washington. Its authority, he said, springs from respect for the opinions of men who work for what they consider to be the best interests of the people who live here.

District Commissioner John Russell Young also spoke.

Life memberships in the board were presented to 10 men who have been members for at least 50 years, and certificates were given to more than 200 who have belonged for 25 years or longer.

The 10 new life members and the year they joined are: John L. Weaver, 1896, Weaver Bros., Inc., real estate; Corcoran Thom, 1897, chairman of the board, American Security and Trust Co.; Appleton P. Clark, jr., 1898, architect; Ralph P. Barnard, 1899, attorney; Leon Tobriner, 1899, attorney; E. C. Graham, 1900, retired; Harry C. Grove, 1900, retired; James B. Henderson, 1900, retired; Samuel J. Prescott, 1900, retired, and Odell S. Smith, 1900, chairman of the board, Home Federal Savings and Loan Association.

Previously announced awards and commendations for valor in 1948 and 1949 were made to 46 policemen and firemen by John A. Reilly, a member of the Commissioners Committee of Awards for Valor, Police and Firemen.

The committee paid special tribute to Police Corpl. Grady A. Beacham and Pvt. Leon M. Nevitt of the Fire Department, who were killed in the line of duty during the past two years.

Awards Presented

Gold medals, the top award, went to Pvt. Paul A. Minnick, Eleventh Precinct Station, for rescuing a drowning man from the Anacostia River; Pvt. Robert T. Eicholtz, Rescue Squad No. 1, for trying to save a trapped fireman after being painfully burned about the face and arms, and Pvt. George A. Clark, Truck Co. No. 4, for rescuing two children from a flaming second-floor bedroom.

Silver medals were presented to Pvt. Gillespie B. Southcomb, Tenth Precinct Station, for rescuing a baby from a burning basement apartment; Pvt. Edwin L. York, Eighth Precinct Station, for saving two aged men from a burning building; Lieut. Meade C. Fairall, Engine Co. No. 31, for rescuing three boys from a rock in the Potomac.

3 Men Accused in Holdup; $18 Taken, $270 Missed

Three Washington area men were held yesterday for action of the Prince Georges County grand jury on robbery charges after arraignment in Hyattsville Police Court. Bond was set at $500 each.

The three are Henry B. White, alias "Cat," 23, of 109 Massachusetts ave. nw.; Roland Gauthier, 21, of 902 6th st. nw., and Meredith Dawes, 24, a taxicab driver, of 4100 Parkwood st., Cottage City, Md. All pleaded innocent.

Victim in the robbery, police said, was Ernest W. Howard, 25, of 405 Kentucky ave. se. He told officers he met three men in a Washington tavern last Tuesday and visited several drinking places with them. Later, he said, the three proposed going to Baltimore in a taxicab.

Deputy in Lewis Gaming Case Suspended; 2d Trial Set Jan. 9

Fay and Bowie Make Agreement To Delay Extradition Of 14 Accused Men

Retrial of William "Snags" Lewis and 13 others charged with operating a 14-million-dollar a year gambling syndicate, was scheduled yesterday for January 9.

The first trial ended Saturday in a hung jury after four days of deliberation.

They are charged with violating the District lottery laws and conspiracy. All were arrested at 4310 46th ave., Bladensburg, Md., on March 25, in one of eight raids made that day under the direction of United States Attorney George Morris Fay.

The men face similar charges in Prince Georges County, where a grand jury indicted them soon after they were indicted here on April 8.

Assistant United States Attorney William Hitz, who prosecuted the defendants, said Fay's office would oppose extradition of the men to Maryland until after they are tried again in the District.

He said hearings for removal proceedings were scheduled on two previous occasions, and were postponed by agreement between Fay and Prince Georges County States Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie.

The agreement allows Fay's office to dispose of Lewis and the others finally before they would be extradited, Hitz said.

Bowie said Sunday he will prosecute as soon as the defendants are extradited.

Donald Foster Leaving Courthouse Here Yesterday

Gave Testimony At Variance With Prosecution; Told To Take 'Leave'

Deputy Marshal Donald H. Foster, who contradicted key Government testimony as the only defense witness in the "Snags" Lewis gambling trial, revealed yesterday that he had been suspended.

Foster was told yesterday morning to take annual leave, pending receipt of a letter formally notifying him of his suspension. He said he was given no explanation.

During the Lewis trial, Foster gave testimony that was at direct variance with testimony given by the first assistant United States attorney, John W. Fihelly.

Fihelly testified that on the night of March 25, after Lewis and 13 others were arrested in Maryland, defendant Dean Kennedy, 2100 Queens Chapel rd., Avondale, Md., had admitted that he was in the numbers lottery business.

Foster, who was handcuffed to Kennedy during the latter's conversation with Fihelly, testified that Kennedy had actually said "I don't fool with numbers. Horses are enough of a headache for me."

Fihelly testified from notes he said he made during the conversation. Foster testified from memory.

Trial of the 14 defendants ended Saturday when Judge Matthew F. McGuire declared a hung jury after four days of deliberation.

"Enough of a Headache"

Foster said yesterday that he was "apparently being punished for having told the truth."

"There is nothing I can say about this, but evidently it was because of my testimony. I swore to tell the truth. I was under subpena to be there, and everything I testified to was what I saw or heard."

Foster is 41, married and lives at 560 LeBaum st. se.

Fihelly refused to comment to reporters and referred them to United States Attorney George Morris Fay. Fay also refused to comment "at this time."

In an effort to get an official explanation of why he was being forced to take annual leave he did not want, Foster said he was referred to Salvatore Andretta, assistant to the Attorney General in charge of all U. S. marshals.

Foster saw Andretta yesterday morning, with attorney Joseph Sitnick, an associate of Myron G. Ehrlich, counsel for 13 of the 14 defendants.

Pending Investigation

Sitnick and Foster gave this version of the meeting: Andretta said he had received a call from the U. S. Attorney and that as a result of that call Foster would receive a letter notifying him that he was suspended pending a Department of Justice investigation. Andretta told Foster that he personally was not familiar with the case.

To reporters, Andretta would confirm only that Foster's case was being studied.

Foster also revealed that two weeks before the Lewis trial he had talked to both Hitz and assistant prosecutor Edward Carey. Foster said he told them the same story he told from the witness stand.

Foster said that when he was subpenaed by the defense to testify, the marshal who handed him the subpena told him to talk to the Government before testifying.

He said he did talk to Carey before testifying, and told him what he remembered of the conversation. Carey showed him typewritten copies of Fihelly's longhand notes, he said.

Carey confirmed Foster's account of both conversations.

Addition of 3 New Judges Points Up Space Shortage

By Joseph Paull
Post Reporter

The space shortage at District Court is so acute that Chief Judge Bolitha J. Laws is now using his chambers as his courtroom.

Witnesses and litigants stand crowded in the court corridors. Recently, Judge Edward A. Tamm adjourned proceedings so his jury could use his courtroom, the only space available for deliberations. Even lawyers are getting lost finding their way through the maze

The room shortage has been accentuated by the recent appointment of three additional judges. The new consolidated Federal Courthouse, which should eliminate the space problem, will not be completed for two years.

The judges recently got Congress to appropriate money for temporary quarters but they can't find the space.

Plans to lease the old St. Patrick's School, 515-519 4th st. nw., fell through because the rental was too high.

Now, negotiations are near completion for the top floor of the Standard Oil Building, 3d st. and Constitution ave. nw., for two courtrooms, but soundproofing and remodelling will be necessary before the courtrooms can be moved there.

The judges are now living from day to day in their courtrooms. Last week James R. Kirkland used Judge Laws' courtroom, and Laws moved over to a conference room at Justice Department. Judge Burnita S. Matthews used a room at the United States Tax Court. Judge Charles F. McLaughlin used a vacant Municipal Courtroom.

But this week, the Tax Court was not available. Judge Matthews moved to the Justice Department and Judge Laws began sitting in his chambers for pretrial proceedings.

Judge McLaughlin changes his robe in Judge Laws chambers. The court's administrative problems are also handled there.

On Thursday, Judge Matthews will be ousted from the Justice Department and for two days will be without a courtroom. She says she has some exhibits to peruse in chambers to take up her time.

Arlington Jury In Murder Case Is Locked Up

An Arlington Circuit Court jury, trying Leonard H. Cochran on a charge of murder, was sent to an Arlington tourist hotel last night when the trial was recessed at 5 p. m. until today at 10 a. m.

Cochran, 37, of 1745 N. Culpeper st., is accused of the shotgun death of Melvin Lee Daniels, 24, of 1813 N. Cameron st. According to testimony yesterday, the shooting occurred in front of Cochran's home after the men became involved in an argument.

The jury was sent to the tourist hotel in custody of a deputy when the trial was recessed at 5 p. m. Virginia law requires that jurors trying capital offenses remain together until completion of the case.

Submarines Topic Of Sessions Here

Some 300 naval officers and civilian scientists are meeting here this week to look for solutions to one of the Navy's top problems—combating long-range, high-speed submarines.

The closed-door conference on antisubmarine warfare was disclosed by the Defense Department last night.

The department said in a statement that all fleet commands and officers concerned with undersea warfare are represented.

The order is effective until after a court hearing December 13 into the constitutionality of the regulations.

Mother of 3 Indicted in $8406 Theft

Ft. McNair Bookkeeper Says She Took Money To Pay Medical Bills

A 32-year-old woman, who told police she needed money for hospital and doctor bills for herself and her children, was indicted yesterday for embezzlement of $8406.56.

She is Mrs. Dorcile B. Grimes, of 229 Audrey ln., Glassmanor, Md. She was charged with taking the money in small sums over a period of time while serving as head bookkeeper of the Fort Lesley J. McNair Officers' Mess.

In a signed statement, Mrs. Grimes said she took the money to help pay off excessive medical bills. She added she covered up the discrepancies in her accounts by delayed deposits.

Children With Friends

Authorities said Mrs. Grimes gave herself up voluntarily to Army authorities October 12, after first placing her three small children with friends out of town, so they would not be involved in her trouble.

Other indictments returned yesterday by the District grand jury included:

William M. Luke, 28, of 337 17th pl. ne., charged with theft of 7500 gallons of fuel oil which had been transported in interstate commerce, and Garland Palmer, 1106 Columbia rd. nw., and Earl White, 37 W st. nw., charged with receiving the stolen fuel oil.

Authorities said that in December, 1948, Luke, a truck driver for M. I. O'Boyle & Son, inc., brought the oil from Baltimore to Washington but delivered only part of it to the company for which it was destined. The rest, which added up to the 7500 gallons over a period of weeks, he then sold to Palmer and White, who operate the Eastern Fuel Oil Co., 805 13th st. ne.

Charged With Murder

George T. Henderson, 42, a Government Printing Office pressman, of 1416 Half st. sw., was charged with first degree murder in the fatal shooting of his wife, Lordis V. Henderson, 31, at their home October 31 during an argument about her earlier absence from home.

Edward Henderson, 22, an AWOL private from Fort Myer, Va., was indicted on five charges of robbery. Henderson was arrested October 27 and identified as the "baloney bandit" by several store helpers who reported he held them up after first ordering baloney.

Court Reversed

Legless Boy Wins New Trial of Suit

Donald A. Rice, 16, who claims the Government is liable for the loss of his legs after a train accident four years ago, will get another crack at the $100,000 he was refused in United States District Court.

With a sharp reprimand to the lower court for "abuse of discretion," the United States Court of Appeals yesterday awarded Rice a new trial.

The boy's father, George A. Rice, 2667 Nichols ave. se., charged in the original suit that employes of St. Elizabeths Hospital were "negligent" in operating the train shuttle service carrying supplies to the hospital.

Fell Under Car Wheels

Young Rice claimed the engineer kicked at him as he was hanging on the side of a moving coal car on November 14, 1945. The youth fell under the car wheels and lost his legs.

The Government contended Rice was knocked from the side of the car by a "little bank" alongside the spur tracks after he and several other boys had been chased away once before.

Judge Ben Moore, a visiting jurist from the Southern District of West Virginia, found for the Government in the 1947 trial.

In accepting the Government's version of the accident, said Circuit Judge Bennett Champ Clark in his Court of Appeals opinion, the District Court "committed reversible error."

"Clearly Erroneous"

"In the light of evidence before that Court," Clark wrote, "reasonable men could not have concluded that the accident happened in the manner claimed and . . . the lower court was clearly erroneous in making findings of fact which were contrary to the evidence."

Photographs of the scene of the accident, entered as Government exhibits, were "deceptive," the Appeals court ruled.

"It appears to this Court that not only was it improbable that the accident occurred in the manner claimed by the Government, but it was impossible," Judge Clark wrote.

The lower court "so effectively impeached" the testimony of one of its witnesses, the train's engineer, that "we deem it committed error in basing findings thereon," said the appeals court.

The testimony of the Government's two principal witnesses, the fireman and engineer, "was contradictory and at some points evasive until pinned down," Judge Clark wrote.

This constituted an "abuse of discretion in the face of doubt," he continued.

Another Government statement "indicates that it (the court) was influenced in its conclusions by the amount of the damages, and that this consideration overrode the doubts that must have existed in its mind."

Concurring in Clark's opinion were Judges Henry W. Edgerton and Wilbur K. Miller.

Secretary to Keep Fighting $2 Traffic Fine at Pentagon

Mrs. Arvilla C. Johnson, 43, fined $2 early this month for a traffic misdemeanor at the Pentagon has got over her mad.

She's appealing the conviction, she said yesterday, as a matter of principle. Mrs. Johnson is under $10 bond pending the next term of Federal District Court, Alexandria, which opens December 5.

Her Side of Story

One of the first WAC's into Normandy in the late war, Mrs. Johnson marshaled the facts in her case for United States Commissioner Stanley King of the Eastern District of Virginia, on November 7 in this order:

1. There was no sign posted to tell her she couldn't get off the bus in the Pentagon terminal, and, instead of using the nearest stairway, walk along the ledge adjoining the road to the next stairwell.

2. Building Guard R. W. Plummer, who arrested her and several others on November 3, couldn't have seen her walk along the ledge, because "he was hiding behind the corner."

3. Just because Commissioner King fined the others, who preceded her, "kind of automatically," there was no reason it should happen to her.

Appealed $2 Fine

But Commissioner King did fine her $2, and Mrs. Johnson, who lives at 2109 F st. nw., declared her intention to appeal.

Mrs. Johnson, a secretary in the Office of the Army Chief of Staff at the Pentagon, had this to say yesterday:

"I already feel kind of silly about it but I'm going to see it through anyway. I don't intend to let it go until I win, but I'm not going to be impractical about it. I'm just doing this because it's a matter of principle."

She has hired no lawyer, she said. The appeal was reported to be the first ever taken on a verdict handed down by Commissioner King.

Gleason Rites Set Wednesday

Funeral services for Arthur Gleason, 69, of 1473 Monroe st. nw., retired chauffeur for the District Commissioners and the first man to drive a District-owned auto, will be held at 11 a. m. Wednesday at Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

Mr. Gleason

Mr. Gleason's career spanned the horse-and-buggy and automotive eras. A native of nearby Maryland, he started work for the District in 1904 as a surveyor's helper. He became chauffeur for the engineer commissioners about 1914 and retired in 1942.

On his retirement, he was presented a gold watch on behalf of 50 fellow-employes by then Engineer Commissioner Charles Kutz. Mr. Gleason also was driver for the late Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen when he was District surveyor.

Mr. Gleason was the son of the late Albert Gleason, a contractor who helped construct the Mills and old Postoffice buildings. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Lillie M. Gleason; a son, Arthur W. Gleason; a daughter, Mrs. Mildred Tamagni; three grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

Mrs. Sumner Welles, deceased, wife of the former Undersecretary of State, left an estate here of nearly $1,450,000, it was learned yesterday.

Executors of her will filed in District Court asked permission to administer the local property. The will is being probated in the Prince Georges County Orphans Court. In Maryland her holdings were valued at more than $150,000.

Under terms of the will Welles will receive $200,000 cash as well as the income from the bulk of the rest of her holdings.

Upon his death, the residue will go to Mrs. Thora Ronalds McElroy, of New York, a cousin of Mrs. Welles.

Mrs. Welles left Welles' two sons by a former marriage $10,000 each. They are Benjamin S. and Arnold Welles. Mrs. Mae Townsend Pease of Philadelphia, a cousin, was bequeathed $50,000. Servants and employes received $45,000. Mrs. Welles' secretary, Mrs. Anna Whitman, receives $3600 a year for life.

The local property was listed as $1,077,155 personalty, consisting mostly of stocks and bonds, and $364,634 in real estate.

Mrs. Welles died last August in Lausanne, Switzerland, where she had gone with her husband who was attempting to regain his health. She was about 64.

'Dead' Dodo Found at Gallery . . .

Discovered: Extinct Dodo At Art Exhibit

By Lee Grove
Post Reporter

Imagine running into a dodo bird at the National Gallery of Art!

Rudolf Aron, of 3000 Porter st. nw., didn't actually see a live dodo bird there, but the next best thing—the only known painting believed to have been painted from life showing the extinct dodo bird in action.

Aron and a friend, Kurt Rosenwald, who works for the Department of the Interior, were idly looking over the Austrian art exhibition when they spotted the dodo bird in a painting by Roelandt (Roland) Savery, a Flemish painter who lived from 1576 to 1639.

Painting Dated 1628

The dodo bird is in the lower right hand corner of the 16 by 22-inch painting, titled "A Landscape With Birds."

Detail of dodo in the painting from century-old book

The last mention of a live dodo in its native island of Mauritius was in 1681.

According to Aron, "dodo pictures are rarities. Less than 40 are known, and about 30 of these are almost worthless because they were done by people who could not draw.

"Of the other ten, five were due to Roelande Savery — three were done by himself, one by a nephew, and one by a plagiarist.

"Savery, furthermore, was probably the only master who ever had sketched a live dodo," Aron said.

He is believed to have made the sketches from a dodo brought home from Mauritius by a Dutch navigator.

Peering at Wriggling Eel.

"Most dodo pictures were made from dead or stuffed birds; the picture in the Austrian collection shows the bird in action, sharply bent forward, peering almost nearsightedly at a wriggling eel."

Savery was known for the fidelity of his painting to nature, according to Aron; but if he was suggesting that dodos were carniverous he was mistaken. Scientists now believe dodos were vegetarians.

"Savery's ignorance of zoology caused another mistake," Aron said. "All his pictures show the bird with two right legs. The same mistake occurs in the picture by his nephew, and of course the copyist. From this it is concluded that all the pictures were painted from the same set of sketches. Savery could hardly have repeated the mistake if he had painted his pictures independently from live birds.

Repeat the Mistake

"Although Savery's mistake was discovered more than a hundred years ago, our reference books, including Webster, piously repeat the Flemish painter's error to this day," Aron said.

Dodos have been reconstructed in modern timesg from skeletal remains, but Savery's pictures are still the best source of knowledge for their appearance. It was on the basis of the painting now at the national gallery that experts constructed a model for the Chicago Natural History Museum.

7000 Visitors View Austrian Art in Day

The exhibition, which will remain in Washington through January 22, is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays, 2 to 10 p.m. Sundays.

University Service Promised Arlington

Colgate W. Darden, former Governor of Virginia and now president of the University of Virginia, assured residents of the Arlington area last night that he will do everything possible to provide them with fullest university service.

The service is to come through the new Northern Virginia Area Center with headquarters in Arlington.

People To Defeat Reds

Darden said that "communism will not be defeated by great armies or navies, at least not permanently."

"It will be defeated," he said, "in the minds and hearts of the people of this country and those of other countries."

Darden said the university's founder, Thomas Jefferson, saw—"more clearly than anyone in his time"—the need for an educated citizenry if democracy is to succeed.

With that in mind, he said, the university is trying to establish area centers, not only in Arlington but also in other parts of the State. One is now operating in Lynchburg, and four others are planned.

"As far as I am concerned," he said, "I will have done my best if, without impairing the quality, I can bring more fully to you the benefits of the University of Virginia."

2 Other Speakers

Other speakers were J. N. G. Finley, acting director of the Arlington Center, and Dean G. B. Zehner, University Extension director. Finley said that "workshops" of a seminar type will be established to consider community planning problems on request of the Arlington County Civic Federation.

Dean Zehner said that present plans call for a wide variety of university level classes if demand warrants, but 18 persons must enroll to obtain a class. The meeting last night was at Washington and Lee High School.

It was called by a temporary citizens' committee to aquaint residents with the progress of the movement.

C. A. Steele, chairman of the temporary committee, said the center grew out of sentiment in Arlington for a junior college. Interested residents contacted the University of Virginia, he said, and the university "was very interested" in setting up a program of adult education.

Under the outline presented by Finley, courses will be given in any community within a 35-mile radius of Memorial Bridge where there are facilities and demand.

Finley said two formal credit courses are in operation, primarily for teachers, with others—including proposed graduate and undergraduate engineering instruction—due to start in February.

Members of the temporary citizen's committee are Steele, chairman, and Col. Christopher Garnett, Harrison Mann, Dr. and Mrs. R. A. Osborn, Mrs. J. P. Yoder, John Corson, Philip M. Talbott and Mrs. Charles Goode.

Surviving are her husband: Fred E. Moch; two daughters, Miss Dorothy K. Moch and Mrs. Rose Hinckley, and a son, Fred E. Moch, jr., all of Albany; two sisters, Mrs. M. J. Scheuch and Mrs. Louise Kriemelmeyer, and a brother, Oscar J. Kluh, all of the Washington.

Funeral services and burial will be in Albany Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Jennie Chamblin

Mrs. Jennie Lynch Chamblin, widow of Walter W. Chamblin of Leesburg, Va., died yesterday at a nursing home here after a long illness. She was 81.

Mrs. Chamblin was born in Leesburg, the daughter of the late Confederate Army Capt. William B. Lynch and Jane Hamilton Lynch.

She was a member of the King's Daughters and the United Daughters of the Confederacy. Living at Leesburg she was a member of the St. James' Episcopal Church and directed the choir for many years. She also was a member of St. Margaret's Episcopal Church here.

Mrs. Chamblin is survived by a son, Walter Chamblin, 5000 Palisade lane nw., a vice president of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Services will be held at Gawler funeral home, 1756 Pennsylvania ave. nw., at noon Wednesday. Burial will be in Union Cemetery.

Churchill Urges Unity in Europe To Avoid Disaster

London, Nov. 28 (AP).—Europe must unite or face a complete breakdown of her economy and society when American aid ends, Winston Churchill declared tonight.

"That would be attended by a widespread misery which is the soil from which communism springs and the sad diet on which it feeds," the wartime Prime Minister told a European movement meeting here.

Churchill predicted that Eastern Europe would some day be free of Soviet Communist domination. He said all plans for a new Europe must be based on the assumption that when Eastern Europe is free of totalitarianism—"and free they will be in the march of time—they will come to take their places with us in the Council of Europe."

Along Our Street

with Aunt Penny

Last night was the night of the big basketball game. Just as one of the boys said, the home team was "on the beam" and won the game easily.

I believe the thing that impressed me most was the way the team worked together. I began to think how important teamwork is in almost everything—in games, schools, clubs and among neighbors, too.

Take the teamwork on our telephone party line, for example. The neighbors who share our line never tie it up with a long unbroken series of calls. When one party is using the line, none of the others interrupts, unless it's to make an emergency call. In that case, the party talking quickly gives up the line.

Just as teamwork helped win last night's game, it can help us all to better party-line telephone service.

G-Girl Freed In Dynamite Ride Slaying

Berryville, Va., Nov. 28 (AP).—Theresa Koenig, 19, Washington art student, today was acquitted of manslaughter in the November 18 slaying of a boy friend she said threatened her with rape or death by a dynamite blast.

Trial Justice Harold G. Potts dismissed the pretty blond Navy Department draftsman after hearing evidence behind closed doors in Clarke County Trial Justice Court.

Only persons admitted to the hearing were witnesses, members of Miss Koenig's family and of the family of Charles Kenneth Ellyet, 22, who the girl had said she shot when he tried to rape her and threatened to "blow us both up" with dynamite.

Commonwealth's Attorney Edward Williams introduced a statement made by Miss Koenig shortly after her arrest, a few hours after she telephoned the sheriff's office and said "I have just killed a man."

She then led officers to Ellyet's body, slumped in his car in the Huyett woods, near a lonely northern Virginia road.

Justice Potts read the statement privately.

Witnesses at the hearing, in order, were Sheriff W. W. Smallwood, jr., of Clarke County; William Bryant of Arlington, who rode with Miss Koenig and Ellyet from Arlington to Berryville the night before the shooting, and two sisters of the dead youth, Mrs. Marian Mathers of Clifton and Mrs. Virginia Owens of near Berryville.

Accompanying Miss Koenig to the hearing was a young naval air cadet from Pensacola, Fla. She said her engagement to him will be announced during the Christmas holidays, but she declined to identify him. The couple quickly disappeared from the courtroom with members of the Koenig family.

Miss Koenig also said she plans to return to work at the Navy Department in Washington, where she is a draftsman, "this week or next."

The pretty blond had been at liberty under $1000 bond since shortly after her arrest November 18 on a charge of manslaughter, the minimum charge.

The girl ran barefooted in the freezing cold before dawn to a farm to report the shooting. She told authorities she drove down from her Arlington home with Ellyet, a Washington painter, the night of November 17.

They visited Ellyet's sister, Mrs. Virginia Owens, near Berryville, and then, Miss Koenig said, left for hours of aimless driving that ended in the Huyett woods, near the West Virginia State line.

She told Commonwealth's Attorney Williams and sheriff's officers that Ellyet sought to force his attentions on her and she insisted their relations go no farther than friendship.

Miss Koenig told the officers Ellyet showed her the dynamite in the car and threatened to "blow us both up"; that he became amorous and tried to rape her, and that as they struggled she grabbed a .38 he was wearing in a holster and shot him in the abdomen.

Electric Code To Be Revised By Falls Church

Falls Church City Council last night set up a five-man committee to revise completely the city's electrical code, termed "inadequate" by City Attorney Larue Van Meter.

Van Meter, asked to prepare a series of amendments to the existing code, said he has found the regulations outdated. He asked that a committee of "experts" be appointed to revise the rules.

The committee will include R. E. Oleson, an electrican; W. E. Shreve, jr., electrical contractor; Edward D. Rumford, builder; Guy N. Church, developer, and Milton Byrne, electrical engineer.

Van Meter proposed the same five men be appointed as an electrical board to administer the new code when it is finally approved.

The council approved tentatively a proposal to lease to the Falls Church Community Players a city-owned tract of land at Great Falls st. and Lincoln ave. for use as a theater. Final approval, to be decided at a special council meeting Friday night, is subject to approval of the city planning commission and residents living near the proposed theater site.

The theater group plans to erect on the city property a war surplus building to be purchased with its own funds.

Rumford, Me., Nov. 28 (U.P.).—Senator Owen Brewster (R., Me.) said today that pensions should be considered for the Nation's 14 million housewives.

The whole matter of pensions should be studied thoroughly, he said while speaking at a Rumford Rotary Club luncheon.

Silver Spring Jaycees Hear Greek Attache

Capt. Francis N. Sgourdeos, military attache at the Greek Embassy, addressed a dinner meeting of the Silver Spring Junior Chamber of Commerce last night at the Stone House Inn. He discussed the military situation in Greece.

Arden Smith, a senior at Bethesda-Chevy Chase High School, read the essay which made him Montgomery County winner and second in Maryland in a "Voice of Democracy" contest being sponsored nationally by the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

'Not the Crime'

Character Held Vital In Parole

Character, not the crime, is the determining element in parole, the Prince Georges County Chamber of Commeree was told last night by F. Murray Benson of Baltimore, director of the State division of parole and probation and president of the Middle Atlantic States Parole Association, at a dinner at the Prince Georges Golf and Country Club, Landover, Md.

It is not the crime, nor friends trying to get the man out, "but whether the man has enough character to sustain him when he gets out," Benson said.

Benson said too much emphasis in modern life is being placed on security and not enough on liberty and self-sufficiency.

He said only 25 percent of those incarcerated in Maryland get out on parole.

Superintendent of Prince Georges County Police Ralph W. Brown described the boys' club and teen-age canteen work being carried on in the county, and said parents were slow to volunteer their aid.

Roy Bright, senior parole officer and probation officer for Southern Maryland, described the history and operation of juvenile courts since their start in the county in 1937.

Lieut. Louis Mackall, of the Prince Georges police, who helped organize the boys' work in the county, was also presented at the meeting.

Silver Spring Group Fights Water Cost

The Allied Civic Group of Silver Spring last night protested a recent ruling in which the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission transferred the cost of upkeep on water and sewer connections to property owners.

The ACG asked the commission to recind its order of October 27 and keep on paying maintenance of pipes from the meters to the main line which the commission itself installed.

Challenging the commission's authority to transfer the costs, the group contended property owners already paid service charges for the upkeep in their tax bills.

The group voted to ask the Interstate Commerce Commission to allow the Oriole Bus Co., a Montgomery County bus line, to pick up passengers in congested areas of Silver Spring. The ICC forbade the bus company to make such pickups two years ago after a protest by Capital Transit.

The group called upon the National Capital Park and Planning Commission to release to the Maryland PPC an already appropriated sum of $600,000 for extension of Sligo Creek Parkway, Rock Creek Parkway, Little Falls River Area Parkway and acquisition of land around Northwest Branch.

The group received a letter from Governor William Preston Lane, jr., stating that the proposed widening of Georgia avenue will be held up until the winter weather is over.

David Conners and 3 Others Recaptured at Hagerstown

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 28 (Spl.).—Four prisoners, including David Conners, de luxe house prowler from the District of Columbia, were back in custody today, less than 24 hours after they escaped from the Washington County jail here.

Conners was caught in Hagerstown, and two prisoners from here were caught in a hobo jungle in a woded area just west of this city. A Maryland State Trooper fired a shot over their heads while pursuing the two through the woods, and they stopped and surrendered.

The fourth prisoner, George Watts, 22, also of Washington, was recaptured through a traffic check at Harrisburg, Pa. Police said he stole a doughnut company truck in Hagerstown and drove it to Harrisburg. On that charge officers here said, the FBI is expected to enter the case because of interstate transportation of the stolen vehicle.

Conners, also 22, is at liberty on $1000 bond on housebreaking charges in Washington, D. C. He was arrested there early in October and confessed 64 home burglaries in the previous 18 months. Washington officers at the time said Conners was such a smooth operator that in some cases victims did not know they had been robbed.

Conners and Watts were picked up here early on the morning of November 4, after they allegedly burglarized an automobile agency. Police caught them after an alert citizen became suspicious of their activities around an automobile.

The two Hagerstown prisoners are James Martin and Donald Turner, both 20, and both charged with auto theft.

All four men were to have gone to court today. Sunday afternoon, according to Sheriff Joseph Baker, they persuaded another prisoner, a trusty, to release them from cells into the main part of the jail. There they loosened a bar on a second-story window, and got out, he said.

Waives Extradition

At Harrisburg, Sergt. Alfred Verbecken of Pennsylvania State Police, said Watts had waived extradiction for return to Maryland, and Sheriff Baker said he probably will be returned here late tonight or early Tuesday.

Sheriff Baker said the three men caught here have been placed in solitary confinement. He said charges will be brought against the trusty for his part in the jail break, and a decision will be made, probably Tuesday, on additional charges against the four who escaped.

Rep. Judd Hits U. S. 'Appeasement' in China

By Genevieve Reynolds

"IF THE United States Government recognizes the Communist government in China, all Asia will stop resisting communism." prophesied Representative Walter Judd (R., Minn.) yesterday. He spoke at a luncheon of the International Outlook Section of the Twentieth Century Club held at the Y.W.C.A.

He said that recognition of the Chinese Communist government would mean "pulling the rug out from under Asia."

"If we recognize the Chinese Communists, we are telling the people in Asia that it is no use to fight Communists," he said.

"If Asia goes Communist, both Europe and the United States will be lost," he predicted, calling communism "a mortal enemy."

Challenging the theory that recognition of Communist China is essential to trade, Judd declared, "It is better to lose trade temporarily than to lose an entire continent."

Recommends Four Points

TO SAVE China and Asia from being swallowed up by Communists, Judd recommended the following steps: (1) to reverse the administration's appeasement policy in Asia to one of resolute opposition to communism; (2) to withhold recognition from the Communist government; (3) to help anti-Communists hold the islands of Formosa and Hainan; (4) to send American aid into China on the same pattern as sent to Greece.

Representative Judd accused the administration of continuing to follow an appeasement policy in China. Declaring that such a policy had failed, he said," the Soviet is winning while it beguiles us with talk of the corrupt Chinese. Should the Communists become the recognized government, every Chinese embassy and consulate in the world becomes a center of Communist propaganda, intrigue, espionage and conspiracy against that country and ourselves."

"A line is being prepared to show how corrupt China is, to justify our failure in that country," said the speaker. "The line is also to let China fall without appearing to let it fall."

"Everything the Communists have announced regarding China later became our foreign policy," he continued. "You are going to hear more about the corrupt, inept, inefficient, undemocratic Nationalist government as first put out by Communist propaganda."

Pointing out that the United States foreign policy has failed in China, Judd said that "if administration leaders can't find a way to save China, they should resign."

"How can you expect the Chinese to support a government we've written off?" asked the speaker. "All Asia and China knew a year ago that we were putting our chips on communism. China needed help, not moral lectures from the bleachers."

Elliston, Latimore Speak

THE UNACKNOWLEDGED object of the cold war is to achieve a balance of power with the Soviet Union, Herbert Elliston, editor of The Washington Post, told members of the D. C. League of Women Voters last night.

Mr. Elliston and Owen Lattimore, author of "Situation in Asia," discussed aspects of "Facing Up To Our Foreign Policy" at an open meeting held at the Statler Hotel. The Washington Post editor said our aim is a balance of power which will promote and retain that "uneasy equilibrium which the historian calls peace." He pointed out that in the absence of a universal order of one world, a new balance has to be laid down and "destiny has put the task on our doorstep."

"War," he said, "is something to prevent, and this is the purpose of diplomacy—to gain a balance of power by means short of war."

Mr. Elliston emphasized that the policy must be in the hands of the "civilian-minded."

Lattimore expressed the belief that the Chinese Communists havenut won by striking power, or the power of conversion to their ideology. They have won, he said, by the unwillingness of the Chinese to sacrifice for their country plus their disillusionment and disgust with the Kuomintang.

As for recognizing the Communist government in China, Lattimore contended that there is no urgency for an immediate decision. However, he said, if other governments recognize the Communists, we should consider recognition.

To the poser, should the United States retard the economic development of Communist China, Lattimore replied that it would be dangerous to go along on the easy assumption that Asia must have western knowhow. "We do not have an indefinite option on controlling the economics of Asia by what we supply," he averred.

When asked to support his balance of power thesis, Elliston said that he was not interested in the balance of power as a permanent policy. After obtaining a balance of power, he hoped for a union of the free world where law and order would predominate.

Federation Reaffirms D. C. Vote Campaign

By Norma Lanum

THE GENERAL Federation of Women's Clubs has reaffirmed its support for national representation for the District and is engaged now in a campaign for passage of the Neely bill (S. J. 132), which would grant District citizens the right to vote in presidential elections.

The announcement was made yesterday by Mrs. Leslie B. Wright, national legislative chairman, at a meeting of the D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs at the Hamilton Hotel.

Since Senator Matthew M. Neely introduced his legislation last September, Mrs. Wright has been distributing literature to the 16,500 member clubs of the federation throughout the United States urging individual members to write their Congressmen in favor of the bill. The general federation, however, has supported national representation for the District for several years previously.

Ask Reindorsements

DURING the business sessions of its all-day meeting, the D. C. Federation called on the General Federation to "reindorse" its sponsorship of the Equal Rights Amendment. The original federation resolution indorsing this amendment was adopted in 1944 and therefore must be renewed during the convention next year, since a federation resolution expires after five years.

The D. C. Federation also denied membership to the Women's Association of Allied Beverage Industries and granted membership to the Association of Phillippine-American Women on the recommendations of the department of club extension.

Mrs. Frank J. Mulkern, club extension chairman, stated that several "objectives" of the W. A. B. I. make it ineligible to Federation membership.

Support Driver Training

ANOTHER proposal adopted by the federation supports a broader driver-training program in public schools of the District.

Eric Stein, a State Department consultant to the United States delegation to the United Nations, addressed the afternoon meeting of the federation. He reported progress made in the General Assembly during the past year on disposition of Italian colonies, and protection of human rights in Rumania, Bulgaria and Hungary. He also described the election of Yugloslavia to the Security Council.

About Covering Buttons at Home

I am especially interested in getting a tool outfit for covering buttons and thought perhaps you might be able to inform me where I can get such a kit; also one for making belts (covering belts and buckles from same materials as dress). Everyone I know has to send away to have this done. I'd like to start the hobby myself. C. F. S.

A trimming store on G st. sells inexpensive kits for covering buttons. A kit with a tool and a dozen molds in one size sells for 69 cents. Another kit with three sizes of buttons and three tools of corresponding size sells for $1.59.

Also, within the past month a new kind of button for covering has appeared on the market. It is arranged in two parts which snap together in such a way as to hold the covering tightly. This button sells at 25 cents a card. For further information about this type of button and the covering kits, I suggest you call the store at District 6439.

As for belt buckles to cover, the same store sells a buckle which can be covered with fabric by pressing.

Can you tell me what I should use to whiten and brighten the small white bathroom floor tile? I've tried bleach, ammonia, vinegar, and strong soap, but without success. A. H.

Some tile, which is less than the very highest quality, is not a clear white. Since your tile did not become white by use of a bleach, it is very apt to be a grayish tile which cannot be made entirely white. To find out for sure whether the discoloration is due to the quality of the tile or to embedded soil, rub a small area with sandpaper or wool.

If this area becomes entirely white, then the surface can be cleaned by hard rubbing with an abrasive. Steel wool is fine, or a very stiff brush will sometimes do the job. As an added help, sprinkle kitchen cleansing powder on the tile as you scrub. When the tile is white and entirely dry, giving it a thin, well-rubbed coat of paste wax will restore the shine and help to protect the surface against soil.

Can you tell me where in Washington I can buy cheap manuscript second sheets? By cheap, I mean about 75 cents to $1 a ream. I need this for carbon copies for my own reference. So far I've had no luck in locating a stationer who handles this cheap a grade of paper. J. S. S.

An office supply firm which has four stores in Washington sells yellow typewriter-size second sheets for $1.14 a ream. In four ream lots they sell it for $1 a ream.

My awning man won't tell me, but maybe you can and will. Name one or more good liquid cements to paste a canvas patch on a canvas awning. A. L. J.

A patch may be attached to an awning by using rubber cement such as is used for patching an inner tube. Lay the awning right-side down on a flat surface. Cut a piece of awning to cover the break and coat both the patch and awning with the cement. Allow to dry until tacky and place the patch on the awning. Pound with a hammer to attach the two firmly.

Can you tell me what I may use to retain the snowy whiteness of delicate handkerchiefs, embroidered in color? A. H.

Before washing, let them soak for 15 minutes in cold water to which two tablespoons of household bleach has been added for each quart of water. This is not enough bleach to affect the color. As a precaution against graying, be sure the handkerchiefs are well rinsed so that no soap is allowed to remain in them. With good washing techniques, using a bleach and the preliminary soaking should not be necessary before each washing. Using it every third wash should be enough.

My children spilled water that contained water color paint on my green axminister rug. Please tell me if you know of anything that will remove the stain. W. C.

Since the paints are water soluble, you may be able to remove the stain by thoroughly wetting the spot and rubbing corn meal into it. As the corn meal absorbs dye, brush it out and rub in more clean,

Is there anything besides turpentine that I can use to thin oil paint and to clean the brushes? Turpentine makes me sick. MRS. A.

There must be other folks, just like yourself, who are bothered with turpentine odor, for there is a product now on the market which does all the things turpentine does except leave an odor. You can get it by asking for paint thinner at well-stocked paint stores. One store which sells it can be reached by calling DIstrict 1130.

You can use this same product to clean your brushes, too. Or, clean them with a product which comes in powder form to be mixed in water. It is made especially for cleaning paint brushes and can be purchased at paint, hardware, and dime stores.

Can you tell me where I can obtain mahogany veneer for use in repairing antique furniture? I know of a firm in New York where it can be obtained, but would much prefer buying it here where it can be seen and properly matched. P.W.

A woodworking firm on 4th st. nw., sells mahogany veneer in 1/28 and 1/8 inch thicknesses. This is African mahogany, but can be stained to match other colors of mahogany. For further information I suggest you call the firm at National 5624.

Helen Duggan Wed

WASHINGTON friends of Helen Boyd Duggan are wishing her every happiness upon her marriage to Frederick A. Muehleck in New York on Friday.

The widow of Laurence Duggan, brilliant young State Department official whose tragic death in New York last December was shrouded in mystery, has been serving as assistant to the publisher of the Reporter, a fortnightly magazine. She is a Vassar graduate.

Mr. Muehleck was graduated from Dartmouth College and the Yale University Forestry School. He is now a purchasing agent for Western Electric. The simply arranged ceremony took place in the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church with the Rev. Ralph Nesbitt officiating.

Ready for U. S. Debut

WHEN THE LATE Hans Kindler was in Europe last summer he heard for the first time a young Finnish soprano, Tii Niemela. She was thrilled when he promised to introduce her to audiences in this country under the auspices of the American European Artistic Exchange which he had recently organized. But death intervened and it was left to Mrs. Kindler to carry out her husband's wish.

So-o- now Madame Niemela has arrived in Washington. She was entertained by the Finnish Minister and Mme. Jutila at a small luncheon yesterday, and will be in New York on Sunday to give her first American concert. Her accompanist will be her husband, Pentti Koskimies, who shared honors with his wife at the luncheon yesterday.

NEWS NOTES:

President and Mrs. Truman and the Secretary of State and Mrs. Acheson weren't the only ones who received gifts from Iran's Shah. Before he left town, a little token of friendship arrived at the Vinsons' apartment at Wardman Park in the form of a room-sized Persian rug.

Being welcomed back to Washington are Admiral and Mrs. A. Toutant Beauregard, who have taken the house at 2730 Thirty-fourth Place. Mrs. Beauregard is the former Elizabeth Munford of Washington. She and the Admiral have been living in California since his retirement from active duty.

Peggy St. Lewis is showing the newest in hats and bags brought back from her recent trip to Paris. The purse of dull black satin is severely plain save for a stylized mask decorating the oval surface. The same applies to the top of her round flat hat.

GIFT wrapping is fun—and it is also art. Washington women will have a chance to learn something about this fascinating occupation this week at a "Gift Wrapping School" to be held at Woodward & Lothrop's December 1, 2, and 3. Sessions will be held daily at 11 a. m. and 3 p. m.

Old Art, New Tricks

Gift Wrappings Work Cinderella Magic

By Peggy Preston

WRAPPING gifts in a special fashion is an ancient and simple art. Yet it is one that few of us ever master. Lack of time is our common excuse—that, and the absence of real know-how.

Well, this week Washington women are going to have an opportunity to remedy the situation. A "Gift Wrapping School" opens at Woodward & Lothrop with Mrs. Ada Wilde of Chicago as instructor. Sessions will be held December 1, 2 and 3, at 11 a. m. and 3 p. m. daily. Mrs. Wilde promises to teach us the latest tricks in the gift-wrapping trade, and in a minimum of time. One session should do the job for you.

It is something we all should learn to do well, for a prettily wrapped gift is a symbol of thoughtfulness and consideration. In addition it is good for the economy-minded person. Since the smallest token gift is impressive when packaged with cleverness and imagination. The proper selection and application of the right paper and ribbons can turn the plainest of gifts into a bright, sparkling Cinderella package.

Clever Chinese Started It

SO FAR as we know, the Chinese were the first to recognize the value of clever wrappings for gifts. More than 1000 years ago they began to give a special symbolism to the manner in which they wrapped gift trinkets. Red, our favorite Christmas color, became a "must" for Chinese new year's gifts.—those which signify that all is well, that old debts are settled (as all are traditionally supposed to be at the dawn of the new year.)

Then they topped the red paper with special seals, seals unlike ours, which serve to hold the paper in place or for extra decoration. Done in gold leaf and colors, the traditional Chinese designs, which are still in use, range from the Fu Dog, meaning protection, through the Fir Tree for "long life," the familiar bamboo for "virtue, long life, many sons," and so on.

Modern Wrapping Less Symbolic

OUR own modern gift wrapping process is simpler and less symbolic. But it can be equally effective. We have at our command all manner of new and artful paper and decorations. Mrs. Wilde can guide us in making suitable selections for various types of gifts and different kinds of boxes. She can tell us when to use dark paper and when to use that which has diagonal patterns.

These and other tips she has ready for us. So if our gift packages are dull and unimaginative again this year, we will have only ourselves to blame!

Garfinckel's 'Veep' Sponsors Design Contest

A design competition in Paris for French designers and exporters, sponsored by Miss Elizabeth Fairall, vice president of Julius Garfinckel & Co., was announced today.

The prize-winning competition will be known as the Julius Garfinckel Award in memory of the late founder of the specialty shop. It will consist of prizes of 100,000 francs in 17 categories, including pottery, toys, handbags for day and evening, gloves and mittens, toilet and cosmetic novelties, costume jewelry, children's wear, glass, linen, tableware, wood, lingerie and hostess gowns, scarves, textiles, leather goods and men's accessories.

Judging of the designs will take place in Paris in February by a committee of Americans experienced in the requirements of the American retailer and consumer.

The project has the blessing of Barry Bingham, chief of ECA's mission to France. Last August during the French couture showings, Mr. Bingham asked American buyers in Paris to suggest ways of increasing French exports. Miss Fairall, among those taking part in the discussions, planned the contest on her return to Washington.

Judges will include Mrs. David K. E. Bruce, wife of the United States Ambassador to France, and Mrs. Bingham, wife of the ECA chief.

Rich Winter Fare Gone With the Open Sleigh

This is the second of three articles on winter slimming.

By Ida Jean Kain

BACK IN THE DAYS of "Over the River and Through the Woods to Grandmother's House" . . . in an open sleigh, or trudging through the crunchy snow, breath coming quick and sharp in the frosty air, there was ample need for hearty winter fare.

IDA JEAN KAIN

In those days (often referred to as the good old days, though I doubt we would relish a return to inconveniences like the back-porch pump) extra food was needed to offset the rigors of the weather. But man's triumph over old man winter, through steam heat, insulation, warm cars and fur coats (mink or bunny), has cut down the requirement for extra food in cold weather.

We welcome the conveniences that make life easier, but we cling to the old food habits and the traditional winter favorites. The hitch is, it's fattening. And the bulk of people tend to gain excess weight in winter.

If you are already overweight, you don't want to add pounds this winter, you want to take them off. So let's put the science of nutrition to work to control appetite and reduce on satisfying meals.

First, step up the protein. Protein foods are particularly welcome in cold weather—they're more "heating" because they stimulate the body to increase its output of energy. This works to advantage in reducing. Actually weight can be lost faster when a greater proportion of the calories furnished come from protein foods than on exactly the same number of calories but with less protein. That is scientific magic.

Eggs Are Good

EACH MEAL can be built around a complete protein, which makes the meal more satisfying and also has an energy hold-over. Have bacon or an egg for breakfast; cheese, a second egg or fish at lunch, and lean meat with the evening meal; plus a glass or two of milk each day.

A small amount of carbohydrate in the reducing diet keeps the body fires burning brightly. You can have a fluffy baked potato, 2 or 3 thin slices of bread a day, delicious fruits and vegetables and a simple dessert—and lose excess weight.

Sauce Delicious Over Fruit

Delectable for serving over fruit cup or compote is this sauce made with honey and and wine:

SPECIAL FRUIT SAUCE

½ cup water
3 cardamon seeds, peeled and crushed fine
½ teaspoon salt
6 or 8 mint leaves, crushed or cut fine
1 tablespoon lemon juice
½ cup Sherry, Madeira or Port wine

Mix honey, water and crushed cardamon seeds; simmer 5 minutes. Add the salt and mint leaves. Cool and strain. Add the leman juice and Sherry or other wine. Pour over chilled fruit and serve.

Cantaloup balls, honeydew melon balls and blueberries make a delicious combination. The sauce is excellent, too, on grapefruit segments.

PETUNIA!

There must be something vital I forgot.
The raisins baked as hard as BB shot!

But they wouldn't bake hard and dry, Petunia, if you would soak or pre-cook them first. They'll be plump and moist then, and more flavorful too.

A Compromise on Onions

One woman whose family was split in twain over the subject of onions, solved the problem of boiling a chopped onion in water to cover until tender. She then strained the water and used that liquid along with the other ingredients in her cooking. She had that added flavor without any definite piece of onion to come forward to humiliate her.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Jilted by Man She Loved, Girl Soon Married On Rebound and Husband Healed Her Heartache; Now the Old Beau Turns Up and She's Confused

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: A year and a half ago, at the age of 18, I married John, a young college sophomore. A year prior to our marriage I was engaged to Tom, also a college student. After his graduation our engagement was broken by a mutual misunderstanding and I was heartbroken—but with the help of John, now my husband, I was confident that I had forgotten.

However, about two months ago Tom came back to our town, still unmarried, to be a coach at the local high school. We see each other quite often at different social events, and one day recently he drove me home from downtown with an armful of packages. As we live quite a distance from the bus stop, a ride home with a friend is always welcome.

Is It Possible She Loves Both?

ON THE WAY Tom said he still loved me and never would marry unless he could have me. He also told me that a big reason for his taking the job in this town was the thought that we might be reconciled. Then he said he couldn't stand living here and seeing me married to someone else.

My problem is this—although I have tried constantly to put him out of my mind, I find there is still a place in my heart for him. I am greatly puzzled by this, because I am still deeply in love with my husband, and even though we have no children, I never would divorce John or do anything that might hurt him.

I urge you to tell me, please, if Tom is only a passing fancy, or can you really love two persons at the same time? Am I right in trying to forget Tom?—and in sticking to my husband? V. C.

Wife Is Taking Senseless Tack

DEAR V. C.: As I get the pitch, you are going out of your way to revive Tom's memories of the pre-marital romance, contriving in innocent guise to put yourself in his path since he's back in town, and in general flirting with hm—altogether a senseless course of action, to be frank.

Why are you taking this tack? Because you cling to a notion of unfinished business with the old beau who threw you over and backed away from marrying you when the deadline came. The unfinished business, such as it is, has to do with your failure to wash your hands of wishful thinking and come to terms with reality.

In stalking Tom, now that he's back, you probably started with two foggy aims in your conscious mind: 1. To show off to him how happy, secure and safe you are from the possibility of further hurt from or need of him, in the sheltering arms of your married love; 2. to wound his ego by this means if possible, and rub salt in that wound by reviving his interest and then rejecting it—to avenge the run-around he gave you.

Man Is Singing Soap Opera Blues

HOWEVER, in pursuit of these objectives, you've come upon the disturbing realization that you aren't as "safe" from Tom's personal appeal as you meant to prove. And he, recognizing the vulnerability of your attitude—as persons concerned always sense that sort of thing—is reacting with emotions to suit, which accounts for the soap opera sentiments he aired on the ride home.

The pitch on Tom's side isn't love; he isn't emotionally mature enough for that. Narcissism, or self-love, is as far as he's got on the road of amative development. But let's give him credit that he thinks he's sincere in striking a frustrated lover pose now that you're married. Actually the truth is that circumstances and your appetite for punishment—in respect to him—have suddenly provided him with a brand-new glamor version of himself, that he's playing to the hilt.

Is he only a passing fancy? Well, that's all he's worth in relation to you, certainly—or as regards his intentions towards you. He would react as before, if again you were free to marry him. Thus as a matter of self-protection, quite aside from considerations of conjugal decency, you're perfectly right in sticking to John, whose goodness is your shield against humiliation and misery. M. H.

TO HUSBANDS whose Wives are going through "CHANGE OF LIFE"
No question about it! A woman going through "the change" is often a real problem. Nervous, tense . . . depressed one day, cranky the next . . . it's enough to drive a man almost crazy!
But take hope, Mister! If your wife is just a "bundle of nerves" because of functional upsets, tell her about Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.
Developed by a prominent doctor, this famous uterine sedative has been used by over 7 million women, often with remarkable results. W. L. & T. Gets $50,000 Face Modernizing

By S. Oliver Goodman

What the well-dressed and well-lighted bank is wearing these days is exemplified at the Washington Loan & Trust Co., 9th and F sts. nw., as the result of a $50,000 modernization program just completed.

Walls have been repainted an oyster-white to reflect to the best advantage the new fluorescent lighting system. The lights give 50 foot-candles of illumination, far above the 30 to 35 foot-candles which engineers had deemed ample.

With no interference to daily work, old-fashioned cages were removed and modern counters without glass or wickets were put in their place. Wood partitions around officers' desks were lowered, giving a more open and friendly appearance.

President Alfred H. Lawson said yesterday that the transformation was made within six weeks.

WHO'S WHO TODAY; C. R. Whitaker has been promoted to assistant vice president of Southern Railway in charge of purchasing and related matters, effective December 1. He succeeds the late L. H. Skinner . . . Ralph G. Bosher, Virginia Beach district manager of Jefferson Standard Life Insurance Co., will address the District of Columbia Life Underwriters Association at a luncheon meeting December 8 in the Mayflower . . . William H. Kearns, jr., former Navy lieutenant, has been appointed to the staff of Otto Schaler & Associates, Washington and New York public relations counsel . . . Homer P. Hargrave, partner of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Beane, has been elected chairman of the new Midwest Stock Exchange.

BOND OFFERING: Alex Brown & Sons and associates are offering today $5,200,000 of Lexington Market Authority 3½ percent revenue bonds at a price of 103⅜ percent to yield 3.32 percent to maturity. The bonds, due November 1, 1979, are to be used by the city of Baltimore to construct modern market facilities and adequate parking space.

PENNSY OUTLOOK: Pennsylvania Railroad is expected to snap out of red ink this month and in December, after reporting nothing but deficits since last June. For the first 10 months this year, the deficit was $4,543,414, against net income of $29,251,356 in the same 1948 period. The road's officials are inclined to view the rest of the year optimistically. An indication of the road's optimism is the announcement that between now and December 1, Pennsy will rehire 20,000 employes laid off in all departments since September. "The move is permanent," said a spokesman, "unless there is some trouble in the coal fields."

EPCO REPORT: The first nine month's net income of Potomac Electric Power Co. was more than sufficient to meet the full year's dividend of 90 cents a common share. In an interim report, Pepco showed net of $3,686,104 for the nine months ended September 30, equal to 95 cents a share. This compared with $2,852,263 or 72 cents a share in the same 1948 period.

STORE SALES: The Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reports that Washington department store sales dipped 3 percent in the week ended November 19, but some store officials here claim that business was never better. The dollar volume dip is chiefly caused by the lower average price of merchandise this year, one source said, and unit sales are generally ahead of last year.

SPEAKERS: Sir Oliver Franks, British Ambassador to the United States, and Harry A. McDonald, chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission, will be speakers at the thirty-eighth annual convention of the Investment Bankers Association in Hollywood, Fla., December 4 to 9. President Hal H. Dewar said another highlight will be a roundtable on cooperation within the securities industry.

ODD LOTS: Long-term United States Treasury bonds found a firm price footing yesterday for the first time in six trading days. The sharpest dips came last Wednesday and Friday, inspired by statements of bankers before a congressional subcommittee. The bankers expressed the opinion the Federal Reserve System should unload some of its Government bond holdings in the open market to drive down the prices of the issues, thereby increasing the interest yield . . . Sharon Steel Corp. yesterday announced a $5 a ton increase for two types of steel products . . . Botany Mills yesterday announced a new fabric, a combination of wool and nylon, to supplement its line of virgin wool products. The new fabric will be called Botanyl . . . Cadillac Motors, which already has set a new production mark of 80,000 vehicles this year, expects to exceed 100,000 next year. Cadillac, currently closed down for model changeover, will resume output on December 5 with 1950 models . . . Sterling Drug, Inc., announced it had acquired the entire stock interest of the John Puhl Products Co., Chicago maker of bleach, ammonia and bluing.

Steel Output Bounces Back To 87.7% Rate

New York, Nov. 28 (AP).—The American Iron and Steel Institute reported today an increase in the steel operating rate this week to 87.7 percent of capacity from 78.2 percent last week.

Production this week was estimated at 1,616,800 net tons of ingots and casting as against 1,441,600 tons the previous week.

The increase comes as more and more steel mills get back into production following settlement of the long strike over pensions and insurance.

A month ago in the midst of the strike the steel operating rate was 8.8 percent, amounting to production of 162,000 net tons. A year ago the steel industry was operating at the rate of 100.1 percent of capacity with production at 1,804,300 tons of ingots and castings.

Optimism Noted In Trade Survey Of Buying Agents

New York, Nov. 28 (AP).—Optimistic reports on the business outlook are shown in the monthly business survey of the National Association of Purchasing Agents.

The association said today the steel strike settlement had halted any further steep decline in industrial activity which was threatened if the tie-up had gone through November.

Actual over-all conditions reported by purchasing agents for this month showed no material trend changes from October. Production was down slightly, order books were 5 percent better, commodity prices remained steady with a tendency to advance, and inventories and employment were lower.

However, the association's business survey committee said "the tone of the reports is distinctly optimistic as purchasing agents find inventories and commitments have generally been held in balance with any reduced production schedules during the strike period."

Chevrolet Sales Set High Record

Detroit, Nov. 28 (AP).—Chevrolet division of General Motors Corp. announced today it already has sold more cars in the United States in 1949 than it ever sold in an entire year before. Chevrolet leads the entire auto industry in sales.

General Sales Manager W. E. Fish said domestic sales as to the end of October totaled 1,208,646 cars and trucks. The previous peak was in 1936, when Chevrolet sold 1,168,863 vehicles over 12 months.

"Chevrolet thus is assured of its seventh million-car sales year," said Fish. Figures are based on a calendar rather than a model year.

Pittsburgh Mill Buys Two Plants From GSA

New York, Nov. 28 (AP).—Alice G. Hansen, president of Pittsburgh Mill Steel Co., today announced acquisition of industrial plants in the Philadelphia and Baltimore areas.

The purchases were made from the General Services Administration for an undisclosed sum.

The Baltimore plant includes a magnesium casting division and a main foundry Division equipped for producing gray iron castings and soil pipe.

The other factory, the Crum Lynne plant, in the Philadelphia area, has an electric melt division for the production of carbon and alloy steel castings, or ingots.

Miss Hansen said plans for operating the plants will be announced after market studies are completed.

New Sales Manager

Baltimore, Nov. 28.—W. A. Mara, general manager of the Bendix television and broadcast receiver division of the Bendix Aviation Corp., today announced the appointment of R. W. Fordyce as general sales manager, replacing E. A. Bonia, whose resignation was accepted.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, Nov. 28 (AP).—A mixture of plus and minus signs showed up at the close in grain futures trading today on the Board of Trade. But before the market retreated many new seasonal highs were rung up.

Most strength through to the close was shown in oats, particularly the May and July contracts. Greatest weakness cropped up in soybeans. Old crop wheat deliveries, deferred corn and all oats made new seasonal highs.

Wheat ended ⅛ lower to ⅛ higher, corn was ⅛ lower to ½ higher, oats were ⅛-1 higher, rye was ½ to 1 cent higher, soybeans were 1 to 1½ lower and lard was 7 cents lower to 3 cents a hundred pounds higher.

North Capitol Group Drives For Members

Alarmed at a drastic drop in membership—from 600 to about 235—members of the North Capitol Citizens Association met last night to discuss means of arousing interest in the organization.

President John F. Hardie announced he would call a meeting of the executive committee before the next association meeting in January to map out a block-by-block canvass for prospective members.

Hardie deplored the apathy of community interest that cost the association nearly 400 members in a few months. He stressed the civic improvements that could be obtained for the area.

Shipley Terrace

The Shipley Terrace Citizens Association last night asked for a school bus to take pupils to Stanton School, Hamilton st. and Good Hope rd. se., and then to Anacostia High School, 16th and R sts. se.

Meeting at 2603 Southern ave. se., the group also asked for a Capital Transit shuttle to run at a reduced fare from 25th st. and Southern ave. to 25th and Good Hope rd. se. The District Commissioners were asked to look into complaints of insufficient heat and alleged smoke nuisance at the Shipley Park Apartments, 25th and Southern ave. se. The December meeting was called off.

Georgetown

The Georgetown Citizens Association last night began making plans to have commercial truck routes along 33rd and 34th sts., shifted to Wisconsin ave.

Members of the association's executive committee will meet next week with the executive committee of the Progressive Citizens Association in an effort to accomplish the move. Georgetown home owners object to the routes passing through a residential area..

The 20 members who met at the St. John's Parish Hall, Potomac and O sts. nw., considered a plan to have the 1875 boundaries of Georgetown outlined by street markers for sesquicentennial visitors.

Mid-City

The Mid City Citizens Association last night voted to join the North Washington Council of Citizens Association.

Meeting at the Thomson School, 12th and L sts. nw., the association voted to oppose a District regulation which would require hotels with more than 30 rooms to maintain a dining room on the hotel's lobby floor.

Society of Natives

The Society of Natives last night asked Congress to increase the welfare appropriation to the District to an amount "which would more adequately meet the demands of the high cost of living."

Meeting at the Mayflower Hotel, the 70 members present appointed a special committee to check into the proposed sale of Soldiers Home and see if the District might acquire the reservation and convert it into taxable property.

Punching Lawyer Of NLRB Charged In Move to Disbar

By the United Press

John L. Camp, Houston, Tex., attorney, who allegedly socked a Labor Relations Board lawyer in the eye, was told yesterday to show cause why he shouldn't be barred from further practice before the board.

In addition, Board General Counsel Robert N. Denham, who issued the "show cause" order, said he had asked the Department of Justice to prosecute Camp for violation of the "criminal statutes."

Denham charged that Camp made "an unprovoked, brutal physical assault" upon Don E. Wilson of the board's Fort Worth regional staff at a hearing at Rankin, Tex., on October 26. Camp was one of the lawyers representing the Ohio Oil Co. in a case against the CIO Oil Workers' Union.

The action against Camp is the first of its kind in the board's 14-year history.

Nigeria Sharpens Freedom Demand After Rioting

London, Nov. 28 (AP).—Britain tonight faced sharper demands for freedom by her largest colony, Nigeria, seething after 10 days of shooting and rioting.

Colonial Secretary Arthur Creech Jones told Commons the situation in most of the trouble spots in the strategic, rich West African colony "is under control.' The trouble grew out of a strike for higher wages by coal miners.

Nonetheless RAF planes were reported standing by, ready to rush steel-helmeted police to new tension areas. Informed officials said troops are available either in the colony or in nearby Gibraltar to take care of any emergency.

These officials said they expect the country's already-strong independence movement to get a shot in the arm from the union of all African political and labor organizations, which has come about as a result of the shootings.

Delayed Action

Suspect, Out On 1 Charge, Held on 2d

A "delayed action" charge of housebreaking was filed yesterday against a defendant who was rearrested as he walked out of court. He had just been freed on bond on an earlier vagrancy charge.

The defendant is Samuel W. James, 27, of 512 58th st. ne.

At 1:30 a. m. yesterday Police Pvt. J. D. Williams spotted a man in an alley in the rear of 1542 7th st. nw. The man, he said, had a saw, a pair of gloves and considerable dirt on his clothing.

Williams saw nothing wrong but decided to lock up the man on the vagrancy charge. He identified himself as James. In Police Court James' case was continued. He posted $300 bond.

Meantime, Albert Fingerhut, proprietor of a liquor store at 1524 7th st. nw., opened up at 10 a. m. He discovered a hole in a brick wall, another hole sawed in a partition, and 65 cases of liquor, valued at $2500, gone. Also missing was $17.22 from a cash register, he reported to police. A large safe had been damaged in an attempt to open it.

Detectives, remembering James' arrest, hurried to Police Court and met him emerging. They placed the housebreaking charge. United States Commissioner C. S. Lawrence set bond at $2500 for hearing December 14.

Detective Sergts. William W. Friel and Irving Lubore said James is a brother of Stance James and Oliver James, who were convicted on larceny charges last May in District Court. They were accused of removing a 400-pound safe, containing $60,000 of jewelry and cash, from the home of Richard H. Beckley, a retired detective sergeant.

Though convicted last May, they have never been sentenced. They are at liberty on bond

The general manager of the Arnold bus line, which is asking for a fare increase of five cents a zone, yesterday declared the company is losing about $600 a day in its operations.

The sum takes into account wage increases of 17 cents an hour and other benefits awarded to union employes by an arbitration board in September.

General Manager Bernard Wahle, who testified all day yesterday at an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing, said the (labor) award was the primary reason, but not the only one, for the fare-increase request.

He said also the bus line is in "immediate and urgent need" of new equipment, needs additional personnel in most of its departments, that officers are receiving no compensation and stockholders no dividends.

However, under cross-examination by Lester R. Conley, attorney for the Arlington County Board, Wahle said the $5000 monthly rental paid for leased offices, garage and shops at 707 North Randolph st., Arlington, goes to Joseph L. Arnold, company president.

Further explaining the firm's financial setup, Wahle said 27,300 of the company's 35,500 shares of stock are held by the Joan Corp., owned jointly by Mr. and Mrs. Arnold.

The Arnold line, officially the Washington, Virginia & Maryland Coach Co., Inc., carries about 50,000 passengers daily between Washington and points in Arlington and Fairfax Counties. Present cash fares range from 13 to 40 cents. Under the requested fare increase, tokens—now 4 for 50 cents—would be sold at 6 for $1.

Conley, who said he was not arbitrarily opposing the fare increase as such, raised the legal point that the State of Virginia should be the respondent in the case.

ICC Examiner J. J. Williams said he agreed the State of Virginia is "at least" a corespondent in the case, and took the matter under advisement. He allowed the testimony to continue pending a ruling from Virginia officials. Representatives of the State Corporation Commission, which operates the line, are expected at today's session, set for 9:30 a. m.

1932 Types Of Termites Disclosed

A blue book of the termite, for whom all home-owners have long had respect anyhow, has just been issued by the Smithsonian Institution.

It will come as no great surprise to those whose knotty-pine walls have provided beef-au-jus board for him that there are as many as 1932 species of the wood-lovers.

Most home-owners will also have already suspected what the Smithsonian now sets down as scientific truth: The termite is a very sociable creature. "Among the most remarkable examples of social evolution," the Smithsonian puts it.

"Social cockroahes," the termites are called by Dr. Thomas E. Snyder, of the Agriculture Department's Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, author of the 490-page catalog representing the result of 40 years' study.

Termites, Snyder says, are most closely related to cockroaches. But while the cockroach, fiercely individualistic, pulls up short in social organization when he completes the family stage, the termite has a whole colony life.

The termite has even more of a hierarchy than the ant. He has soldiers, kings and queens and the like. King termites, it is understood, eat only teakwood.

Snyder, 64, is among the world's foremost authorities on termites. His is the first work of its kind since 1900 when only 400 species were accounted for.

This, however, was before the extensive development of the American bungalow.

Fairfax Judge Suspends 3 Tax Fines

Three Fairfax County residents yesterday received suspended $20 fines each in Trial Justice Court after pleading guilty to failure to file returns this year on their 1948 State income tax.

First of an estimated 200 residents who will be served warrants to appear in court for neglecting to file returns, they were John T. Anderson, Federal employe, RFD 3, Alexandria; M. D. Cass, a laborer, also of RFD 3, Alexandria, and Benjamin O. Figgins, Route 4, Alexandria, an employe of the Army Quartermaster Department.

Anderson, Cass and Figgins were included in the initial batch of 20 persons for whom warrants were issued last week. Another 20 or 30 warrants are expected to be issued today or Wednesday, according to Walter L. Buckley, Chief Deputy Commissioner of Revenue.

Buckley said the three men appeared at his office in Fairfax and filed their returns, which were "acceptable." Although the warrants commanded them to appear in Trial Justice Court December 16, they were permitted to plead guilty yesterday. Each paid $5.75 court costs.

The warrants are the result of a request by the State department of taxation that Fairfax County assist in clearing up its delinquent list. Over the county, some 700 residents have been asked to appear at the revenue office to explain that they failed to file 1949 returns on their 1948 State income tax.

Buckley estimates about 500 residents will show up. The remainder will receive summons for court appearance, he said.

SUSIE Q. SMITH

". . . And no matter what I do to it . . . twist it, sit on it, jump on it . . . it still retains its original shape!"

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

"Should We Adopt a Child?"

Many couples who have hoped in vain to have children of their own face the question of adopting children. All kinds of questions come up. Here are some of the more common ones.

"How can we be sure of the child's background—that he will turn out all right?" "If later, we should have a youngster of our own, will we be able to love the adopted child as much?" "Won't it be awfully hard on a child to know that he's adopted?"

Some prospective parents, too, have doubts as to whether they really want a child that is not "flesh of their flesh." Husband or wife feel that to raise another person's child would leave a good deal lacking.

The evidence seems quite clear. First, adoption agencies, today, are able to place children in the sort of families where they will fit. Actually, there is not likely to be much transmitted through heredity except general physical status and intelligence. If one has assurance that the prospective son or daughter comes from a physically healthy stock and is at least of normal intelligenee, the other things, such as personality traits, will be taken care of in the family in which the child grows up.

Second, experience shows that it is a rare situation in which parents don't love an adopted child in the same way they do one of their own.

Third, we know ways of telling children of their adoption, so that they are even a little sorry for children whose parents haven't chosen them.

The shortage of children for adoption is extreme. If you're lucky enough to be able to get one and you can understand your own feelings, you probably should go ahead.

Groom Again Heads Group For Crippled

Thomas J. Groom, president of the Bank of Commerce and Savings, was reelected president of the District of Columbia Society for Crippled Children at the group's annual meeting yesterday.

Other officers include William H. Press, first vice president; Donald M. Bernard, second vice president; Thomas Grant, jr., secretary, and James H. Flanagan, treasurer.

A report made at the meeting disclosed 357 children were treated in the society's Cerebral Palsy Clinic the past year. Groom said yesterday he hoped for a society program which "will bring help to approximately 10,000 crippled persons now residing n the Washington area. This is the goal which the society will continue to strive for."

Humble Home

There is no wall of stone or steel . . . Or scientific dome . . . That offers more production than . . . The humble little home . . . However weak its roof may be . . . However olod its door . . . It does not mind the weather or . . . The waves that wash the shore . . . And though it may be buried by . . . The bombs that blast the ground . . . It will be standing there at last . . . With flowers all around . . . Because the humble little home . . . Is not of stone or steel . . . But only of the happiness . . . The human heart may feel . . . Its strength is not determined by . . . The weather or a war . . . But only by the love that blooms . . . And lives for evermore.

President Holds GOP For No Gain

The first fumble of the Army-Navy game was President Truman's. He dropped the coin he was flipping to start the contest.

But he recovered just in time to retrieve it from three jobless Republicans.

ALL ABOARD

Mrs. A. Leon Havis of 6812 Dartmouth ave., College Park, Md., got a Thanksgiving visit from her brother, Charles Collier of Wooster, Ohio. What's more, Brother Charlie brought his family along.

Moving the Collier family is not a simple matter. It includes Mrs. Collier, five children and a pet dog. But the Colliers motored to Washington in comfort.

They used to own a trailer, but Pop didn't find it very practical for such a big family. One day, he expressed his dissatisfaction to a friend who is a Greyhound bus driver.

"What you need," counseled the driver, "is one of our buses. With a few home-made changes, it would be just the thing."

Pop took the suggestion seriously, bought a Greyhound bus, installed double-decker bunks and a refrigerator, and put a table in the back. He reports that it worked out just fine, and everybody enjoyed the trip.

'TWAS EVER THUS

You peek out the door and see nothing but dogs;
You hunt for the paper in slumberland togs.
Then prim women, grim women
—women for blocks
Come out of their houses, or drive past in flocks.

You leap for the door as the good ladies gape;
It blows tightly shut, ends all chance of escape.
And when you get in, with your cold naked feet,
You look and see nothing but dogs in the street.

THIS IS WASHINGTON

The elevation of Oscar Chapman to the Cabinet to replace Cap Krug leaves Assistant Secretary of the Interior C. Girard Davidson prominently mentioned for the post of Undersecretary.

The other day Davidson, Recreation Board Chairman Harry S. Wender, Board Member James E. Schwab and Recreation Chairman Milo F. Christiansen played a round of golf at one of the public courses under Davidson's jurisdiction.

The foursome worked up a terrific appetite, and stopped at the clubhouse for some hamburgers. But when the waitress was given the order, she said:

"I'm sorry, but there will be quite a delay before I can serve you. We have to cook up 50 hamburgers for the Park Police."

Davidson's colleagues could hardly contain their mirth. He's the kind of guy who prefers to go hungry rather than throw his weight around. But his empty stomach moved him to ask:

"Do you suppose you could divert 4 of those 50 hamburgers for four very hungry men?"

"Well, I think so," agreed the waitress. "The police won't know the difference if we keep them waiting another minute or two."

So the foursome was served; then Davidson went off to phone his office. Wender, ever the pixie, summoned the waitress.

"Do you know who that fellow was that you got the four hamburgers for?" he asked. The girl shook her head.

"That was the man who runs the parks and the Park Police—the Assistant Secretary of the Interior," Harry informed her.

For a moment the waitress was speechless. Then she muttered: "Oh, no — he couldn't be. He's such a nice man."

VAGRANT THOUGHT

Wonder if the slicksters who sign their letters with phony names and addresses realize that a newspaper is supposed to check such details before rushing into print with them?

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

Did you notice the Bowie results for November 23? What a parlay you could have had with Blue Fedora ($4.40), Blue Rocket $59) and Blue Holly ($10.60).

Molly T. Guertler,
608 N. Ivy St.,
Arlington, Va.

Dear Mrs. Guertler:

Never mind the parlay. If I ever catch one of those $59 mutuels I'll set a new record getting back to Washington with the proceeds intact. I hope.

Bill.

Merry-Go-Round

Reds' Berlin Chief Weak In Geography

By Drew Pearson

Young Representative Mel Price of Illinois and Gen. Vassily Chuikov, Soviet commander in Berlin, had a long conversation at a Berlin reception at which the Illinoisan did some half-humorous, but blunt talking. To his surprise, the tough Soviet soldier displayed a quaint sense of humor, if not a knowledge of American geography.

Rep. Price

On a tour of inspection for the House Armed Services Committee, Congressman Price was introduced to Chuikov at a reception for United States Secretary of State Dean Acheson. Talking through an interpreter, the Russian general inquired what State he came from. When Price told him, Chuikov commented:

"Illinois — oh, that's close to Colorado, isn't it?"

"No, its about a thousand miles away,' replied Price.

"I guess you can see that I'm not very good at American geography," admitted the Russian. "But I know a lot about German geography."

"I hope you're not making a study of American geography now, general," observed the Illinois Congressman dryly.

With a smile, Chuikov replied that he was not, then asked Price how long he had been in Berlin.

"Time is only relative, general," responded the Congressman. "How long have you been here?"

'Four and a half years," said Chuikov. "It's nicer to be passing through like you than to be nailed down here."

Maj. Gen. James D. McIntyre, a staff adviser of Defense Secretary Louis Johnson, joined the huddle and began comparing notes with Chuikov on their knowledge of each other's language.

"I know only one phrase in Russian,, 'Za vasche zdorovye' (a Russian toast)" declared Congressman Price.

"The only English I know," volunteered General Chuikov, "is 'okay.'"

High Cost of Milk

Senate investigators have just begun a sweeping probe of milk profiteering and alleged price fixing by big city dairy trusts.

Dairy spokesmen will be called on the carpet to explain why consumers are being charged a standard price of 21½ cents a quart for milk delivered in New York, Chicago, Milwaukee, Washington, and other large cities, although the prices farmers receive for the milk vary from 6 to as much as 13½ cents less.

The biggest price spread is in Chicago, where in some cases dairies are paying only 8 cents a quart for milk sold to consumers for 21½ cents.

Note—One reason for the price spread is high wages or commissions paid to drivers of milk delivery trucks. An investigation of Chicago milk costs some time ago showed that some milk truck drivers got $10,000 a year and in a few cases of deliveries to hotels and restaurants, up to $30,000 a year.

Truman Knew Answer

President Truman knew all the answers when officials of the League of Women Voters read him some questions on voting and registration from their interesting booklet, "What's the U. S. to You?"

One of their questions was: "How can I enroll as a worker in a political party?" When this was read to him by the league's president, Anna Lord Strauss, a New York Republican, Truman smiled expansively.

"I'll be glad to tell you how you can get in the Democratic Party," he remarked.

"Oh, no, we mean both parties," replied Miss Strauss. "We want to interest people to become active in both Republican and Democratic circles."

Merry-Go-Round

Senator Taft, who is supposed to be Labor Enemy No. 1, still won't do business with any firm whose workers aren't unionized. His office was alarmed the other day when some printing was delivered without the union stamp, and a hurried check was made with the printers — Western Newspaper Union of Baltimore — who explained it was an oversight. The union stamp had been left off the proofs, but was to be added to the finished copy. . . . North Carolina's Gordon Gray impresses everyone as doing an increasingly good job as Secretary of the Army. . . . Despite Russian ballyhoo about withdrawing from North Korea, enough Soviet troops were left behind to police the pro-Communist government. The Soviet "military mission," still in Korea, is reported at the following strength: 2000 army, 1500 navy, and 500 air. . . . There's a method behind the Department of Agriculture's publication of a new cookbook of dried-milk recipes. The department has 200 million pounds of dried milk on its hands (because of price supports) which Secretary Brannan would like to divert into commercial markets. However, the cookbook has some pretty good ideas and is free to housewives who write in.
